$150,000,000 Interim Aid Is Approved At Capitol

Immediate Relief To Be Provided By RFC; Action On Total Delayed

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

House-Senate foreign aid conferees yesterday quickly agreed to a quick, 150-million-dollar RFC advance to western Europe, for immediate relief, but postponed overnight a decision on the total amount of interim aid.

These other big questions were unanswered as foreign aid bill managers called another conference today:

1. Will aid to China, for which the House authorized 60 million dollars, be kept in the bill? Indications were token assistance to China will be retained, at a compromise figure.

2. What to do about a 150-million-bushel wheat carry-over the House insisted be retained, in this country, regardless of foreign requirements? Conferees called for more data on the probable size of our wheat carry-over. Modification or elimination of this amendment is expected.

3. Whether other strings tied to the program by the House, such as a requirement that recipient governments certify no persons or organizations embracing or formerly embracing communism will participate in the distribution of relief, make it impossible for some governments to accept aid? Conferees may strike out the ban on those "formerly embracing communism."

China Is Key

Agreement on the total amount of aid for France, Italy and Austria apparently hinges on the eventual compromise on China.

The House approved a 590-million-dollar aid total, but in effect dealt western Europe a 67-million-dollar cut by adding China to the bill, and curtailing European relief another seven million. The Senate approved the full 597-million-dollar authorization the Administration asked, without any provision for China.

Since the State Department has not yet formulated a China relief program, and aid to the Orient would not start in any event before April, conferees can boost the western Europe winter relief total by scaling the China earmarking.

Senate Foreign Relations Chairman Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich. and Representative Sol Bloom (D., N. Y.) jointly voiced "hope" that full agreement will be reached today following yesterday's conference. Vandenberg declined to discuss details until the bill is concluded.

"We haven't been quarreling," said Vandenberg. "So far as the Senate is concerned we have spent most of the time trying to find out just what the House did."

House Votes 150 Million

House Foreign Affairs Chairman Charles A. Eaton (R., N. J.) announced the agreement to give RFC authority to advance quickly 150 million dollars of the aid total, following the initial morning session of the group.

The RFC advance is designed

Sale of Tankers Ordered to Ease Fuel Oil Situation

By The Associated Press

With the fuel oil situation labeled "critical" because of transportation bottlenecks and other factors, the Maritime Commission last night announced it has authorized the sale of every available T-2 and Liberty type tanker remaining in its jurisdiction.

The commission did not state the exact number of ships involved or whether the sales were authorized to domestic or foreign purchasers.

It is known, however, that the commission has 51 Liberty type tankers, either in operation of laid up, and on October 3 had 209 of the T-2 type.

Pauley Asks f... ...ation of Other U. S. Officials

OFFICIAL ADMITS DOING "RATHER WELL"—Edwin W. Pauley (1), special assistant to Secretary of the Army Royall, is questioned by Senator Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) (2), yesterday at the Senate Appropriations Committee investigation into whether Government officials have been speculating on the commodity market. Members of the committee at the table are Senators Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) (A), Carl Hayden (D., Ariz.) (B), Theodore F. Green (D., R. I.) (C), Elmer Thomas (D., Okla.) Price Rollback Authorization Is Proposed

Schwellenbach Plan Would Permit Return To Last June's Levels

Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach yesterday proposed to Congress a price control program which would permit rollbacks of prices on almost every important commodity to the levels of last June.

But GOP congressional leadership, as disinterested in price control as in almost all the other compulsory features of President Truman's anti-inflation plan, went ahead with plans to steam roller its own partial, "voluntary" control bill through the House on Monday.

Rules Suspension Planned

Under strategy devised yesterday, a suspension of the rules will be sought for the bill, offered by Chairman Wolcott (R., Mich.) of the House Banking and Currency Committee. A two thirds vote is necessary for such a suspension, but if it is obtained, debate will be limited to 20 minutes on each side, and no amendments can be offered.

House Democratic leader Sam Rayburn (Tex.) called the Republican maneuver "outrageous" but did not say how his party proposed to combat it.

Republicans, meanwhile, figured they could get away with the "take it or leave it" technique. They thought the Democrats might fear to block the bill, knowing that if they were successful, there would be no chance for any inflation control legislation at all during the present special session.

Taft Hopes for Speed

Chairman Taft (R., Ohio) of the Senate GOP Policy Committee said he hoped the Senate could pass the bill by Christmas. He conceded that Democrats could delay action but added, "I don't think they will."

The bill provides extension of expiring controls on exports and rail transportation; freedom from antitrust prosecution for businessmen who enter voluntary agreements with the Government to allocate their products; and an increase of the Federal Reserve Board's gold reserves against currency issues and member banks' deposits.

Schwellenbach's proposal, which he said was presented to Wolcott's committee Thursday afternoon, was a world apart from Wolcott's mild bill.

At a press conference, the Labor Secretary said that the document he submitted purported only to show that standards could be set to guide the operation of a price-control program.

In testimony last week, Schwellenbach had contended such standards could be drafted which would prevent the restoration of an unlimited OPA program over all commodities. Wolcott said the Administration had failed to be specific, and Schwellenbach un-

Lewis Again Takes UMW Out of AFL

'We Disaffiliate,' Says 2-Word Note; Disagreed Over Oath

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Out-again, in-again, John L. Lewis is out again.

In a continuation of his revolving-door technique, Lewis yesterday disaffiliated his big coal miners' Union from the AFL.

Rendered skillful by previous practice—he broke once before with the AFL in 1936 and with the CIO in 1942—Lewis effected his most recent disjunction with AFL President William Green with economy of effort and words.

Terse Announcement

It was contained in a blue-crayoned scrawl on a single sheet of paper, which K. C. Adams, editor of the Mine Workers Journal, read to reporters. It said:

"Green.

"We disaffiliate.

"LEWIS."

The announcement was made following a unanimous vote of the United Mine Workers' executive board. Votes on the UMW executive board are always unanimous.

At AFL headquarters, a spokesman said Green was out of town and that the organization had no immediate comment.

Disagreed on New Law

Adams said the reason for the repeat performance of the Lewis-AFL divorce was disagreement with the AFL on its attitude toward the Taft-Hartley law.

At the last AFL convention, a roaring quarrel developed on whether to sign the anti-Communist affidavits demanded by the new law. Lewis opposed signing, but the convention overwhelmingly upheld its executive council, which voted for AFL officers to execute the oaths.

Using verbiage somewhat less readily understandable than the terse remarks of his chief, Adams explained, or purported to explain, in these words:

"There is no reason why the UMW should sacrifice itself to go along with an umbrella of the labor movement that merely protects political acquiesence of those who are too afraid to fight."

New Affiliation Denied

Adams denied reports that the miners had agreed to join the independent Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen in a combined political action program.

In other action yesterday, the UMW executive board, elected Thomas Kennedy, UMW secretary-treasurer, to be vice president. A former lieutenant governor of Pennsylvania, he succeeds the late John O'Leary, who died this fall.

John Owens of Cambridge, Ohio, was elected to succeed Kennedy.

Having led his 600,000 miners once again out of the AFL, Lewis did not disclose his next step.

Switching alliances as often as the House of Savoy, Lewis has

Special Assistant to Royall Admits Own Market Deals to Senate Committee

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Edwin W. Pauley, $9975-a-year special assistant to Secretary of the Army Kenneth C. Royall, bared his speculative dealings in grain and other food and clothing commodities, before the Senate Appropriations Committee yesterday.

Pauley appeared before the committee in a fighting mood. The millionaire former treasurer of the Democratic National Committee, declared that he felt he was being "singled out" for inquiry by the committee.

He declared that if the committee wished to be fair it would call all other Government officials, emphasizing "members of the legislative branch," for questioning in the same manner.

Pauley was assured by Chairman Bridges of the committee, that officials of all departments of the Government had been called upon for statements as to their commodity trading. The Senator asserted, however, that "this is not the forum" for inquiry into trading by members of Congress.

Bridges added that he would go to Secretary of Agriculture Anderson for a full list of such traders.

Lists September Holdings

Pauley declared that when he took office on September 3 he promised to dispose of all his holdings as rapidly as possible "consistent with the capital gains tax."

He said that he has already sold 90 per cent of them. By selling in accordance with his agreement with Royall he said, he had lost $100,000 additional profit he would have made had he not been so pledged. He admitted, under questioning, that he "had done pretty well" in his dealings.

On September 3 his holdings, he said, were 200,000 bushels of corn, 300,000 bushels of oats, 300,000 pounds of cottonseed oil, 500,000 pounds of lard and 43 contracts (40,000 pounds to a contract) of hides.

If those holdings had all been in the nearest futures of that date (September delivery) they would have amounted to $1,464,625 at September 3 closing prices, as follows:

Corn, at $2.49⅝, $499,250.

Oats, at $1.16⅝, $349,875.

Hides at 27½ cents a pound, $473,000.

Cottonseed oil, at 18¼ cents a

Jewish Forces Go on Offense In Palestine

Underground Hits Arabs at 7 Points; Day's Death Toll 25

Jerusalem Dec. 12 (AP).—Veteran Jewish underground fighters went on the warpath from Haifa to Hebron in a series of bloody clashes with Arabs and tonight the death toll from 13 days of bitter fighting in Paletsine neared 200.

Jewish forces struck at seven places—Haifa, Yazur, Gaza, Shafat, Tireh, Ramle and in Jerusalem itself—on this Moslem Sabbath.

Claiming responsibility for five of these operations, the underground Irgun Zval Leumi also threatened new attacks on the British army "if the British continue to interfere and permit Arabs to import arms from abroad."

Arabs Kill Briton

A British soldier was killed and another was wounded when Arabs fired on a British convoy entering Haifa tonight.

The day's disorders throughout Palestine brought death to 25 persons, 20 of them Arabs. An Associated Press tabulation showed 198 had been killed in the Holy Land since the United Nations Assembly voted for partition. The toll for the entire Middle East stood at 314.

The bloodiest fighting of the day occurred at Tireh, a village near Haifa. Twelve Arabs were killed there and six others wounded when Jewish commandos attacked with grenades and automatic weapons.

Haifa itself was relatively quiet. Arabs leaving mosques found the streets lined with British armored cars and Bren-gun carriers. One Jew and an Arab were killed by gunfire, and a British officer and

Rocket Ground Men Died in Crash of C-47

Biggs Field Soldier From D. C. Killed; Bodies Mangled

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 12 (U.P.).—Personnel from the rocket and guided missile testing ground at White Sands, N. Mex., were aboard the C-47 transport that crashed near the Memphis airport last night, it was disclosed today.

Officials at Fort Bliss, El Paso, Tex., said that nine men from that post and White Sands were among the 20 dead. The dead included Pvt. J. Taylor, Washington, D. C., stationed at Biggs Field, El Paso, where the plane took off yesterday for its base at Aberdeen, Md.

Army officials here disclosed that there was a possibility a twenty-first victim—an aerial "hitch-hiker"—also had perished. Piecing together the mutilated torsos and limbs was so difficult that authorities were not sure whether they had 20 or 21 bodies.

[Pvt. Joseph William Taylor, jr., was the son of Joseph W. Taylor and Marion Taylor, 231 Oakdale st. nw. He was graduated from Lucretia Mott Grammar School and Garnet Patterson Junior High School, and attended Armstrong High School before entering the Army in February, 1936.

[Besides his parents, he is survived by a sister, Mrs. Theresa Watkins of the same address.—Editor's note.]

U. S.-British Unity Praised By Ministers

London, Dec. 12 (AP).—Secretary of State George C. Marshall and Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin joined tonight in praising the growth of British-American friendship and understanding as a pattern for peace in a turbulent world.

Going from a stormy session of the Big Four Foreign Ministers to a dinner of the Pilgrims Society, the United States and British Cabinet members stressed the desire for peace in the world and acclaimed the bonds between their two countries.

The society's aim is to promote United States-British friendship, which Marshall pointed out "is not embodied in any formal treaty or pact."

Marshall recalled the settlement of past British-American disputes and declared, "I know of no better example in history of what can be accomplished by nations who are willing to negotiate in the spirit of frankness and with a genuine desire to resolve their difficulties."

"Our friendship is not exclusive," Bevin declared. "We extend it in the same way to our fellow human beings the world over. Just as we, the British and Americans, understand one another, so we wish to make this understanding world-wide."

The two avoided mention of deadlocks.

French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault was present. Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov was not.

Viscount Greenwood, chairman of the society, said that "we did our best to get the Big Four here. They are all here except Mr. Molotov. We would have been glad to have had him here, however, much as some of us differ with

Parley Splits Wide Open On Demands Of Molotov

Marshall, Bidault, Bevin Denounce Reparations Claim And Profits Charge

By Walter Kerr

London, Dec. 12 (NYHT).—The Council of Foreeign Ministers was split wide open tonight after an angry meeting at Lancaster House which showed deep-rooted resentment and disagreement on every issue raised.

The United States, Great Britain and France heard Soviet Foreign Minister Viacheslav M. Molotov say Russia was "not begging but demanding" 10 billion dollars worth of reparations from Germany, including reparations from current production. They heard him charge that the Western Allies were making millions in profits out of the occupation of their zones.

They heard him charge that they were making millions in profits out of the occupation of their western zones.

Back came Secretary of State George C. Marshall, British Foreign Secretary Bevin and French Foreign Minister Bidault.

The polite language of diplomacy was forgotten.

Called Pure Propaganda

The demand they refused.

The charge they labeled pure propaganda, "insults," "abuse" and "contrary to the truth."

Marshall said Molotov's "method of procedure makes it rather difficult to inspire respect for the dignity of the Soviet government."

"I could have wound up his speech by thanking us for listening to him for so long," said Bevin.

Earlier the three western delegations turned heavy pressure on the Soviet foreign minister, who insisted there was a plan for a government of the three western zones of Germany and demanded the dissolution of the economically combined American and British zones.

"I categorically deny that," Marshall said of the alleged tri-zone plan. "There is no such plan, tentative or otherwise."

Bidault agreed, adding, "there is not even any preparation for such a plan."

As for the combined Anglo-American zone, American and British spokesman told Molotov it would continue until final agreement on the economic unity of Germany.

To Require Full Agreement

"And this economic unity," Marshall said, "will require complete agreement on economic principles, including reparations, property taken and an accounting therefore."

This last remark was an allusion to his insistence that the Soviet delegation produce the facts regarding reparations from the Soviet zone "by Monday."

He did not say "or else," but there was a strong implication that this is what he meant.

The Soviet delegate snapped back.

Perhaps, he said, by Monday the American and British delegations would report on the number of German concerns in their zones bought up by foreigners. Perhaps, he said, by Monday they would list the enormous profits they had made out of coal and timber in their zones. And, he added, the same applied to the French.

Bevin said he would answer immediately. His reply was "none" to both questions. But he wondered aloud if it was true the Russians had taken seven billion dollars' worth of equipment out of their zone.

No Profits Taken Out

Marshall similarly said no property had been bought by any foreigner in the American zone and no profits had been made out of coal and timber sales that had not been returned to the German economy. He said he would submit his statement in writing tomorrow, but that by Monday he wanted a statement from Molotov.

The Soviet spokesman defended reparations from current production as a means of rebuilding the German economy. He even suggested raising industrial production in the western zones to 70 per cent of the 1938 level so that such reparations would be possible.

No such level has ever been mentioned before.

It may have been meant seriously, but it was lost in a maize

Rome Strike Called Off by Communists

Action Taken When Police Help Workers Go Back to Jobs

Rome, Dec. 12 (AP).—The Communist-dominated Chamber of Labor announced tonight an end to its general strike in the city and province of Rome, after two day in which thousands of Romans had gone back to work under the protection of club-swinging police.

The largest police force assembled in Rome in recent times—numbering 67,000 men—wielded their clubs ruthlessly throughout the day, routing jeering throngs, and enforcing the declaration of Interior Minister Mario Scelba that the government would "protect those who want to work."

Despite a growing wave of violence, government-organized privately operated half-ton trucks, each protected by two carbine-armed police, carried those who wanted to go to their jobs, and Romans crowded them to the running boards.

Businesses Reopen

By nightfall, a survey of principal streets in downtown Rome showed one out of three business places again were open, and in some streets half the establishments were serving customers, after a virtual commercial paralysis Thursday.

Then a Chamber of Labor communique announced the strike was over. A spokesman said the vote was unanimous. The communique said appropriations by the municipality of Rome and the province, added to what the government had offered for a winter relief public works program, satisfied the demands of strikers.

Observers believed, however, that Rome citizens' growing resentment influenced the decision.

Earlier Salvatore Rebecchini, recently elected mayor, was reported ready to put up two billion lire ($3,517,000) of city funds to add to the 11 billion lire which the government had offered.

The Labor Chamber originally had demanded a 10-billion-lire program, and then 14 billion lire, in-

U. N. Council to Tackle Old Problems Tuesday

Lake Success, N. Y., Dec. 12 (U.P.). The United Nations Security Council today scheduled meetings for next Tuesday and Wednesday to tackle long-standing problems such as the big power veto, choice of a governor for Trieste and the Dutch-Indonesian dispute.

New debate on the old veto problem will revolve around the resolution of the recent session of the General Assembly calling on the five powers holding the veto power to discuss ways and means of limiting its use.

Army of Politicians Buzzes

Eisenhower and Truman Talk For 30 Minutes . . . About Army

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

President Truman and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower held a 30-minute conference at the White House yesterday, their first real face-to-face talk since the "Draft-Ike" movement took on boom proportions.

The meeting aroused unusual interest because Eisenhower's name had not appeared on the regular White House calling list.

It was later explained that Mr. Truman called in the Army Chief of Staff to discuss military matters.

"It was a purely professional visit, I assure you," General Eisenhower told reporters on his way out.

He said that the President had talked to him about the Army and its future. In response to a question, he said his forthcoming retirement as Chief of Staff was not discussed. He added that there had always been "perfect agreement" on this as between himself and Mr. Truman and Gen. Omar N. Bradley, who has been named as his successor.

When the pro-Ike boom for Eisenhower began to grow formidable several months ago, there was gossip that Mr. Truman was "sore" with the famous soldier. A confidante of the President denied this emphatically.

On the surface, certainly, relations between the Chief Executive and the Chief of Staff have been most cordial. At a White House ceremony Thursday, when Admiral Chester W. Nimitz received another decoration, Mr. Truman greeted Eisenhower with a friendly "How're ya, Ike?" and shook hands with him in hearty fashion.

The Truman-Eisenhower conference yesterday came at a time when the air of Washington was charged with political talk, a not-unusual situation on the eve of a Gridiron Club dinner.

In town for the affair were Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, who held a party at the Statler for reporters assigned to his 1944 campaign train; former Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota, and three members of Congress who are GOP presidential possibilities—Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, Senator Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan and Speaker Joseph W. Martin of Massachusetts.

Former Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas, Republican nominee in '36, called on President Truman and discussed the world situation with him. He and the Chief Executive agreed that the Marshall Plan ought to be put on a four-year and not a year-to-year basis, and he told reporters as much when he came out.

"What about Eisenhower?" Landon was asked.

"I make it a point never to talk partisan politics in the White House lobby," Landon said. "That is a good rule at any time. But it is especially good right now in view of the critical situation in Europe."

The Taft camp was none too happy over a statement made by Henry A. Wallace in Buffalo: "On

Strike Over, Owners Feel

3 Violence Warrants Issued In Dispute at Fairlington

Three warrants charging separate acts of violence growing out of the strike of union maintenance workers at Fairlington were issued yesterday.

Meanwhile, a representative of Fairmac Corp., which owns the huge 3439-unit Virginia housing development, said yesterday that, "From our point of view the strike is over.

"We have enough men on the job to assure continued uninterrupted service," said Charles E. V. Prins, public relations counsel for Fairmac.

One of the warrants yesterday was issued in Alexander Police Court for Henry Gray, 24, of Muirs ct., Alexander, an employe who remained on the job and who is accused of attacking a striker, James Smith of Purcellville, Va., on Thursday. The other two warrants involved new charges yesterday.

Theodore Payne, 28, of Herndon, Va., a striker, was charged in Arlington County Court with assaulting William Jones, an employe of the Super Service Trash Co., 610 Delaware ave. sw., which now has a contract with Fairmac to make collections at Fairlington.

Nathaniel Smith, who operates the trash company, said Jones and another employe of the firm, Ralph Morrison, were attacked by Fairlington strikers near Seminary rd. and Leesburg Pike.

Payne was released on $500 bond for appearance Thursday at Arlington County Court.

A warrant alleging threats with a dangerous weapon by a non-striker, Sylvania Tucker, of Alexandria, was sworn out yesterday in Arlington by Larry Schnall, a

2d Red Note Rejected

French Assembly Upholds Defiance of Russia, 411 to 183

Paris, Dec. 12 (U.P.).—The National Assembly tonight approved 411 to 183 the government's firm stand in the current diplomatic crisis with Russia.

At the same time, the French Ministry of Foreign Affairs abruptly rejected the second of three Soviet protest notes condemning the expulsion of 19 Russian citizens from France.

The Assembly vote came at the end of a full-scale debate on Franco-Soviet relations, in which French Communists castigated the government's Russian policy as carrying out the desires of American "warmongers."

Acting Foreign Minister Andre Marie told the Assembly that the 19 Russians expelled had been guilty of "anti-French activity." He did not give details, saying France was not obliged to explain expulsion of foreigners from her soil.

Less than 24 hours before, France sent a stiff note to Moscow charging that a Russian repatriation camp near Paris actually was the terminus of an underground railway that spirited persons to Russia without France's knowledge or permission.

The Assembly resolution also expressed confidence in the government for repatriation of Frenchmen, still in Russia.

Francois Mitterand, French Minister for Veterans' Affairs, injected still another factor in the deteriorating relations between the two countries by announcing that 18,000 French citizens still were in Russia. He said they presumably would not be repatriated in view of the expulsion of the French Repatriation Mission by the Russians, in addition to the breaking off of Franco-Soviet trade talks.

Lard, at 17.55 cents a pound, $87,750.

The some holdings at the nearest future (December) at the market closing Thursday would have totalled $1,746,000, as follows:

Corn, at $2.59½ a bushel, $519,250.

Oats, at $1.24¾ a bushel, $374,250.

Hides, at 37 cents a pound, $636,400.

Cottonseed oil, at 28 cents a pound, $84,000.

Lard, at 26.42 a pound, $132,100

All Legal, He Declares

He asserted vehemently that his market operations were his private affair. He said they were "entirely legal." He denied that he had ever used any information he had gained in public life to influence his dealings. He declared that his operations had no connection with his Army Department services.

He denied that he had made any attack upon President Truman in his prepared statement of Thursday night when he declared:

"Let us not be deluded by the pretense that trading in commodities is the cause of the price situation, even though certain loose charges to that effect have been tossed about by some political parties and candidates."

Objects to Term "Gambling"

He said that that statement referred to Harold E. Stassen, candidate for Republican nomination for President, and was not meant to reflect upon recent denunciations of grain market speculation by President Truman.

It was Stassen who first brought Pauley's name into notice as a speculator in grain. In a speech at Doylestown, Pa., Tuesday night, Stassen read a telegram he had sent Pauley asking about his operations.

Stassen's action came a day after Chairman Bridges of the Appropriations Committee had demanded of Royall that the latter make a report as to any speculating by officials of the Army Department.

Pauley objected to the use of the terms "gambling" and "speculation" in regard to his market operations. He declared that he preferred calling them "making investments in commodities."

He insisted upon reading a short, prepared statement into the record. When Senator Milton R. Young (R., N. Dak.) interrupted his reading, a Democratic member, Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney (Wyo.) rushed to his defense, declaring such "procedure very bad."

O'Mahoney's remarks brought a sharp exchange with Chairman Styles Bridges (R., N. H.).

The witness said that he had been "making investments in commodities" since sometime "between 1935 and 1940."

He asserted he did not know how much margin he had up for his dealings, but "would guess" it was less than a million dollars.

He said that he didn't know the extent of his operations until yesterday morning when he called his office manager in California.

Wheat Bought Since Sept. 3

It was then he discovered, he said, that since he took office September 3 he had bought 50,000 bushels of wheat — which he termed "peanuts." This purchase, he said, was made on his account, but was really a bonus for "five or six—maybe more" of his "trusted employes."

He explained that he normally gave a bonus to those employes who had "contributed to my profits" each year. Instead of giving the bonus this year, he said, he had agreed to finance them to an equal amount in grain futures, and allow them to benefit by the additional profit.

He declared that he did not know the purchase was made in his name until he checked with his California office early yesterday.

He declared that he had not speculated in sugar this year, and added that he could not remember if he had ever been in that market.

He said that "once, and maybe two or three times" he had taken "actual physical delivery" of some commodities—he thought it was corn—when the settlement date for his futures contract was reached without his having settled.

"Keep Sufficient Margin"

He declared that the recent increase, at the demand of President Truman, of margin requirements to one third the amount involved in the dealings, had not affected him.

"I always keep a sufficient margin to cushion any market change," he said.

He told Senator Ferguson that President Truman could not have "conceivably" been referring to him when the Chief Executive, on October 5, declared that "the cost of living in this country must not be a football to be kicked around by gamblers in grain."

He expressed surprise that his dealings on the exchange, under the provisions of the Commodity Exchange Act, were known to three members of the President's Cabinet. These are the three members of the Commodity Exchange Commission, made up of Secretary of Agriculture Anderson, Secretary of Commerce Harriman and Attorney General Clark.

Willing to Show Books

He didn't believe, he said, that Clark had reference to him when the Attorney General stated in a Boston speech in October that speculation on the commodity exchanges was "profiteering in human misery."

He agreed that he would send for his books in California, and "would be proud to show them to the committee." He declined to make public the names of his brokers, but furnished it in confidence to Chairman Bridges.

He did that, he said, because he did not wish to cause them any "publicity in connection with this." He admitted he didn't know what, if any, harm that might do them.

At this point, Pauley again complained that he was being "singled out" by the committee, and demanded that other officials be called to reveal their "personal business."

His remarks brought a rejoinder from Bridges that "this is not the forum" to investigate members of Congress. They, Bridges said, are subject to election regularly, and must account to their voters for their activities. But "bureaucrats," Bridges said, were responsible to Congress.

"Limited" Procurement

Bridges had opened the session with a charge that prominent persons close to the Administration had been "sticking knives in the hearts of hungry people while posing as great humanitarians." Pauley took every opportunity to express respect and admiration for President Truman and Secretary Royall.

Although the Army announcement of his appointment stated that his duties would include Army "procurement" he asserted that he was "meticulous" in avoiding any contact with or knowledge of any Army purchases of "listed commodities." His procurement activities, he said, had to do only with matters involved in setting up unification of the armed services, and not with foreign buying.

He told of vacationing in August in Hawaii with Secretary Anderson and the then Postmaster General Hannegan, but denied that he had consulted with either as to his "investments in commodities."

It was at this time, he said, that he had a call from Royall asking him to take his present post. He said that he consulted the two Cabinet members then about the proposal. Each, he said, told him to "use his own judgment."

Unknown to President

He said that he may have made some long-distance market dealings at that time in the hearing of Hannegan, but was certain he did not when Anderson was present.

He said that he did not consult with President Truman about taking his present job, and that he had never discussed his "private business"—his market operations—with the President.

He said that he had flown to Cincinnati, Ohio, to consult with Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) as to the chances of his confirmation for a permanent position with the Army Department. The latter, he said, had told him he would consult other Republican Senators and think the matter over himself.

Taft, chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, said that body had "turned thumbs down" on Pauley's appointment. Taft told reporters:

"I promised to take the matter up with the Policy Committee, and the committee decided, in effect, that since it had opposed Pauley's previous nomination as Undersecretary of the Navy, it could not go along on his appointment to the Army job."

Wouldn't Risk Senate

Pauley was named for the Navy post in 1946 by President Truman. Later the nomination was withdrawn, after a bitter fight over confirmation. In the controversy, Harold L. Ickes resigned as Secretary of the Interior after appearing as a witness against him.

Pauley also said he had contacted Senator William F. Knowland (R., Calif.) about possible confirmation.

He said that after Royall had "sounded out" several Senators it was decided not to risk going before the Senate, and that his job was to remain temporary.

He dismissed questions about plans for him to take over Royall's job in case the latter decided to run for Governor of North Carolina, as just a conjecture.

Trading While Observer

Pauley admitted that trading in his account continued in 1945 and 1946 while he was an observer with rank as Ambassador in Europe and Asia for President Truman. He said that he observed "the need" in Europe, but that he did not direct his office transactions during the trip.

On his return, he said, some of his dealings might have been influenced by what he had observed of needs abroad, but not directly. He said he had profited in market operations previous to his trip. He agreed that what he had learned had increased his knowledge of demand abroad—but only in the same measure than his "other education" had.

Under questioning by Senator Clyde M. Reed (R., Kan.) he said he profited in this manner from his public employment in no different way than Reed, a newspaper editor, did by his congressional service.

He told Reed that the latter's experiences in the Senate improved his education, provided him better understanding of public affairs, and made the editorials he wrote for his paper more valuable in that regard.

No Gambler, He Says

He denied—in direct opposition to statements by President Truman — that speculation increased prices. For every buyer, he said, there had to be a seller, "or there'd be no market."

When some of Mr. Truman's speeches attacking market speculating were read, Pauley declared: "I'm for Truman. I believe in him. He's a great man."

Ferguson: "When Mr. Truman referred to gamblers in grain making a football of the cost of living, do you agree with him?"

"Where are these gamblers in grain?" Pauley retorted. "I don't consider I'm a gambler in grain."

He declared his statements in his Thursday night release were aimed at Stassen.

"Then you didn't have those other speeches in mind—Truman, Anderson and Clark—when you wrote your statement?" Ferguson asked. "Then the statement was aimed only at Stassen, a Republican, and the Republican Party?"

"Free Trader"

Pauley said he was in the market to "make money—in the good old American way."

"I'm a free trader—I believe in the American system—the capitalistic system—and that it should be allowed to work."

He then declared that prices were getting so high that controls will be necessary until "productivity catches up with demand."

"This is only the second phase of World War II," he shouted. "In time of war we recognize we have to resort to price controls."

After almost three hours of steady questioning, Pauley, red-faced and soaked with perspiration that streamed off his face all morning, was excused until his books arrive from California.

CEA Refuses Names

At that time, Bridges said, he would be asked to appear again.

During the session, Ferguson brought out that he had discussed obtaining the names of market speculators in the possession of the Commodity Exchange Authority. He said that Joseph M. Mehl, administrator of the CEA, had refused to deliver them on the ground that such publicity was prohibited by the law

Ferguson read the law into the record, with comments that he disagreed with Mehl's interpretation. Ferguson indicated that an effort to obtain the full list from Mehl may be made later.

Wayne Coy Reported Picked By President to Head FCC

Washington Post's Radio Director Due To Be Appointed Soon

By The Associated Press

Officials close to President Truman said yesterday he has decided to appoint Wayne Coy, radio director of The Washington Post, as chairman of the Federal Communications Commission.

These officials, who declined to be quoted by name, said the nomination of the former Indiana newspaperman will be sent to the Senate around the first of the year. Coy had no comment yesterday about the report.

Charles R. Denny, jr., resigned November 1 to become vice president and general counsel of the National Broadcasting Co.

A native of Shelby County, Ind., the 44-year-old Coy is radio director of The Washington Post and vice president of this newspaper's radio stations, WINX and WINX-FM.

Starting his career as a reporter in 1919 he was successfully city editor of the Franklin (Ind.) Star, 1926-30, and editor and publisher of the Delphi (Ind.) Citizen, 1930-33.

He joined Paul V. McNutt, then Governor of Indiana, as undersecretary in 1934, serving also as secretary of the Governor's commission on unemployment relief and administration of the State Welfare Department until 1937.

In that year McNutt became High Commissioner of the Philippines and Coy accompanied him as administrative assistant.

When McNutt returned to the United States as Federal Security Administrator in 1939, Coy became assistant administrator.

The Washington Post
WAYNE COY

In 1941 he went to the White House as a special assistant to President Franklin D. Roosevelt and liaison officer for the wartime Office for Emergency Management. He became assistant budget director in May, 1942, in addition to his other duties, and continued in that capacity until 1944 when he was appointed assistant to the publisher of The Washington Post.

Greeks Order Death for 29

Athens, Greece, Dec. 12 (U.P.)—A court-martial sitting at Salonika today sentenced to death 29 of 73 persons, described as members of Communist organizations, for sabotage and revolt, press dispatches reported.

Another Salonika dispatch reported that in the trial of 208 persons accused of collaboration with the Germans during the war 20 were sentenced to death and 160 to life imprisonment. Most of the defendants were tried in absentia.

Charter Heslep to Edit Congress Quarterly

Charter Heslep, Washington manager of the Mutual Broadcasting System, has resigned, effective January 1, to become executive editor of "Congressional Quarterly" news features, it was announced yesterday by Nelson and Henrietta Poynter, publishers of the "uarterly."

In his new post Heslep will direct a staff of 30 in charge of three specialized congressional news services—CQ Log and CQ Notebook, issued weekly, and the "Congressional Quarterly" itself.

Soviet Balks On Japanese Reparations

By Edward E. Bomar
Associated Press Reporter

Russia was reported yesterday to be threatening a deadlock on reparations from Japan, while demanding ten billion dollars from Germany.

Diplomatic informants said the Soviet delegate has served notice on the 11-nation Far Eastern Commission that a United States proposal, which would trim Russia's share of any war indemnity from Japan, is unacceptable to Moscow.

A majority of the other nations represented have accepted the proposal. It was submitted last month in an effort to break a 10-month stalemate on the method of distributing the industrial plants and other reparations items to be exacted from Japan as compensation for her wartime aggression.

The reparations question is under consideration by the commission, apart from the Japanese peace treaty.

Reds Block Peace Talks

Russia likewise has brought to a standstill an American-sponsored move by the Allies to call a peace conference, contending the Pacific Big Four powers should take the initiative.

The Russian rejection, announced by Semen K. Tsarapkin, was described by other FEC delegates as short of a final veto.

They said there still was hope of breaking the impasse. Britain also has raised objections to the American proposal, but has stated no final decision.

The Pacific Big Four—Russia, Britain, China and the United States—must concur in any decisions by the commission, which otherwise are reached by a simple majority.

United States Could Act

If Russia alone should refuse to go along with a reparations settlement accepted by the other Pacific allies, it might be put into effect temporarily by means of an American interim directive to Gen. Douglas MacArthur as supreme allied commander in Japan. By this device, advance reparation transfers already have been authorized for China, the Netherland Indies, the Philippines and Britain.

The reparations question has been in dispute since last February, when the nations which took an active part in the war on Japan filed conflicting claims. The United States, to end the deadlock, proposed a general scaling down, offering as a part of the settlement to share with others any reparations alloted this country.

Under the United States proposal, China would receive the largest share—30 per cent of the total pool, instead of the 40 per cent initially asked. Nanking said it was ready to accept the reduction, informants said.

Russia initially asked 15 per cent of the total reparations, regardless of wholesale removals of industrial equipment by her occupation forces in Manchuria. The reduced figures proposed by the United States as Moscow's share were not disclosed.

Krupp Made Tanks in 1926, Designer Says

Nuernberg, Germany, Dec. 12 (AP).—A former Krupp tank designer testified at an American war crimes trial today that Krupp-made tanks were secretly taken to Russia in 1932 for trial maneuvers.

The tanks were a "toy representing no weapon of tactical importance," the witness, Johann Hoffman, declared in claiming he could not recall whether they were a prototype for the panzer armies Hitler used in his blitzkriegs.

The prosecution is trying to show that the German armaments firm began rearming Germany for aggressive warfare soon after the First World War in violation of the Versailles Peace Treaty.

"When we started the construction of tanks in 1926 nothing was said about the Versailles Treaty," Hoffman testified, explaining that the fact the tank designs were drawn at Krupp "was a matter very little known." Those who participated in the work, he added, "were pledged to secrecy."

Hunger Death Denied

Frankfurt, Germany, Dec. 12 (AP). The United States Military Government today denied a German newspaper report that hunger had claimed its first victim this winter in Frankfurt. Maj. Gerald Sola, Frankfurt military governor, said a city autopsy showed that 50-year-old Herman Weiss died of pleurisy.

U. S. Still Shipping On Commitments, State Aide Reveals

By The Associated Press

Senator Bridges (R., N. H.) accused State Department officials yesterday of "conducting "underground lend-lease" for Russia after he learned that American goods still are being shipped to the Soviet.

Willard Thorp, Assistant Secretary of State, agreed that some goods, ordered under the wartime lend-lease aid, are still "being shipped," but denied that this was an attempt to violate the "intent" of Congress.

Thorp testified before the Senate Appropriations Committee which has made several efforts to cut off the shipment of lend-lease goods to Russia.

"It's merely a confusion of terms," Thorp said.

He asserted the Russians had "taken title" to these goods, agreed to pay for them and were moving them as Russian ships are available.

Two Ship Sailings Cited

Across the Capitol, Chairman Weichel (R., Ohio.) of the House Merchant Marine Committee said two American-owned ships operated by the Russians had sailed from the United States with vital cargoes for Russia within the last month.

In a statement submitted to Congress, Weichel listed the ships as the Novorossisk, formerly the Edward Eggleston under American registry, and the Mikhail Kutuzkov, formerly the Graham Taylor.

The Novorossisk, he said, sailed from Longview, Wash., December 4 for Russia loaded with electrical and construction machinery. The other left New York November 18 for Odessa, he said, with a similar cargo valued at $3,269,000. He did not list the value of the Novorossisk's cargo.

Weichel noted that the Odessa-bound ship sailed "while Congress was in a special session at the call of the President demanding hundreds of millions of dollars to stop communism."

Hits "Inconsistency"

He added "it is inconsistent with the call of the special session by the President to have his appointees go merrily on sending goods to Russia in ships owned and paid for by the taxpayers, in ships Russia does not return."

Weichel several days ago asserted that four Russian-operated ships, at least two of them American-owned, sailed with United States coal in October, three bound for Sweden, and complained "Joe Stalin is able to play the good fellow at our expense" to European countries.

The Ohio Congressman has called for an embargo on coal shipments and all exports to Russia. He also is campaigning for immediate return by Russia of 95 ships lent the Soviet by the United States during the war under Lend-Lease.

Weichel said exports to Russia from June, 1946, through September, 1947, totaled nearly 300 million dollars.

Air Crashes Fewer, But Deaths Soar

By The Associated Press

The Nation's airlines this year have carried more persons, flown more miles and had fewer crashes than in either of the two preceding years, but 1947 fatalities to date are more than double any previous year.

Civil Aeronautics Board figures show 199 passengers and 17 crew members were killed in five accidents during scheduled domestic operations. The 1946 totals were 75 passengers and 22 crew members in nine accidents.

The current total of fatalities this year in all kinds of accidents on scheduled airlines is 274. This includes 20 passengers and 13 crewmen killed in three accidents on United States international airlines and 14 crewmen and 11 other persons killed during non-passenger carrying flights, such as training operations.

In addition 32 passengers and 5 crew members were killed in four accidents to nonscheduled commercial planes and 6 persons were killed in four accidents on cargo flights.

Scheduled domestic airline traffic this year is estimated at 6,250,348,181 passenger-miles and the volume of plane-miles at 328,520,614, each figure exceeding 1946 by 5 per cent. The estimated number of airline passengers is 13,181,014, an increase of nearly 8 per cent. A passenger-mile is the flight of one passenger 1 mile.

Six Survivors Of Air Crash Flown Here

Westover Field, Mass., Dec. 12 (AP).—Braving a snowstorm, a helicopter today completed the hazardous rescue of six American soldiers who survived the crash of a military transport in Labrador wastelands.

All six—none seriously injured—were flown to a hospital at Goose Bay and preparations were beieng made to remove by air the bodies of the 23 other Army men killed in the crash.

Even before completion of the rescue, a report was received by investigators that a power failure appertnly sent the Air Transport Command plane plunging to the earth Tuesday.

Lieut. Col. Harry Bullis of Portland, Mich., who was thrown clear when the ship struck, was quoted as saying the plane "seemed to come almost to a stop in midair" before plunging.

After emergency treatment at the small RCAF hospital in Goose Bay, four of the rescued—Lieut. J. M. Bickley, Abilene, Tex.; Sergt. Joseph Stefanowicz, Warren, Ohio, and Corpl. Gene L. Harter, Fort Wayne, Ind., and Corpl. John Shaner, Horseheads, N. Y., took off for Walter Reed Hospital, Bolling Field, Washington, at 8:40 Washington. (They arrived at p. m., EST.)

The two other survivors—Bullis and T/Sergt. William J. Bujak of Philadelphia—remained behind.

Only meager reports were received at the ATC's Atlantic division headquarters heer of the rescue operations—but it was carried out in 18-degree temperature with snow falling.

It was slow work, with the survivors being taken off one at a time.

The dead were:

Lieut. Col. Albert Dana Phillips, Maj. Henry Andrew Ackerman, Capt. Carl Wilhelm Schleicher, Capt. Robert J. Hall, Capt. Merle Everett Parkinson, Capt. John C. Turney, Capt. Richard L. Casey, First Lieut. William Vincent Laws, First Lieut. William J. Doyle First Lieut. Brundy T. Melvin, First Sergt. John T. Morris, Master Sergt. George J. Williams, Master Sergt. Stafford C. Anti-Racial Plan Rejected By U. N. Group

Geneva, Switzerland, Dec. 12 (U.P.). The United Nations Commission on Human Rights today rejected a Soviet proposal to make racial and religious discrimination and propaganda inciting "national hatred" crimes punishable by law.

The proposal was defeated, 10 to 4, with China, Egypt and the Philippines abstaining. Voting for it with Russia were Yugoslavia, Byelo-Russia and the Ukraine. The United States, United Kingdom and France were among the countries voting against the proposal.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, United States delegate, objected that the Soviet proposal implied a legal obligation which would bring "even a slight infringement by an individual under criminal law."

In presenting the idea, Soviet Delegate A. E. Bogomolov said that only by declaring racial discrimination a crime "will we be able to end such acts as lynching of Negroes."

Lord Dukeston of the United Kingdom, said "in plain language" the Soviet proposal meant that a one-party government could discriminate against those with differing political convictions, because there were no provisions for the protection of political opinions.

After violent protest from some delegations, the commission, without a recorded vote, decided not to act on Article I of the proposed human rights convention, which would permit abortions when ordered on medical advice, or if the pregnancy were the result of rape.

Cilean Delegate P. Garcia de la Huerta, a doctor, claimed that women would invoke the rape provision as a means of getting rid of unmanted children, and said that many geniuses had been born to parents of unsound mind.

A representative of the International Federation of Christian Trade Unions called the abortion article "criminal."

Truman Jokingly Promises Panama Trip if Reelected

By The Associated Press

President Truman was quoted for the first time yesterday as speaking of reelection possibilities.

Dr. J. J. Vallarino, the retiring Ambassador from Panama, told White House reporters after bidding goodby to Mr. Truman that the President had told him he might visit Panama "if I am reelected."

Vallarino, emphasizing that he and Mr. Truman had spoken in a jocular vein, related the following exchange:

"I told him that I am going down to Panama to run for President and that if I am elected I wanted him to come down and visit me."

To which he said Mr. Truman replied:

"If I am reelected, maybe I will. It will be fine for our future relations."

Marshall Plan Seen Aiding Anglo-Red Pact

By William J. Humphreys
Copyright, 1947, N. Y. Herald Tribune

Paris, Dec. 12.—Announcement that an Anglo-Russian trade agreement has been worked out in principle is regarded by French officials as only one of a series of rents in the iron curtain.

The French view is that yesterday's statement from the British Board of Trade is further recognition by eastern Europe that Marshall Plan economists have sound objectives in trying to restore continental trade unity and resume profitable business between the industrial west and the agricultural east.

French opinion does not expect any startling overnight developments east of Trieste. But there is a strong feeling here that the countries on the Russian perimeter are becoming increasingly aware that their own prosperity is tied up with the Marshall Plan they rejected last summer.

The recent meeting of the Economic Commission for Europe (ECE) at Geneva is pointed to in official French quarters as proof that there is more political freedom than generally supposed in the Soviet Union's sphere of influence.

All the so-called iron curtain countries, except Bulgaria, Romania and the Soviet Union herself were represented at the Geneva session of the ECE. Purpose of the meeting was to organize a permanent subcommittee on industry and basic products, with greater production and distribution of steel as the primary objective.

Even though the political relations between Moscow and the capitals of the western democracies are not especially cordial, French economists say that the presence of Czechoslovakia, Finland, Hungary, Poland and Yugoslavia at the ECE subcommittee's organization meeting was a nod in the direction of Marshall Plan thinking.

The five iron curtain countries even worked with Marshall Plan statistics during the Geneva conference. This occurred when steel production and distribution were discussed on the basis of inventories taken at Paris last summer. The 16 nations that finally elected to petition for Marshall Plan aid had met here at that time to fix their needs.

Equally important to French diplomatic opinion is the attitude of the western democratic members of the ECE face to face with the Soviet Union and its eastern satellites. There was no objection, it was reported here, when the ECE decided to send observers to eastern Europe to search for surpluses.

Recent developments in the Marshall Plan emergency recovery program (ERP) indicates to French opinion that the United States Government now is actively fostering east-west trade relations, as long as those relations are mutual.

Authority to Roll Back Prices Proposed by Schwellenbach

dertook to provide the concrete answer.

It took the form of sections to be included in a price control bill, and specified what commodities could be included and what the criteria were for application of ceilings.

Schwellenbach's draft permitted ceilings to be imposed on those commodities which were "essential items" or which "basically affect" the cost of living and the costs of agricultural or industrial production, or which are essential to the United States foreign policy.

Limiting Factors

In short, this would include virtually every important item bought and sold.

The draft then proposed that a price ceiling could be imposed only when:

1. The commodity was in short supply. A list of factors to be considered in determining when an item was in short supply was appended.

2. Its price had risen "unreasonably" above the levels of June, 1947.

Not Shown to Truman

Under those terms, only a relatively slight "rollback" would be possible, it appeared. Average prices of consumer items making up the moderate income family's purchases have risen from June 15 until October 15 (the latest figure available) by 4.3 per cent.

Schwellenbach said he would soon submit a companion draft to the House Banking Committee on wage controls.

At his press conference, Schwellenbach said they had not been submitted to the President. They apparently did not constitute the price control bill which Mr. Truman told a press conference on Thursday would soon be sent to Capitol Hill.

But, Schwellenbach said, he hoped the President would approve his "standards" for inclusion in the Administration bill. He added that they had been okayed by an interdepartmental staff working on the inflation-control program.

Other major developments yesterday in the anti-inflation situation:

1. Senator Taft disclosed that the GOP Policy Committee has drawn up a long-range inflation control program which will be presented to a caucus of the 51 Republican Senators today.

He declined to disclose details of the plan, other than to indicate it was pegged on voluntary action, and included all of Wolcott's bill except the last point, relating to gold reserves.

2. Federal Reserve Board chairman Marriner S. Eccles told the Senate Banking Committee that his agency had "never been consulted" by Wolcott on the gold reserve portion of his bill. Previously, he had said that the section was meaningless in its probable effect.

White House Clarification

3. A White House spokesman sought to set the record straight about the President's views on relaxing antitrust provisions.

On Thursday, Mr. Truman vehemently affirmed to a press conference that he would never permit such relaxation. But an Administration bill, submitted by Commerce Secretary Harriman to the Congress, contained a waiver of antitrust prosecution in voluntary agreements relating to allocations and priorities.

The White House official pointed out that the Harriman bill was narrowly limited and provided immunity only when the agreements were submitted to the Attorney General and approved by him. The Wolcott bill, however, contains no such restrictions.

The President, he continued, would accept the relaxation to the extent it provided for Justice Department review.

What the President wants to emphasize, he added, is that he reaffirms his support and approval of the antitrust laws and his opposition to any attempt to weaken them.

"I can't see the Attorney General approving any proposition that would break down the antitrust laws," this official said.

Horse Car Returns To Use in Baltimore

Baltimore, Dec. 12 (AP).—The 1859 horse car at Baltimore's sesquicentennial exposition was back in business today.

Hearing the bell clanging and children clambering aboard, officials investigated. They found a 9-year-old boy acting as conductor and charging a penny a fare.

the basis of present information, if Senator Taft were the Republican candidate, I would vote for him in preference to President Truman."

Senator Taft's adherents kept quiet, but it was obvious that they wished Wallace had embraced somebody else.

The Democrats have adopted a policy of giving Wallace the silent treatment. This is based on the theory that to argue with him would be to give him a build-up at a time when, in their opinion, he is losing followers rapidly.

Senator J. Howard McGrath of Rhode Island, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, said yesterday that he would never seek to appease Wallace if it meant a compromise of the party's principles. He said, at the same time, that he had no intention of reading anybody out of the party. The door was open, he said, to all persons willing to support in good faith the party's platform and candidates.

Asked about Wallace's statement in Buffalo about preferring Senator Taft to President Truman, McGrath said "That's his privilege." He added:

"I doubt that there are any true liberals in the United States who will follow that course."

4 Submit 'Bids' On Md. Airport

Cumberland, Md., Dec. 12 (AP).—The Municipal Airport Commission has been unable to agree on proposals for the operation of the field and has turned over to Cumberland's mayor and council four "bids" for leasing the facility on a "non-exclusive" basis.

Cumberland Airways, Inc., headed by William J. Graham of Pittsburgh, has had an exclusive operating contract at the airport but members of the commission became dissatisfied with the arrangement and voted to end it.

Under all of the proposals, operators other than the firm winning the management contract would be permitted to function at the field and pay fees directly to the city. The facility is located across the Potomac River near Ridgley, W. Va.

Strike Brings 3 Warrants

business agent for the Building Service Employes International Union (AFL).

Schnall charged that two union members, James F. Hogan, 28, of Sterling, Va., and Walsh Robinson, 39, of Alexandria, were walking near Seminary rd. and 36th st., Arlington, when a car containing five nonstrikers pulled up beside them and Tucker stuck a revolver out of a window, saying, "If I see any of you about here again, I'll plug you."

Replying to the management statement that the Fairlington strike is over, Samuel Levine, counsel for Local 82, stated:

"The only time the strike will be over will be when Fairmac recognizes the union. Their continued whistling in the dark will not cause the picket lines to disappear."

The strike at Fairlington is now in its sixth day. Prins said that maintenance workers on the job yesterday received their first pay containing raises granted by the company, which amount to between $100 and $150 annually, about $2 to $3 a week. In addition, he said, the workers are receiving free life insurance, vacations with pay and a guaranteed annual wage ranging from $1850 for janitors to $2275 for firemen operating automatic equipment.

UMW Leaves AFL Again

nevertheless been a red-hot exponent of the idea of "accouplement," a word which he used to mean the unification of CIO and AFL.

First Trouble in 1935

His first trouble with the AFL began in 1935, when he founded the Committee for Industrial Organization. His campaign was opposed by many AFL craft unions and his plans were voted down by the AFL. But Lewis persisted in them and after 12 months of two-way name-calling, the UMW and nine other unions were suspended by the AFL. The rupture came officially on September 5, 1936.

He established the Congress of Industrial Organizations, but after some years the breach between him and CIO President Philip Murray widened to the point that he pulled out of the CIO in the summer of 1946, again after many months of mutual cursing.

The UMW was independent until in January of 1946 he "reaccoupled" with the AFL, with the Lewis-Green friendship proclaimed as once again warm and tender.

But it cooled.

to start interim aid flowing before Congress passes the implementing appropriations. In the case of France, interim relief is already nearly two weeks overdue.

Eaton disclosed that conferees reached these other agreements at the morning session:

1. Put it up to the President to ease the impact of foreign buying on domestic prices and scarcities as far as possible.

2. Compromised on "offshore" purchases to provide that not more than 10 per cent of aid funds can be used to buy supplies outside continental United States, without restrictions on the purchase price. There would be no limit on "offshore" purchases, however, in cases where goods could be acquired more cheaply abroad than in this country.

3. Petroleum and petroleum products, in any event, would be purchased outside the United States to the maximum extent possible.

4. Accepted the Senate's March 31, 1948, termination date for the program in lieu of the House proposal to end it June 30, 1948.

Eaton said the conference was "in a mess" because the House "made a farm bloc bill out of this legislation." He apparently referred chiefly to the wheat carryover tie-up.

W & J College Battles Church Over Religious Tolerance

Washington, Pa., Dec. 12 (U.P.).—The calm campus of Washington & Jefferson College was rocked today as the Presbyterian Church and college trustees battled over the issue of religious tolerance.

The trustees, charging that the church was trying to "usurp" their authority, turned down a "set of standards" proposed by the church which would require the college to hire only active members of "some evangelical Christian church."

This requirement apparently would bar as professors members of the Jewish and Catholic faiths. The church also asked that the college curriculum contain Bible study as a required course.

Meanwhile, sensational charges of promiscuous drinking on campus were made by ministers of the small town. One, a Presbyterian, refused use of his church auditorium for services on Homecoming Day.

College President James H. Case, jr., condemned such rumors as an "outright and damnable lie."

Rumors which rocked the campus and the sleepy little town of Washington included these: That college officials encouraged beer parties; that teachers frequently held drinking parties with students; that drinking orgies went on in the men's dormitory.

On Thursday a whitewashed sign appeared on a campus walk. It read, "We want Christianity—not Case." But Case apparently has the support of a majority of the student body, and the college newspaper, "The Red and Black," commended the trustees for their stand on behalf of "complete religious tolerance."

Case said the school probably would be stricken from the church's approval list and lose a $5000 yearly donation from the Board of Christian Education.

Dr. Case revealed that the college had been asked to adopt the church rules after Dr. Faye Campbell of the Board of Christian Education had written him, pointing out that rumors of drinking at the college had reached him, and, if true, church support might be withdrawn.

Hamilton, Elmira, and Wabash Colleges have also refused to adopt the church's standards. W. & J. has dropped a Bible course, but has made compulsory a course in comparative religion.

Twin Thieves Make Off With $2000 in Furs

New York, Dec. 12 (U.P.).—Double trouble appeared last night and walked off with $2000 worth of his furs, Benjamin Adelson told police today.

The fur dealer said he was closing his store when 200-pound, 6-foot twins broke in and loaded five of his fur coats into a waiting automobile. He said they appeared to be about 35 years old and were dressed exactly alike in brown shoes, hats, topcoats and suits.

Judge Deals Justice To Namesakes of Great

St. Louis, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—Bearers of famous names enlivened the day in the court of Circuit Court Waldo C. Mayfield.

"Yesterday I sent Thomas Jefferson Campbell to the penitentiary," he said. The day before two defendants were Benjamin Franklin and Ulysses Grant.

"I wonder if any more famous names will come before me today."

Man-Made 'Quakes Planned To Get Earth's Crust Secrets

Man-made earthquakes will be used in a series of experiments to uncover secrets of the earth's crust, the Carnegie Institution reported yesterday.

In connection with the Navy, the project will use war surplus explosives to send shocks through the layers of granite and basalt comprising a large part of the top 30 miles of the earth's surface. By studying what happens to these shock waves as they pass through the rock, it is hoped to learn more than is now extant about the strength, density and rigidity of the various strata. Shocks will be recorded on sensitive instruments.

Small Tests Already Made

Small preliminary experiments already have been made along these lines, chiefly to develop instruments for the major tests. Eventually it is hoped to carry out extensive studies in such areas as the Appalchian Range, the Caribbean, the Mississippi Valley and selected parts of the Rocky Mountains.

Navy support also has been enlisted in a tentative project to determine the earth's temperature and electric conductivity at a depth of some 12½ miles. This would involve laying heavy copper cable loop more than a mile in diameter and sending electric impulses though it.

The strength of the current thus induced in the earth would depend upon the conductivity of the rocks deep under the surface and, since conductivity depends largely upon temperature, this factor also could be determined.

To Determine Formation

Still another phase of Carnegie scientists efforts to uncover the earth's mysteries has included development of a tiny steel cylinder in which pressures equivalent to those 5 miles within the earth may be reproduced. Only seven-eighths of an inch long, this cylinder can maintain pressures up to 30,000 pounds per square inch, under which chemicals can be introduced to determine how certain common rocks were formed.

Another experiment, the institute reported, has determined that the magnetism of the earth has changed very little in the last 30,000 years. After reaching this conclusion by testing silt deposited by retreating glaciers at the end of the last Ice Age, researchers hoped eventually to check up on the situation "millions of years" ago.

Additional Reports

Other matters reported by the Carnegie Institution included:

1. Occurance more than a year ago of a gigantic "explosion" on the sun which reached an altitude of 1,064,185 miles. This phenomenon was photographed at Mount Wilson Observatory and calculations were only recently completed.

2. Sunspot disturbances last May were the most violent since May, 1778.

3. Dr. Horace Wilson of Mount Wilson Observatory discovered an apparent relationship between magnetism and rotation of heavenly bodies which may contribute to study of the origin of the planetary systems.

4. New evidence in support of the hypothesis that cancer may originate through changes in the cells concerned with transmission of hereditary characteristics. Dr. Milislav Demerec of the institution's genetics laboratory at Cold Spring Harbor, N. Y., found that certain chemicals which were known to be capable of producing cancers effected genetic changes in fruit flies.

Dr. Vannevar Bush, president of the institution, reported that its period of limited wartime experimentation has been concluded and said:

"Immediately before us are sure prospects for coherent, consistent, vigorous work in our special fields of endeavor, with high assurance that the contributions of the institution to the general welfare will be substantial."

He pointed out that Federal assistance to research now is being devoted to support of fundamental research and most of the wartime secrecy has been removed. He held the effects of present availability of Federal funds for expansion of research facilities in universities to be generally salutary, but warned against expansion for expansion's sake alone.

Evans Sees McGrath On Democratic Post

By The Associated Press

M. R. Evans, Louisville, Ky., banker, said yesterday he had had some conversations with Chairman McGrath of the Democratic National Committee whether to accept the post of committee treasurer, but nothing has been decided.

Evans told a reporter he will see McGrath again before he leaves the city tomorrow.

The post of treasurer has been vacant ever since George Killion of California resigned several months ago.

Evans is a native of Kansas City, Mo. He served in President Truman's artillery battery during the First World War.

3 Children Killed

Marion, Ind., Dec. 12 (U.P.).—Three children were killed today in an explosion and fire which destroyed their makeshift home. The victims were Vickie Lynn Bridenthal, 5; Johnny Bridenthal, 3, and Melody Saylors, 10 months. Mrs. William Saylors, mother of the children, had just stepped outside their trailer when an oil stove exploded.

Photos Show Virus Attack On Bacteria

By Alton L. Blakeslee

Philadelphia, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—Photographs showing a tiny virus invading and actually killing a living cell were presented today to the Electron Microscope Society of America.

The pictures may well mark a milestone in biology and medicine, for they supply a new method of attacking such mysteries as flu, polio, cancer and growth processes. Some pictures achieve new high magnifications of 200,000 to 300,000 times actual life size.

Some viruses kill bacteria and are beneficial. One of these kills bacteria in the intestinal tract, and this is the virus shown in action in the pictures.

Double Lens Used

One group of pictures was taken by Dr. James Hillier of the Radio Corporation of America laboratories at Princeton, N. J. Dr. Hillier developed a new double lens that doubles or triples the seeing power of the electron microscope for many types of objects. He made the virus pictures in collaboration with Dr. Stuart Mudd and Dr. Andrew Smith of the University of Pennsylvania.

The viruses are round and only 1/400,000,000th of an inch in diameter. They look like tadpoles, for they have little tails.

Step-by-step pictures show the viruses around the bacteria, on the outside, and later pictures show some inside the cell. The cell bursts open. Both bacteria and viruses are killed by being put under the beam of electrons in the microscope, but what happens can be followed by using bacteria cultures at different stages of being attacked by viruses.

Process Still Mystery

Whether the viruses punch into the cell wall to invade the bacterium, or whether they kill by some chemical action is not yet known. Exactly how they multiply, reproducing themselves, has not been determined, but new techniques may solve this puzzle soon.

Similar pictures were shown by Dr. R. W. G. Wyckoff, scientist-director at the National Institute of Health, Bethesda, Md. He and Dr. O. F. Edwards had studied the same kind of bacteria and virus, and he used a different strain of virus. These viruses don't have tails.

His pictures show something astonishing. When the bacteria cell becomes a mass of viruses, the viruses form an exact criss-cross pattern. This pattern has always been formed. It may not have shown up with the tadpole-shaped viruses because their tails may have interfered with the pattern.

Pictures Magnified

Wyckoff's pictures not only are blown up 200,000 times, but also can show objects in three dimensions, another great aid in determining the structure of some of the smallest bricks of living matter.

He used new atomic hand grenades—bits of uranium, platinum or palladium which vaporize when heated, sending out streams of their atoms in all directions, like an exploding grenade.

Some of these atoms, shooting downward at an angle, strike the glass or plastic film holding the particles being studied. They form a thin film, sticking to the particles and to the platform on which they sit. Shadows are cast behind the upright particles, like a tree casts a shadow in sunlight. The shadows are areas where the flying atoms never did hit because they were blocked by the upright particles.

When the specimen then is looked at in the electron microscope, the particles seem to have three dimensions. The shadows tell how tall they are.

Uruguayan Cabinet Resigns After Castro

Montevideo, Uruguay, Dec. 12 (U.P.).—The entire cabinet resigned today following yesterday's resignation of Foreign Minister Mateo Marques Castro. His quitting was believed to have been prompted by Congress' rejection of a $1,800,000 appropriation to reorganize the diplomatic and consular services.

The new cabinet is expected to include representatives of political parties other than the Colorado Batillista since President Luis Batlle is known to desire broader support in Congress.

Rings Valued at $1600 Stolen From Building Firm Office

Milton Bass, construction company official yesterday told police burglars had stolen three diamond rings, valued at $1600 which he had planned to give his wife as a surprise Christmas gift.

The rings were stolen from a third-floor cabinet in the offices of the Byrne Organization, contracting firm at 2607 Connecticut ave. nw., Bass said. Thieves apparently climbed a fire escape and forced a fourth floor window, police said.

Bass, who lives at 3601 Connecticut ave. nw., said the rings had been sent to him on approval by a Norfolk, Va., jewelry firm.

Groceries and clothes valued at $60 were stolen from a car parked near her home, Helen Williams of 472 G st. nw., reported.

More than 100 brass window pulls valued at $75 were stolen from the Lucy Diggs Slowe School, 14th and Jackson sts. ne., Victor Horn, superintendent of the Harwood Nebel Construction Co., told police.

Royal H. Garlock reported theft of a $53 camera from the Spotlight Camera Shop, 1232 14th st. nw.

More than a score of other housebreakings and thefts were reported.

Truman Gives Landon View On Europe

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

President Truman hopes Congress will authorize the European recovery program for four years and perhaps longer.

This is what former Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas quoted the President as having told him during a White House conversation yesterday. And Landon added that the President had given him permission to tell it to reporters.

The 1936 Republican presidential candidate visited the White House soon after an announcement that the President had invited congressional leaders of both parties to review European relief and recovery on Monday. The President's long-awaited message to Congress on the "Marshall Plan" is expected to follow shortly.

Touches on Controversy

The Landon - Truman talk touched on one of the many controversial issues involved in long-range effort to get Europe back on its feet.

Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) and other Republican leaders in Congress have argued that American commitments should be on a year-to-year basis. The Administration, however, wants a four-year authorization so that both Europe and the United States can make their plans accordingly.

Landon, apparently, agrees with the Administration view. He had this to say of his talk with the President:

"I did remark to him that I had said in several speeches recently that whatever is done to implement the Marshall Plan or the European Recovery Plan ought not to be done on a yearly basis or on a temporary basis.

"Sticking Out Necks"

"I told him these people in Europe are sticking out their necks; that their very lives are at stake and they ought to know what they can count on."

After telling reporters of the President's agreeemnt, and of his permission to relay it to the press, Landon talked again of the Europeans.

"These people," he said, "are in peril of their lives and should have this assurance."

The recovery program drawn up by the 16 European nations at Paris extended through 1951, with steadily diminishing need of American help year by year. The program to be outlined in the President's message has been based on a similar time-table.

Appropriation Limited

Actual appropriations, of course, would be limited to a single fiscal year, and there is no thought in the executive departments of asking this Congress to appropriate beyond the 1948 fiscal year which ends on June 30, 1949.

Senators invited to the Monday conference are Chairman Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.), of the Foreign Relations Committee, Tom Connally (D., Tex.), the ranking minority member, Republican leader Wallace H. White (Me.) and Democratic leader Alben Barkley (Ky.).

From the House side the President invited Chairman Charles A. Eaton (R., N. J.) of the Foreign Affairs Committee, Sol Bloom (D., N. Y.), the ranking minority member, Speaker Joseph W. Martin (R., Mass.) and former Speaker Sam Rayburn (D., Tex.).

Senator Taft, chairman of the Republican Policy Committee, was not invited although he attended the President's last meeting with Congressional leaders.

Progress Made In Cleaning Up Potomac Told

By Frank Wilder
Post Reporter

Six years of organized effort to clean up the yellow waters of the Potomac River are beginning to bear fruit, but from its upper reaches in Pennsylvania down through Washington the watershed is still a challenge in pollution.

This situation, affecting hundreds of thousands of people in the 14,000-square-mile valley, was outlined here yesterday as the Commission on the Potomac River Basin closed its quarterly meeting at the Mayflower Hotel.

The new obstacles facing the engineers on pollution abatement, it became clear, are the great wartime increase in Greater Washington population and the lack of money.

Capacity Too Small

The Potomac—a good river because of its great capacity for assimilating pollution by itself—can no longer handle the sewage that Greater Washington's swollen population dumps into it daily. Engineers have long presumed it can assimilate the pollution of 500,000 people. Today, it receives the waste of some 900,000.

One goal of the commission—to make Potomac waters at least safe for swimming, where possible—is further hampered by encroachment of oxygen-producing areas by the projects built on filled land. An example is National Airport built in Four Mile Run.

Harold E. Kemp, District Sanitary Engineer and vice chairman of the commission, warned against this danger yesterday in estimating that it would cost District taxpayers more than 26 million dollars to install additional facilities to meet excessive encroachment.

Looking toward an area population of 1,800,000 by 1960, Kemp said the District has available $1,370,000 for building new sewage treatment facilities.

Progress Described

Harry Hall, chief engineer of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission, depicted a rosier side in terms of the progress achieved in recent years.

In just a few days, he said, the Rock Creek trunk sewer will be completed, carrying sewage for treatment at the Blue Plains plant and freeing many streams of pollution. Construction of the Potomac River interceptor, a line running from Cabin John to the District line, has just begun. This will carry off sewage that normally flows into the Potomac and take it to the Blue Plains plant. Scheduled for completion next spring is the Northwest branch, which will serve Maryland north of the District as far as Burnt Mills.

The Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission, Hall told the gathering, oversees an area of 200 square miles and a population of more than 200,000. It provides sewers for 150,000 people and serves 190,000.

Eighty per cent of the sewered area, he said, has its waste water handled by the four sewage treatment plants that serve the area.

Commission Chairman Raymond V. Long noted that the wide representation of local officials at this quarterly meeting boded well for the future sanitation in the Potomac.

The commission, representing the District of Columbia, Maryland, Pennsylvania and the Federal Government, set its next meeting at Harrisburg, Pa., probably in May.

Winchester, Va., Dec. 12.—J. B. Lewis will be installed as master of White Hall Grange and R. L. Bowers as master of Middletown Grange at a joint meeting tonight in Middletown. Great Falls Grange of Fairfax will conduct the installations.

Va. Officials' Legislative Group Elects

The Inter-Association Council of Virginia public officials held its first meeting yesterday in the Arlington County Courthouse and elected Trial Justice W. Francis Binford of Prince Georges County president.

Named vice president was H. Bruce Green, Arlington County clerk, who suggested formation of the council in August, 1946, at a meeting of the Virginia County Clerks' Association.

The group was organized with the aim of modernizing and improving Virginia government, and to sponsor unified legislation in the General Assembly.

Elected secretary-treasurer was E. Glenn Jordan, commissioner of revenue of Richmond. S. S. Kellam, treasurer of Princess Anne County, and S. J. Thompson, commonwealth's attorney of Campbell County were chosen to serve on the executive committee.

After a discussion of its legislative aims, the council agreed to meet again in Richmond January 7, next, to formulate a legislative policy.

The council also approved a constitution and by-laws. Associations represented are clerks, treasurers, sheriffs and city sergeants, commissioners of revenue, trial justices and Commonwealth's attorneys. Three members of each association make up the council's membership.

Church Given Documents of Woman Saint

By The Associated Press

A group of private papers of Mother Frances Xavier Cabrini, the first American saint, which were repaired and preserved for posterity, were returned yesterday to Apostolic Delegate Giovanni Amleto Cicognani here.

The papers were put in order and "laminated" by Mrs. Jane R. Moss, repair technician of the Hall of Records, Annapolis, Md.

Dr. Morris L. Radoff, Maryland State archivist, had arranged with church authorities to prepare the papers for preservation here.

Included in the documents were telegrams—possibly the first ever sent by a saint canonized by the Roman Catholic Church, and letters, some of which were typed and signed by Mother Cabrini and others written in her own hand.

Most of the papers dealt with church matters.

Mother Cabrini was born in Italy and founded the Sacred Heart Mission, which spread to various parts of the world. She died in Chicago in 1917.

A statue of Mother Cabrini, who was canonized July 7, 1946, was unveiled Monday in St. Peter's Basilica in Vatican City.

Panama Police Hurt 8 in Row Over U.S. Bases

Panama City, Dec. 12 (U.P.).—At least eight students were injured, one of them critically, when mounted police late today charged into demonstrators protesting National Assembly ratification of an agreement leasing to the United States 14 armed bases on Panamanian territory.

Mounted police used tear gas bombs, sabers and clubs in an attempt to disperse some 3000 students who, disregarding a ban by the mayor, gathered in De Lesseps Square to demand the rejection of the agreement with the United States.

Fully armed police detachments moved into Santa Ana Square tonight to control fresh demonstrations.

Va. Officials Discuss Buying Natural Bridge

Richmond, Va., Dec. 12 (AP).—Representatives of the State and of Natural Bridge of Virginia, Inc., will meet here Tuesday morning to resume discussions looking toward possible purchase of the famed bridge by the Commonwealth, William A. Wright, chairman of the Virginia Conservation Commission, said today.

A resolution of the 1946 General Assembly set up the commission to find out what type of purchase deal might be possible.

Remember The Finns?

On Friday a tiny item appeared in our news columns which must have stirred our readers' memories. It merely related that the Finns had made their usual half-yearly payment on their "war" debt. Gallant little Finland! The country that believes in living up to its obligations! This is the twenty-fourth year in which the money has been forthcoming. It has been the only constant phenomenon in the turbulent life of Finland since the settlement was signed. At that time she was an infant of 5, a new country who had been freed by the new Russia. By the time she had attained youth she had become an ideal commonwealth. In 1939 she started to undergo trial by fire just because she happened to be in the way of the big fellows, and it left her prostrate. Even the signer of the debt agreement, Risto Ryti, is in jail, languishing there at Russia's insistence as a war criminal. All he did was to do his part in the defense of Finland. Hasn't the time arrived to let bygones be bygones, including the debt, and with further payments to do something tangible in Finland's behalf to show that in America's opinion the obligation has been more than honorably discharged?

Sequel In France

The French crisis has by no means ended, but one fact at least is now fully clear: the Communists have suffered a disastrous and perhaps decisive defeat. On Monday of this week they abandoned the program of strikes and sabotage whereby they had hoped to precipitate a revolution. The important point, of course, is that the capitulation of the Communists was in no sense voluntary. By the end of last week it was apparent that in its efforts to thwart the insurrection, the Schuman government could count upon the support of the bulk of the French laboring classes. Wherever they could do so without danger of Communist reprisals, men were returning to work. Many of the strike calls issued at the instigation of the Communists were generally disobeyed. The mobilization of hundreds of thousands of reservists to be placed under the command of M. Moch, Minister of the Interior, proceeded without difficulty, despite incitements to mutiny.

Now the Communist leaders in France, as elsewhere, are men who have been carefully trained in the techniques of revolution. They were well aware that revolutionary tempo cannot be accelerated indefinitely. In other words, they knew that an active (as distinct from an ideological) revolution must succeed in its earlier phases if it is to succeed at all. In this case the attempt at revolution is said to have been undertaken at the insistence of Moscow against the better judgment of MM. Thorez and Duclos.

But to say that the Communists have been defeated is not, of course, to say that the present French government has emerged any stronger from the contest. In the first place, the Schuman government exists by the suffrance of General de Gaulle. In the second place, it is clear that the government has passed from the labor crisis to a diplomatic crisis equally pregnant with explosive international possibilities. In its conflict with the Communists the Schuman government found it necessary to expel from France 19 Russians who appear to have been supervising the strike disorders. In reprisal, the Soviet government announced the expulsion by Russia of the French commissioners who had been attempting to arrange the repatriation of French citizens now interned in Soviet territory.

As another act of reprisal, the Soviet government has abruptly ended all negotiations for the contemplated Franco-Russian trade agreement. This is a serious and important development, not merely because it deprives France of all hope of obtaining breadstuffs from Russia, but also because it amounts to a complete repudiation of the alliance between the two countries. It may be recalled that the Franco-Soviet alliance was concluded in wartime by General de Gaulle's Free French committee, which the Kremlin was the first to recognize.

It is unlikely, however, that all these consequences were foreseen by the Schuman government when it decided to expel the Russians. Thus the events of the past fortnight may be interpreted as proof that France has abandoned the policy, instituted by General de Gaulle, of attempting to maintain a balance between the west and Russia, and has irrevocably united her destiny to that of the United States.

Marshall Or Royall

Another argument for the unification of our interests in Germany under the State Department has just been provided. In London on Wednesday Secretary Marshall, in what seems to be the showdown with the Soviet Union, demanded a halt of Soviet seizures of German capital assets in eastern Germany. The news arrived in Washington while members of the Senate Appropriations Committee were discussing and criticizing British-American removal of capital assets in western Germany. Present was Army Secretary Royall. Both committee and Secretary seemed to imagine that the news from London was confirmation of their anti-dismantlement view. Whatever may be said about the Senate committee, Secretary Royall, in whose department control of Germany rests, knows better. But he made his position so unclear that he is reported to have said "the Army agrees fully with your main thesis," as if in reply to Senator Bridges' statement that the dismantling process was the "most weird and stupid policy that could be undertaken." Though this was not question and answer, the fact remains that the Bridges statement was the "main thesis" of the Appropriations Committee's discussion.

First, as to the Russians in eastern Germany: what they are doing there is plain looting without a shadow of justification in the Potsdam agreement. They have been at it since the Potsdam Conference—not only in their German zone but also all over eastern Europe. Molotov's retort that the Marshall charge was "unfounded" was a barefaced prevarication. The removal to Soviet Russia of anything detachable, let alone capital assets, is so open that one of the witnesses was Secretary Marshall's predecessor, Secretary Byrnes. Mr. Byrnes' train from Berlin to Stuttgart a year ago was held up to allow a Russian train of flatcars loaded with all kinds of machinery go by on its way to the Soviet Union. In short, in eastern Germany the Soviet is acting unilaterally in defiance of Allied agreements. On the contrary, dismantlement is being carried out in western Germany in conformity with Allied agreements. It is governed by the Potsdam agreement on reparations as worked out by the subsequent 18-nation conference in Paris and the British-American bizonal agreement last August.

The opponents of dismantlement contend that the dismantling is injurious to the revival both of Germany and of Europe. This is not the case. On the contrary, the program is beneficial to the Economic Recovery Program. The 16 nations who are participating in the ERP have estimated that they will need several billion dollars worth of individual capital equipment in connection with their reconstruction programs. A key item is steel manufacturing machinery. Much of this is located in western Germany, and, because of coal and other shortages, the plants scheduled for removal as reparation under the dismantlement plan could not, if they were retained in Germany, be put into operation for many years to come. If the plants were not removed, says General Clay, American commander in chief in Germany, they would merely rust away without doing either Germany or countries entitled to reparation any good. In other words, recovery in Europe would be furthered and not impeded by these plant removals to western European nations at the same time that their reparations are being satisfied, and to that extent the American taxpayer would be relieved of his present burden on relief account.

The agitation against dismantlement is a sign of the loss of perspective as a result of the crisis with Russia. Reparation is not a problem for the United States. It is an issue that already has been decided by 18 nations. These are already disturbed by the lag in removals, and would be justified in calling this country to sharp account if we sought to renege on the Allied agreement. Already they are irked that the program of dismantlement has been toned down from original specifications. They see the problem in political as well as economic terms. The alternative to dismantlement in the present context of discussion is to build up (and finance) the employment of all the bloated capital resources which fed German militarism.

To be sure, the position insofar as concerns Soviet receipts of plants in western Germany must be reexamined if the London Conference breaks up. That would go without saying. Only nine plants to date, we understand, have so far been allocated since August, and none transferred, so that no actual problem in this respect has yet arisen. Nor, if the program were fully carried out, would the Soviet get more than 10 per cent of the dismantled plants under the Potsdam Agreement without compensation. But the conference is still in being. And on the very day that Secretary Royall was agreeing with "the main thesis" of the antidismantlers, Secretary Marshall was extolling the sanctity of international agreements as a weapon against Moscow's behavior in eastern Germany. The conflict in the Administration's approach is the result of the present duality of administration.

Red Faces

Although Mr. Edwin W. Pauley may be personally beyond blushing, his conduct can scarcely have failed to crimson the countenances of some of his sponsors and supporters—especially the most ardent and persistent of them all, the President of the United States. Whatever President Truman's political obligations to Mr. Pauley may have been, we should think he could now consider them fully discharged. The President, it will be remembered, sought some time ago to reward Mr. Pauley for his services as treasurer of the Democratic National Committee by nominating him to be Undersecretary of the Navy. The project came to naught at the time through disclosure of Mr. Pauley's lively interest in the oil deposits off the shore of California, to which the Federal Government was even then asserting a claim made valid since that time by decision of the Supreme Court. Mr. Pauley's utter inability to discern the impropriety of accepting a post in which his official duty would be in direct conflict with his private interest should have warned the President of his temperamental unfitness for public service.

But Mr. Truman's loyalty to political friends is more passionate than prudent. Having failed to get Mr. Pauley through the front door of the Nation's defense establishment, he eased him in via the rear with a remarkable absence of fanfare. Secretary Forrestal's complexion must be a bit ruddy over his own assent to this stratagem. But it is probably pallid in comparison with the President's when one considers the disingenuousness of Mr. Pauley's pretense that he was strictly a private citizen when he was speculating in grain. Mr. Pauley resigned from the Department of State as reparations commissioner on March 7 and was not appointed an assistant to the Secretary of the Army until September 3; but he was in the interim, and still is, a special adviser to Secretary Marshall on reparations. If this does not seem to the President sufficient cause for embarrassment, then let him reflect on Mr. Pauley's interesting ideas respecting speculation. "Let us not be deluded," says the President's protege, "by the pretense that trading in commodities is the cause of the price situation, even though certain loose charges to that effect have been tossed about by some political parties and candidates." Whose loose charges? What political candidates? Mr. Pauley, we fear, has at last been guilty of the ultimate and unforgivable political sin of ingratitude—this is to say of biting the hand that fed him.

Presidential Blunder

President Truman made a bad blunder when he told his press conference that if he could help it there would be no relaxation of the antitrust laws during his Administration. This impulsive declaration must have created consternation among the President's own following, since the Administration-sponsored program for controlling inflation provides for modification of the antitrust laws to permit competing concerns to become parties to price-reducing and allocation agreements.

Obviously the President's reiterated assurance of intention to enforce the antitrust laws to the limit was directed against the proposal indorsed by the Republicans to exempt from antitrust proceedings various types of voluntary agreements permitting allocation and inventory control of scarce materials. While the Administration plan provides for standby governmental controls that are lacking in the Republican plan, the latter also provides safeguards against agreements not in the public interest by making such agreements subject to approval by the President and forbidding approval of price-fixing agreements. We are forced to conclude, therefore, that the President had not read or did not understand the antitrust immunity provisions of either the Republican measure or the Administration bill when he delivered his sweeping pronouncement. His precipitancy in passing judgment has not only given opponents of his own anti-inflation program a new weapon of attack but it has also put the supporters of his own program on the defensive.

This is not the first time that the President has balled up his anti-inflation program by rash utterance. When he outlined his voluntary food conservation plan to the press he classed all forms of price control and rationing as police state methods. Of course, when he recommended a return to such forms of control a few weeks later Senator Taft and other critics remembered and quoted those ill-considered remarks. The President is no doubt tempted to respond quickly and decisively to questions addressed to him by the press, since silence or vacillation creates an impression of ignorance or timidity. Nevertheless, public officials are under an obligation to weigh their words before voicing sweeping opinions that they may later have to retract. We had hoped that the President had learned that lesson. Evidently he hasn't.

Equal Protection

The refusal of the United States Supreme Court to uphold the conviction of murder against Eddie Patton commands attention not for the substance of the decision itself but for the unprincipled flouting of the law by the Supreme Court of Mississippi which is once more exposed. "Sixty-seven years ago," Justice Black wrote for a unanimous bench, "this Court held that State exclusion of Negroes from grand and petit juries solely because of their race denied Negro defendants in criminal cases the equal protection of the laws required by the Fourteenth Amendment." That decision has often been repeated in subsequent cases. But the Mississippi courts are still resisting it.

In the present case the Mississippi Supreme Court fell back upon the obvious fallacy that there was no discrimination because only 12 or 13 male Negro electors had qualified as against 5500 to 6000 male white electors, creating a 400-to-1 chance that a Negro's name would appear on the venire. This is a lame attempt to cover up the uncontradicted showing that no Negro had served on a grand or petit jury in a criminal court in Mississippi for 30 years or more. We think it is high time for the courts of Mississippi to realize that the State in which they function is a part of the United States and that the equal-protection clause means what it says.

Judge Raedy's License

The record is now complete with conclusive evidence that Traffic Director Keneipp considers residents of the District most gullible or he would not have issued the statement attributed to him, that Judge Ellen Raedy was permitted to take a "special test" for her driver's license in the director's office "because her court duties made it difficult for her to appear during the examiner's regular hours."

It is believed that silence on the part of the director would have been more appropriate, unless he was willing to publish the true reason for granting such special favor, i. e., because Judge Raedy is who she is, or because she is a person occupying an influential position. If the office hours of the judge (10 a. m. to 1, 2 or 3 p. m.) justify the giving of such "special test," what does Mr. Keneipp do for Mr. Average Citizen whose duties keep him occupied from 8 to 5, and who also finds it difficult to appear for a test during regular hours? Does he show like consideration, or does Mr. A. C. stand in line or cool his heels until his name is called?

It is not the purpose of this letter to criticize the director for making exceptions, but poorly manufactured excuses indicate his evaluation of the public's reasoning ability, serve no useful purpose and are far worse than no excuse at all; furthermore, such excuses may also subject the recipient of the special favor to further unjust condemnation. What is now needed is some evidence which will convince Mr. Keneipp that residents of the District prefer silence or the truth to baloney, tripe or steer.

Palestine Partition

Are we, in order to satisfy the persistent demands of Zionist Jews, whose total number cannot be over 8 to 10 million of the human family, going to force on the world another war, or a Middle East muddle?

One difficulty in this entire wrangle over Palestine is that unless a person agrees with the Zionist movement from tip to toe, he is not considered a friend of the Jews . . . I do not believe that Zionism is the scriptural answer to the words of the Hebrew prophets. I did not find that the colonists in Palestine, who were establishing themselves there, either knew or cared about biblical history. They were commercial, and while not antireligious were certainly non-religious.

Our Nation frowns—or should frown—on any hyphenated relation to church or state of our citizenry. If a man claims any location other than this country as his homeland, he places himself where it is hard to defend his position. It will not be easy to fight anti-Semitism if the present Zionist program is carried to its obvious end.

This was the objection which the late Hon. Oscar S. Straus noted as we were fellow travelers to Palestine in 1924. He saw how it would react upon his own people. He thought, furthermore, that since Palestine was a "holy land" to three religions, no one of them should solely control it. His idea was the internationalizing of the Holy Land.

While the Arabs object to any movement that would separate Palestine from the Arabian Peninsula, this may be said of the Arabs: they have protected the so-called "holy places" since and before crusader days. Many judges and other prominent Arabs both in Palestine and Egypt have become Christians and others send their children to Christian schools. There is no conflict between the Arab and the Christian in the Near East, at least in Palestine and Egypt today. Can we say that a change of control will advance or even maintain that relationship? Mistaken Identity

Recent headlines in The Washington Post and other Washington dailies, have made me sufficiently mad to write to you in the hope that you, at least, may stop misleading the public.

"Printers Strike"; "Printers Quit Jobs"; "Printers' Hearing Adjourned." When one reads the news stories under such headlines, one finds that they are concerned with the compositors, not the printers—members of the International Typographical Union, not the International Printers Union.

My dictionary defines a printer as "one who prints books, pamphlets, newspapers, etc." Members of the typographical unions do not print.

The members of the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants Union of North America are the printers.

"Planners Vs. Wreckers"

The conclusion in your December 10 editorial, "Planners vs. Wreckers," that "the Soviet Union should be put on warning that any upset in France and Italy will meet with the implacable resistance of the United States" can be emphasized by consideration of the French colonies.

If France were brought under Communist control, France's colonies would, in the absence of outside intervention, fall under Communist control. These colonies include French Africa, flanking our Mediterranean route to Greece and the Middle East as well as our Atlantic route to South America, French Indo-China on the southern border of China, Martinique and Guadeloupe in the Caribbean, and French Guiana.

Communist control of these last three territories would involve a breach of the Monroe Doctrine, for the Soviet Union would thereby "extend its system" into this hemisphere. Yet Communist control of any of these colonies could be prevented only by forcible intervention.

The safest and surest way to avert this danger is successful and rapid implementation of the Marshall Plan.

"Church and School"

Can advocates of "released time" religious education of the type mentioned prove that it has successfully reduced antagonism toward differences in theolology? It was reaction to such difference that led "religious" adults in an earlier period to seek out heretics to burn at the stake and so enforce belief in their brand of eternal truth.

Just so we find that making children conscious of their devisive creeds does not develop the spirit of peace and brotherly love in them. Rather it develops the false notion that conduct and faith stem from creeds rather than from character training that has its roots in shared experiences. For it is by direct experience that our public schools stress moral principles basic to a democracy—such principles as personal worth and the brotherhood of man.

Is it not more desirable to teach understanding of Johnny as a person—an American citizen—rather than as a Protestant, Catholic, Jew, Seventh Day Adventist, etc? We are rapidly reducing the number of Americans hyphenated by national origin. It is questionable at least to now hyphenate in our public schools along religious lines!

As parents we expect our children in the public schools to study subjects objectively and hope that they will develop a respect for facts. We hope that they will develop reason and the inquiring mind so needed in a free society. Kathleen Fenton in her letter of December 6 is not suggesting that religion be studied objectively as other subjects, without fear, favor or bias. She stresses instead partisan indoctrination in specific creeds, with church teachers imported for the purpose. It is only fair to ask if she would have the philosophy of government taught in separate classes by leaders of the Democratic and Republican parties?

May I call the attention of your readers to the considered judgment of the Public Education Society of San Francisco following a study of released time religious programs in 57 cities of California: "The plan is a failure in California's public schools measured by any conceivable yardstick.

"In most cases neither the teacher or the public has been considered before the released time plan has been put into operation . . . A child is in public school only one ninth of the year, and there is eight ninths of the year, including summer vacations, in which to give weekday religious education. There is little or no excuse for disrupting the school program for released time plans which tend to make the public schools a police arm of the churches."

It is unfortunate that time must be spent in keeping sectarian indoctrination out of the schools when the real problem today is to develop upright citizenship in the children who attend school.

L. D. MacINTYRE,
President, Washington Ethical Society.

Your editorial "Church and School" of December 8 blames the New York Christmas carol affair entirely on released time religious instruction. You state categorically that "wherever this program has been forced upon our public schools, the tensions created . . . have almost invariably resulted in unfortunate manifestations of one kind or another." Can you give examples from a large number of the cities using the program, showing cause and effect. And what force has been used besides the concern of parents for the religious instruction of their children?

Will you cite instances of public school administrators "interesting their classes in the significance of the Jewish or other religious holidays?" While attending public schools in Virginia, North Carolina, New York and the District, I never heard any teacher or school official mention the existence of such holidays.

You say that the program emphasizes and stirs up religious animosities and you definitely imply that the time is spent preaching holy wars, but the news from New York gives no hint of that nor does it seem in keeping with my memories of religious instructions as a child.

The only quotation you give is from a New York school teacher who complains because the children not attending instruction are "most unpopular" to the teachers that have to monitor them. What does that prove?

If released time religious instruction is as bad as you say, it should definitely be kept out of our schools, but do you expect anyone to believe it just because you say so? T. W. COLLIER.

Washington.

Editor's note: The proof that the released time program for religious instruction creates serious disruptions lies in the fact that the Champaign, Ill., case has just been argued by the Supreme Court and another similar case is in progress.

New Charity Pattern

By Malvina Lindsay

Christmas Giving

WHAT MAY be this country's biggest wave of Christmas giving is beginning to roll. How to channel it toward a more American goal than that of Lady Bountiful almsgiving is concerning those trying to encourage the new charity pattern of helping people to help themselves.

The traditional Christmas basket, of course, will go abroad to those desperately in need of food, clothing, blankets. But at home Christmas giving can afford to be more subtle and more democratic. It is already so in large degree. No longer do we have needy children publicly herded together to receive Christmas bounty. Seldom do city trucks openly deliver baskets at doorsteps of the "poor." In fewer places is there public fanfare over toy and tree funds for those "Santa Claus forgets," or over other charity that glorifies the giver and pauperizes the receiver.

Yet American generosity often unthinkingly follows the traditional lord of the manor path. Churches, social agencies, civic groups, trying to make the most of widespread holiday benevolence, still have a problem in those who want to bestow instead of assist. Some still want to adopt needy families by calling in person with baskets, presents, even completely trimmed Christmas trees, and enjoying the goldfish bowl gratitude of the recipients—meanwhile revealing to the children their parents' need and inadequacy.

A GREATER problem is the family who wants to entertain an orphan Christmas Day. Well meaning as such hospitality is, it frequently results in the family having more fun than the orphan. The child is apt to be ill at ease among strangers, lonely for his associates, who most likely are having a party of their own. He is stuffed, fussed over, watched, and, after a few hours of Cinderella glitter, goes back to plain living, a transition he frequently can't understand. While social agencies would encourage personal interest in orphans, they say it would be better to show this in a simpler way, preferably on some other day than Christmas.

Public sentimentality is likely to insist at Christmas on too much setting apart of orphans and making them aware of their status. Individuals and groups often want to give parties for orphans—something specifying nationality, age, sex, religious background.

The Christmas mania for dressing dolls and making stuffed animals for small children also complicates holiday giving. Distribution centers are showered with such gifts—also with cast-off toys and worn-out clothes, usually handsomely wrapped. Yet few donors remember boys and girls who want roller skates, baseball bats, books, scarfs, costume jewelry—and who urgently need warm sweaters, caps, mittens, earmuffs, rubbers, underwear. Fewer still remember the aged who need cans of tobacco, cigars, soft candy, ties, knitting needles and wool, sewing kits, gloves and shawls.

BUT IN general, Christmas giving is more enlightened, more considerate of human dignity, than it was 10 or even 5 years ago. Christmas adoption of families is now generally done behind the scenes, by contributions through agencies or individuals familiar with the needs of the families. The growing practice is to give the money so that the mother of the family can spend it in meeting her children's needs and desires, so that parents themselves can play the role of Santa Claus, and the family have the self-respect and creative pleasure of making its own Christmas. Also orgies of one-day giving are less prevalent. The old system of dumping a batch of stuff on a family or agency on one day of the year and forgetting it the other 364 is giving way to the practice of dividing the aid through the year and keeping a sustained interest in those helped.

In the past, extravagant, haphazard Christmas charity frequently undid a year's work by social agencies in building responsibility and independence in a family. The new goal is toward intelligently directed generosity that will be a lift rather than a handout. Though the giver stays in the background he is expected to give more of himself—in thought and understanding.

Nicholas Murray Butler

The death of Nicholas Murray Butler has brought forth everywhere comment on his life and work. This seems a fitting moment to tell about a Phi Beta Kappa address that Dr. Butler made at St. Stephen's (now Bard) College in June, 1930.

The address took place after dinner in the college refectory. We formed an audience of some 150 persons, ranging in age from 18-year-old freshmen to trustees in their 60s. The undergraduates in the group felt resentment toward the president. Several months earlier Doctor Butler had repeated at St. Stephen's a speech he had recently given at Yale.

Doctor Butler may have sensed the critical atmosphere. Or he may have been merely inspired that night. Inspired he truly was. For about an hour, speaking without notes or prepared manuscript, he held the little audience spellbound. His subject was the history of philosophy. The great thinkers of all ages were passed in review. Doctor Butler later had their names carved on the frieze of the new Columbia University library.

When he finished speaking and sat down a hush fell over the room. I suppose we were struggling back to the ordinary plane of living. At the back of the room a trustee turned and half whispered, "He is a great man."

Antisocial Landlords

A Communication

YOUR EDITORIAL of December 8 attacks "antisocial landlords" and declares that "any landlord who deliberately withholds housing accommodations from residents of this congested city deserves to be classed as a public enemy."

The Building Owners and Managers Association of Metropolitan Washington speaks for all of its members, who operate approximately 20,000 dwelling units here, in agreeing that housing accommodations should not be withheld.

The responsible parties are Rent Control Administrator Robert F. Cogswell and his aides. In the same breath let me hasten to add that Mr. Cogswell has one of the most unenviable jobs imaginable, for he is the Horatio at the Bridge of price control, fighting singly and with heroic fatality to stem the economic forces at work all about us.

Now, how is Mr. Cogswell responsible for the withholding of rental dwelling units from the underhoused public? In two ways: (1) by his refusal to streamline the rent adjustment procedure as we request, he takes the position that rent adjustments may be made only by individual petition. The owner must file a petition covering each dwelling unit for which he seeks adjustment. He need not petition for such adjustment for the entire structure.

Now Mr. Cogswell adheres to the time-consuming practices which have brought about the "snowing under" of his staff. Whenever we have suggested a procedure that would save time and cut red tape, it has been turned down. Yet in your issue of December 9, you quote him thus: "Our volume of work has increased tremendously in the past six months. If rent control is extended here, we'll have to ask for additional help."

Obviously the owner is going to try to avoid endless delay if he can. That is why he files his petition on units as they become vacant. There is nothing improper or "antisocial" about this. Your editorial implies that some owners are deliberately keeping their apartments vacant for some sinister reason. I had nothing of the sort in mind when I stated Saturday that some rental housing is being held idle. In fact, I told your reporter at that time that no owner is going to keep his apartment vacant, with financial loss to himself, unless he has good reason.

I know of a case in which two desirable apartments have been kept vacant four months while they are being redecorated and otherwise improved and while a rent petition was pending. The owner's agent filed this petition more than two months ago and still hasn't gotten satisfaction. He is very anxious to rent the apartments but won't do so because he feels that would prejudice his petition for rent adjustment.

MR. COGSWELL'S office also discourages full use of existing rental housing by his failure to recognize that the prolonged maintenance of low rental levels creates a condition of "housing hoarding." I mean by this that many single persons are able to occupy entire family units because they can afford the low rent when otherwise they would be obliged to move to quarters perfectly adequate for one person but not suitable for a family.

You state in your editorial that the method of rent adjustment we propose "would not only eliminate hearings required by law but also would deprive tenants of an opportunity to expose landlords who fail to provide adequate service." This is not so.

The formula we propose is authorized under Section 3 of the law: "Whenever in the judgment of the administrator a general increase or decrease since January 1, 1941, in taxes or other maintenance or operating costs or expenses has occurred or is about to occur in such manner and amount as substantially to affect the maintenance and operation of housing accommodations generally or of any particular class of housing accommodations, he may by regulation or order increase or decrease the maximum-rent ceiling or minimum-service standard, or both, for such accommodations or class thereof in such manner or amount as will in his judgment compensate, in whole or in part, for such general increase or decrease." . . .

It was under the authority conferred by this section that Mr. Cogswell issued Order No. 12 granting rent rises to operators of structures with not more than eight dwelling units, in the amount of tax and water charge increases which took effect under rent control. Under this same Section 3, Mr. Cogswell has the power to issue another order such as we propose.

THE TENANT has the right at any time to petition for lower rent or improved service, regardless of Order No. 12 or any other order that may be issued.

This right of the tenant to petition is clearly set forth in a separate part of the act, Section 4. "Any tenant," reads paragraph (c), "may petition the administrator on the ground that the service supplied to him is less than the service established by the minimum-service standard for his housing accommodations . . . whereupon the administrator may order that the service be maintained at such minimum-service standard, or that the maximum-rent ceiling be decreased to compensate for a reduction in service, as he deems necessary or appropriate to carry out the purposes of this act."

As if this were not enough, paragraph (c) states that any tenant "may petition the administrator to adjust the maximum-rent ceiling applicable to his housing accommodations on the ground that such maximum-rent ceiling permits the receipt of an unduly high rent; whereupon the administrator may by order adjust such maximum-rent ceiling in such manner or amount as shall, in his judgment, effectuate the purposes of this act and provide a fair and reasonable rent for huch housing accommodations."

IN CONCLUSION, your editorial asks exactly what we ask of the Rent Administrator: "The Washington situation clearly calls for less deliberation and more reliance on rough and ready decisions. No real harm would be done by such procedure, provided rent increases were moderate—as they have been—and limited to amounts warranted by increases in current operating costs."

May I paraphrase your own editorial of October 1, on the proposed increase in telephone rates? The quoted language is yours but the parenthetical words are mine:

"To many a bedeviled keeper of the family budget, the request of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. (owners of rental dwelling property) for an increase in the service (rental) rates will seem just another straw on the back of a camel that is already overloaded. But utilities (owners of rental property) no less than individual consumers are victims of rising costs. It would be scarcely reasonable to expect one type of business to absorb all increased costs, thus curtailing expansion and possibly incurring operating losses, when other businesses are free to raise prices when they find it necessary. Consequently, we think that Chesapeake & Potomac (the owner of rental dwelling property) is entitled to a sympathetic hearing before the Public Utilities Commission (bar of public opinion)."

Before you wrote your editorial on "antisocial landlords," I think you should have ascertained the facts, because they were available to you.

RUFUS S. LUSK,
Secretary, Building, Owners and Managers Association of Metropolitan Washington.

Editor's Note: We relied for our facts on statements made by Mr. Lusk and Rent Administrator Cogswell.

In a press release of December 5, Mr. Lusk said that "many hundred of apartments are being held idle during hearing of rent petitions. This reduces the number of available dwelling units, thereby contributing to the acute rental housing problems." Subsequently Mr. Lusk modified his statements, substituting "scores" for "hundreds" of apartments held vacant for the reason given.

In the above communication Mr. Lusk defends landlords who withhold apartments pending action on rent petitions, although he states that the Building Owners and Managers Association agrees that housing accommodations should not be withheld. In our opinion a landlord's fear that his petition for rent adjustment might be prejudiced by installing a new tenant is not an adequate defense of a practice that we labeled antisocial.

Mr. Lusk also takes issue with our statement that the method of rent adjustment proposed by the Building Owners and Managers Association would not only eliminate hearings required by law but would deprive tenants of an opportunity to expose landlords who fail to provide adequate service. In reply we quote from a letter of Rent Administrator Cogswell addressed to Mr. Lusk on December 5.

Mr. Cogswell says: "I am under the impression that I advised you informally last month that I could not adopt your plan of procedure without violating the provisions of Section 4 of the act, as it would not be similar to that followed under General Order No. 12, and stated, as I had heretofore stated to your committee, that I felt that the procedure which this office has followed under Section 4 of the act in relation to adjustment of 1941 rentals had proved entirely satisfactory in the long run.

"Under your plan, that is, of filing a sworn statement covering real estate taxes, water rents, fuel and service payroll, which as you state, are only part of the expenses in connection with the operation of apartment buildings, this office would be called upon to check and verify incomplete operating statements, then issue orders without notice to the tenants, omitting entirely any consideration of the service standard to which these tenants are entitled."

Finally we dissent from Mr. Lusk's conclusion that our editorial demand for less deliberation and more reliance on rough and ready decisions is equivalent to an endorsement of the proposal of the Building Owners and Managers Association. We made it clear that we thought tenant hearings essential but believed that in some instances they were unnecessarily prolonged.

Cancer Research Hit By Inadequate Pay

Chicago, Dec. 12 (AP).—Many of the "finest young scientists of America" have left the field of cancer research because they could not afford financially to stay in it, an article in the Journal of the American Medical Association said today.

"America—the public—should be ashamed that its scientists do not rate as high as its entertainers," Dr. John J. Morton, member of the department of survey of the University of Rochester School of Medicine and Dentistry, New York, wrote in the Journal.

Calling Washington

By Marquis Childs

The FBI's Job

NEW YORK.—Some time ago attention was called in this column to a statement by Clifford J. Durr of the Federal Communications Commission. In that statement Durr expressed concern over "unsolicited reports from the FBI on persons connected with the radio industry.

Childs

This seems to have stirred a considerable controversy. Senator Homer Capehart of Indiana has made a bellicose demand for a congressional investigation of what he calls an attempt to "sabotage" the work of the FBI.

It goes without saying that Durr had no such intention. He was concerned, as many Americans are, with the current near-hysteria over communism that seems at times to be meant to intimidate all those who do not hold the narrowest and most conservative views.

J. Edgar Hoover, head of the FBI, in a letter to me, has stated clearly the policy of the FBI. I want to quote the pertinent part of that letter:

"First of all, let me assure you that at no time has the bureau attempted, in any manner or degree, to influence the decisions of the Federal Communications Commission. As a matter of fact, the bureau has no official interest whatsoever in the decisions or administrative policies of the FCC.

"The bureau, however, during the course of its investigations of allegations of violations of Federal statutes, receives a considerable amount of miscellaneous information which relates to the operation of other Government agencies. It is impossible for the bureau to evaluate the significance of much of this information or its effect upon the contemporary policies and programs of those agencies.

"AS A RESULT, the bureau does furnish to various Government departments such information as it receives which appears pertinent to the operations of those Governments departments. Insofar as is practical, the bureau attempts to evaluate the reliability of the source of such information without attempting to make any suggestions whatsoever as to the use which should or should not be made of the information itself. I sincerely believe that the bureau would be subject to justifiable criticism if it withheld information of this kind from other Government agencies or attempted to evaluate the significance of such information or attempted to indicate what action should be taken upon the information.

"I believe it is the responsibility of the individual Government department to evaluate and take appropriate action on such information as is furnished by the bureau rather than for the bureau to attempt to determine whether this information is or is not important or pertinent to current programs of problems of individual Government departments, with many of which the bureau cannot even be currently acquainted.

"I desire to advise you further that at no time has this bureau 'initiated investigations' which pertain to the propriety or impropriety of the Federal Communications Commission's taking action upon any matter pending before that commission. The bureaus does not 'initiate' investigations of this kind but confines its operations solely and exclusively to the discharge of those responsibilities placed upon the bureau by Congress."

THIS SAYS emphatically what Hoover has often said before, both publicly and privately—that he has no desire nor intention to make policy in these matters. His is a technical agency carrying out the directives of the several branches of the Government.

It seems to me reasonable that he should pass on to other agencies information he considers relevant to their operation. If the other agencies consider this information irrelevant, or even foolish and baseless, as Durr stated, that is not the concern of the FBI, which has discharged its duty.

It seems to me important that the public should understand the true function of the FBI. Perhaps in this connection a congressional investigation might serve a useful purpose.

Such an investigation would be useful only if it were aimed at getting all the facts. Senator Capehart sounded as though he wanted merely to get another broomstick and start riding off through the night sky.

"Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty." That is as profoundly true today as it was when it was first uttered.

The A. Mitchell Palmer raids after World War I were a shocking disgrace. They violated the fundamental freedoms guaranteed under the great charter of our liberites.

That rash and hasty action was the occasion for later regret. Foresight and awareness today can prevent such unhappy errors.

House Committee Seeks Way To Act Against Petrillo Union

By The Associated Press

The House Labor Committee yesterday asked the Justice Department to determine whether James C. Petrillo and his American Federation of Musicians (AFL) are subject to prosecution under the antitrust laws for "monopolistic practices."

Petrillo has ordered members of the union to cease making recordings after December 31. He also has a standing ban against performances by AFM members on television shows.

In a bristling report, the House Committee also demanded the prosecution of any offenses under the Lea Act, passed last year to restrict the musician union's activities, "or any other law."

(Petrillo himself opened the way for a test of the Lea Act in 1946. The Government charged him with attempting to compel radio station WAAF at Chicago to employ three persons not needed. Federal Judge Walter C. La Buy held the act unconstitutional, but he was reversed by the Supreme Court which remanded the case back for trial. Petrillo pleaded innocent a month ago.)

The Labor Committee declared that Petrillo has set up a "kingdom" of music-makers and exercises "tyrannical power."

The committee also presented five legislative recommendations.

It urged that the Taft-Hartley labor law be amended so as to forbid "monopolistic practices by labor unions which are injurious to the public interest." Also: That it be made illegal for a union to "license an employer to do business; that persons or firms put on a union's unfair list be given the right of redress in Federal court; that unions be prohibited from calling strikes or work stoppages until after an affirmative vote by a majority of the employes in a plant or industry; and that safeguards be erected to prevent a union and employer from conspiring to evade the Taft-Hartley law.

Ought to Be Fired, 3 WAA Officials Told

By The Associated Press

Chairman Rizley (R., Okla.) of the House Surplus Property Investigating Subcommittee yesterday told three top officials of the War Assets Administration they should be "fired."

He made this statement after they testified they had obtained or were getting cars through influence of a WAA sales agent.

"The agency contract should be canceled, and all of you should be fired out of WAA at once," Rizley declared.

Before him sat James A. Mollison, associate administrator of the agency; John H. Carey, deputy administrator of the Office of Aircraft and Electronics Disposal, and Herschel R. Benedict, associate deputy administrator of that branch.

Driving Agent's Car

Carey, asserting he believed he had done nothing wrong, said he had been driving a 1947 Packard which belonged to A. I. Lodwick, head of Lodwick Aircraft Industries, Inc., Lakeland, Fla., a surplus aircraft component parts sales agent for WAA. This was while waiting for a new Cadillac Carey said he was attempting to get through Lodwick at regular retail price.

Mollison, also asserting he did not consider he had done anything questionable, said he bought a Chrysler recently which Lodwick was able to obtain for him, turned his old car over to Lodwick for sale and part payment and was waiting to settle the balance when Lodwick sold the car.

While awaiting delivery of the Chrysler he drove the Packard Carey now is driving, he said.

Benedict said he had purchased a Pontiac from a Washington dealer after Lodwick talked with the dealer, later sold the Pontiac and bought a secondhand 1947 Cadillac from Lodwick, paying cash.

All three witnesses said they were not influenced to allocate additional surplus materials to Lodwick.

Rizley, declaring he did not think the people of the United States would put up with such a thing, said he did not question the motives or honesty of the three, but considered they had accepted gratuities, in a way.

He declared records show that the Lodwick agency had received 28 million dollars worth of surplus aircraft components to sell, and commissions to date had been over $300,000. This was more, he said, than had been given other Florida agencies.

Carey replied the Lodwick company was one of the most active disposal agents in the Nation, and was receiving allocations in proportion to what it could handle. Other Florida companies were satisfied with their allocations, he added.

Last of Five Escaped U. S. Prisoners Captured

Holbrook, Ariz., Dec. 12 (AP).—Two Federal prisoners who escaped from the United States Medical Center at Springfield, Mo., were captured today as they slept in a stolen truck.

A third member of the group of five which fled the center December 1 was caught Tuesday night after the trio had held up and robbed a service station near Sanders, Ariz.

One of the five stole a plane at a Springfield airport. He was caught near Jackson, Tenn. The fifth man was captured at Wichita, Kans.

2 Conditions For Pact Cited By ITU Chief

Indianapolis, Dec. 12 (AP).—Woodruff Randolph, president of the International Typographical Union, said today in a statement that "neither the Wagner Act nor the Taft-Hartley law compels the signing of contracts unless two conditions are established."

Declaring "the kind of publicity being given the ITU is getting a bit tiresome," Randolph said these two conditions are "that agreement between the parties be reached" and "that at least one of the parties request that the agreement be written and signed."

The American Newspaper Publishers Association has filed with the National Labor Relations Board a complaint charging the ITU and its executive council with defying the Taft-Hartley law by attempting to coerce local unions and publishers into violating the law by adopting rules of working conditions without signing formal contracts. The NLRB subsequently charged the union with "unfair labor practices."

"Our employers are proceeding on the theory that we must sign an agreement with them whether or not we agree with their proposals," Randolph said.

Says Bargaining Is Impeded

He added the "faulty premise of the Taft-Hartley law is to make collective bargaining agreements legal contracts and to again use injunctions as the means of intimidating and coercing unions."

He then asserted the "whole theory" of recent complaints filed by the NLRB is that local unions are prevented by ITU policy from "bargaining in good faith."

"We have bargained in good faith with our employers and offered two ways of getting along with them," Randolph said.

"One way is to refrain from signing a contract. This is obviously legal, since no contract need be signed under the law unless requested by either party.

"The other way is to sign a contract which would give the union the protection it needs so far as possible under the Taft-Hartley law.

"Nothing Illegal"

"Since some employers are refusing necessary increases in wages until we give them the kind of contract they want, our unions are being authorized to strike for more money.

"There is nothing illegal about ITU collective bargaining policy. There is a great deal of confusion about it because of the kind of publicity given it.

"If by some stretch of imagination the NLRB or some court should rule we have not bargained in enough 'good faith,' we can still satisfy the most exacting definition and confidently rely on the fact that contracts are essentially voluntary undertakings.

"When that time comes it will be refreshing to note that even the Taft-Hartley law states with regard to bargaining in good faith: 'But such obligation does not compel either party to agree on a proposal or require the making of a concession.'"

Plan to Use Idle Tankers Delayed by Ships' Breakdowns

By The Associated Press

An Interior Department official said yesterday that a program of rehabilitating idle tankers to meet fuel oil shortages will be delayed from two to six weeks by structural weaknesses discovered in the ships within the last three days.

Max W. Ball, director of the department's oil and gas division, recalled before a House Interstate Commerce Committee studying fuel shortages that a T-2 type tanker split in two Tuesday while under repair at Boston. He then reported the same thing happened Wednesday at Hoboken, N. J.

"Up to yesterday," Ball testified, "we thought there would be enough tankers by January or in early February to meet domestic needs. But day before yesterday a T-2 tanker broke in half at Hoboken, N. J. The day before that one of the same type broke up at Boston, In all, eight of these tankers have come apart since the war.

"It has now been decided," he said, "that all these tankers must be strengthened in the midsection at an expenditure of about $70,000 a tanker and a loss in time of from two to six weeks, meaning they wil lnot be available within the next two or three months as contemplated."

Repair and conversion of 50 of these now-idle Maritime Commission tankers has been pushed put them in use by the Navy.

Jewry Lists Cost Of Needs in 1948

Arming Palestine Refugee Aid Put At $395,367,000

Atlantic City, N. J., Dec. 12 (AP).—Jewish leaders learned today it will cost a minimum of $395,367,000 to meet the 1948 needs of world Jewry—including the setting up of a partitioned state and the mobilization of an army in Palestine.

Three agencies which operate with funds provided by the United Jewish Appeal reported to a national conference of 1500 Jews the major portion of the unprecedented sum will have to be raised through contributions by American Jewry. The balance, they said, will be sought in the form of bank loans.

The agencies—United Palestine Appeal, the Joint Distribution Committee and the United Service for New Americans—are operating with a debt that will total some 65 million dollars by December 31, a UJA spokesman said. The money asked for 1948 will not be used to pay off the debt, he said.

Requirements Listed

Representatives of the three agencies listed these financial requirements:

UPA, $283,156,000.
JDC, $98,547,000.
USNA, $13,664,000.

Eliezer Kaplan of Jerusalem, treasurer of the Jewish Agency for Palestine, said the UPA needs its funds to settle 75,000 European Jews, including 24,000 children, in the new Jewish state next year. Of the total sum, Kaplain said, 28 million dollars will be used to mobilize an army comprising 5000 regulars, members of the present defense force (Hagana), and "tens of thousands of men."

Will Seek Arms Here

Kaplan said in an interview he will ask the United States to sell weapons to the new Jewish state for an army.

Kaplan said he also will ask the United Nations for a "token force" so that Arab nations "will think twice before entering any strife" in Palestine.

Kaplan said Jews planning establishment of a nation under U. N. partition next May 15 will launch a four-year development scheme which will require financial assistance from the United States and other countries. He said he will confer with the State Department. The Import and Export Bank and the International Bank in preliminary steps intended to obtain loans and grants for the development scheme.

Bevin Pleads For Holy Land Cooperation

By Don Cook

London, Dec. 12.—Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin concluded a two-day Commons debate on Palestine today with an appeal for a "cooperative effort in the Middle East instead of the long strife that has martyred it in the past."

Bevin asserted once again his belief that "if it had been left unfettered to the British administration to handle the problem without interference from the outside, we could have got agreement."

As it was, he declared, "we got very near to it over and over again, only to have the cup dashed from our lips."

As for British policy during the transitional period between now and the time the mandate is transferred to the United Nations Commission, Bevin said Britain's main effort would be to speed up the timetable wherever possible.

On the question of Jewish immigration, he said:

"Here I want to make an appeal to the Jews. If any attempt is made to bring in numbers of immigrants in spite of our control and so cause trouble, this will be another and most important contribution to unrest."

Going back to the Anglo-American Palestine inquiry committee report of 1946, Bevin denied that he had thrown the report overboard. "I said if they got a unanimous decision I would recommend the cabinet to accept it," he said, "and what happened? The United States would only take one point—100,000 immigrants—and I was not prepared to accept one point and discard the other nine."

Textile Workers Given Raise in New England

Boston, Dec. 12 (AP).—A 10 per cent pay raise for 30,000 New England textile workers aggregating approximately six million dollars a year is provided in a new contract negotiated by the CIO with 32 cotton and rayon mills.

Emil Rieve, president of the Textile Workers Union of America, said the agreement would serve as a pattern for the industry throughout the country.

It calls for raising the minimum wage from 88 to 97 cents an hour and boosting the average hourly rate to $1.18 from $1.07.

Rubber Workers Raise Pay Increase Demand

Akron, Ohio, Dec. 11 (AP).—Citing increases in living costs, CIO-United Rubber Workers at the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co., today upped wage boost demands from 12 cents hourly to 17½ cents. The URW has been negotiating with the company since last August.

Laryngitis Hinders Comeback of Singer

Chicago, Dec. 12 (U.P.).—Opera Singer Marjorie Lawrence, who climaxed a long flight against infantile paralysis by standing up before an audience last night for the first time in more than six years, was forced to cancel a matinee performance today because of laryngitis.

She stood throughout the entire performance while singing the title role in Strauss' "Elektra" and received tremendous applause.

In her performance last night, the singer stood on a small platform on rollers and held a handrail lightly.

One Killed in Prison Break

Arabs staged a prison break at Athlit, 9 miles south of Haifa. One Arab was killed, five were wounded and five escaped. The officer in charge of the prison was injured.

Two Arabs were killed and a police railway guard was wounded in Gaza.

In Ramle, an Arab watchman was killed and a second wounded by Jewish bombs.

Scattered firing continued all day from the besieged Jewish section of Jerusalem's Old City. British soldiers and police patrolled the narrow streets where Arabs and Jews clashed Thursday.

Jewish workers living in the ancient section were convoyed from their jobs to their homes. Units of the Scottish Highland Light Infantry moved into the area at dusk.

Police on Alert

Anticipating an upsurge of Arab fury, police armed with automatic weapons were ordered on a 100 per cent standby basis. Police reports said several temporary Arab policemen on duty at isolated posts had "absconded" with arms and ammunition.

It was officially announced that the Jews who attacked the Arab village of Shafat near Jerusalem wore uniforms of the British army and police.

Three bodies were found in a burned British Overseas Airways Corp. truck which had been seized by Arabs at Lydda village. Airline officials said at least six Arab and four Jewish employes of BOAC had been in the machine.

The bodies were too badly burned for identification and the seven other passengers in the truck were still missing.

Arabs Meet at Cairo

As violence continued in the Holy Land, Arabs throughout the Middle East awaited word from Cairo where ministers of Arab nations are attending a "council of war" to prevent partition of Palestine.

Organizers of the Arab "People's Army" continued signing new recruits following the Arab League's announcement that all fighting against partition would be up to this force until the British evacuate Palestine on or before August 1.

Jewish sources said there was maneuvering going on in the ranks of Jewish fighters for positions of power in the projected Jewish state, and possibly accounted for Irgun's taking a hand against the Arabs.

These sources listed the following factions:

1. Hagana leaders, associated with the constituted Jewish leadership, who have been holding to a restrained policy of "defense only" in the current strife with the Arabs.

2. Menachem Beigin, Polish militarist who commands Irgun Zvai Leumi and who is described by more conservative elements as aspiring to political leadership of the new state.

3. Radical nationalists who run the Stern Gang and who are feared to want a behind-the-scenes dictatorial role in the new state.

In a broadcast, Hagana exhorted the Jews to "be strong in defense but take no reprisals."

In ancient Baghdad, Iraqi Finance Minister Yusuf Ghanina disclosed that an appeal was being made to the International Monetary Bank for 75 million dollars to "increase the country's productive capacity." Arab sources in Jerusalem claim that during the past six months Iraq has pledged a total of 40 million dollars for the defense of Palestine Arabs.

Reds Call Off Rome Strike

cluding some public works already under way.

The Chamber's decision was ratified promptly by the Council of Leagues, made up of delegates of individual unions, after Giuseppe di Vittorio, Communist secretary of the General Confederation of Labor, had declared the strike a "brilliant success."

Throughout the day, helmeted riot squads in jeeps, mounted police, and patrolmen swung their truncheons, repeatedly clearing city squares and charging throngs trying to block the reopening of shops or interfering with the government-organized transport of workers.

The main incidents were at Piazza Colonna in mid-Rome, at Piazza Fiume, a mile away, at Piazza Riorgimento, along Giulio Cesare, across the Tiber, and at Piazza Argentina.

At several places well-disciplined "flying wedges" attempted to force police lines guarding movies. Some patrons leaving the guarded places were roughed up.

Outside Rome, in the province, troops ran into stone-throwing battles when they attempted to remove road blocks thrown up by strikers across the Appian Way near Albano and at Genzano. Five soldiers and many strikers were reported injured at Albano and several hurt at Genzano.

Communist deputies declared the strikers had been fired upon, but there was no official confirmation.

Stones were placed on the Rome-Civitavecchia railway, and a coach crowded with passengers was stopped just in time.

At one time, at the Piazza Colonna, the policeman followed the crowd into the vestibule of a church and clubbed a woman and two other persons inside.

Associated Press photographer J. Walter Green was hit by a police stick for the second time while taking pictures of the scene. He and Associated Press photographer Frank Joel were struck over the head by police clubs earlier in Colonna Square near the Constituent Assembly Building.

At least 70 or 80 persons were arrested at various places.

Interest in Scelba's declaration to the Assembly about police measures was heightened by the fact that one member, Communist Gian Carlo Pajetta, got in the way of police clubs during a charge in the Piazza Colonna.

Pietro Nenni, pro-Communist Socialist, also was caught in the melee, but was not injured, though one citizen nearby was knocked down by a jeep. Nenni demanded to know what instructions had been given the police.

In answer, Scelba declared the state "claims the exclusive right to maintain public order" and had the further duty of "alleviating the effects of the strike."

He charged that organized squads were intimidating non-strikers.

Milan Stock Exchange Invaded by Investors

Milan, Italy, Dec. 12 (AP).—For the second time this month small investors invaded the Milan Stock Exchange today and protested the continued fall of securities quotations.

Four hundred demonstrators stopped trading. Their action apparently grew out of a meeting last night which adopted a resolution asking the government to take "urgent steps to halt illegal speculation."

An official said that despite today's incident the exchange would open as usual Monday.

Baltimore Policeman Identifies Son's Body

Baltimore, Dec. 12 (AP).—A Baltimore policeman today identified the body of a man found shot to death in a woods as that of his son, Charles H. Marfield, 23.

Identification was made by Patrolman Lawrance Marfield, who said his son had not been home since Tuesday afternoon.

The younger Marfield was found dead with a bullet wound in his chest. Police found nearby a .22 caliber revolver with one cartridge discharged.

him, and some of us do profoundly."

Marshall said the world is "sick unto death of war" and called for an end to propaganda about a new war.

Bevin praised Marshall's efforts to revive Europe and declared that the Marshall Plan expressed the "true, generous heart of the American people."

Marshall declared that there was a "great surge of American public opinion in support of an effort to alleviate the suffering and hardships" of the people of Europe.

Referring to the current debate in Congress on legislation to aid Europe, he expressed belief that the present public state of mind in the United States "is remarkable evidence of a genuine and generous desire to help the other fellow."

Marshall called for a "spiritual conquest" of world problems to restore mankind's faith in peace and understanding.

Evidently mindful of Russian opposition to American financial aid to Europe under the Marshall Plan, the Secretary said the support American public opinion is giving the aid-Europe program is particularly remarkable when "one considers the length and breadth of America and how remote most of our people are from the European scene."

Molotov Reparations Demand Splits Parley of accusations and claims and drew no comment.

Hits Marshall Plan Again

Molotov took time out to denounce his favorite enemy—the Marshall Plan for European Recovery—which, observers agree, is the main issue at this conference though the agenda mentions only questions dealing with peace settlements for Germany and Austria.

So-called American aid to Germany, he said, was intended solely to turn western Germany into a "base to bring pressure to bear inside and outside Germany, to further the interests of certain reactionary foreign circles, and, in the future, to serve as a strategic base against the democratic states of Europe."

Reparations deliveries to the Russian orbit from the western zones, he said, totaled only 33 million dollars, a value which he described as a "mockery."

Soviet removals were small, but the Big Three of the west, he contended, were making "hundreds of millions" out of coal, timber, iron, steel and chemicals. He spoke of "enormous profits" for governments and individuals.

Marshall's Reply Harshest

Marshall's reply was the harshest.

"It is obvious," he said, "that Mr. Molotov's remarks were not designed for serious discussion at this stage. It is evident they were intended for another audience and quite another purpose.

"Under the circumstances, I have no comment to make as to such a propaganda statement, but I would add this:

"That considering the purpose and the circumstances under which we are gathered here, and, considering the positions we occupy in our respective governments, I think Mr. Molotov must realize that such a method of procedure makes it rather difficult to inspire respect for the dignity of the Soviet Union."

Bevin said:

"I know the British people and the British Commonwealth will resent it."

Bidault concluded: "I just want to say, in the name of the French delegation, that what has been alleged by Mr. Molotov about France and France's attitude about reparations is contrary to the truth."

It was in such an atmosphere that the meeting ended.

It is very doubtful if the session can continue much longer.

Young Hints Probe of ICC, Congress Plea

By S. Oliver Goodman

Robert R. Young, storm center of the railroad industry, has only just begun to storm.

He made this clear yesterday during a brief stopover here en route from Texas to New York. Summoning reporters to a news conference in his private car, Young said:

Young

1. He might appeal to Congress in his efforts to bring about an interlocking directorate for the Chesapeake & Ohio and New York Central railroads.

2. "Very likely" he would demand an investigation of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Young, C. & O. board chairman, is incensed over the recent recommendation of ICC Examiner C. E. Boles that Young and C. & O. President Robert J. Bowman be refused authority to sit on the New York Central board. Boles said this would result in Young's control of Central although application for such control has not been filed with the ICC.

Anticipating the ICC's final rejection, Young said yesterday:

"We are prepared to appeal to the courts, and then to the Congress, which many years ago ordered the ICC to foster railroad consolidations."

He asserted the Bolles report ran counter to authorizations by the ICC in other railroad cases, and commented that the full commission "reversed Boles" when Young was before ICC several years ago in connection with disposition of properties controlled by the Alleghany Corp., which he also heads.

"Public opinion made them reverse Boles," said Young, "and it can do it again."

Young asserted "competition is virtually nonexistent in railroads today except for Chesapeake & Ohio," and declared the Boles recommendation is "just the first round in a five-round fight."

GAS ISSUE: The Public Utilities Commission yesterday authorized the Washington Gas Light Co. to issue 85,000 additional shares of common stock at $20 a share. The PUC waived the competitive bidding provision. Present stockholders of record December 26 will be given subscription warrants entitling them to buy one new share for each five old shares. The "rights" will expire January 13.

MORE ON SEC SHIFT: Commissioners Richard B. McEntire and Robert McConnaughey will be the first to move their offices to the Securities and Exchange Commission's new headquarters at 424 2d st. nw. The agency will occupy an adjacent building at 2d st. and Indiana ave. Press releases on the SEC's activities will continue to be handed out in Philadelphia until January 10, at which time the offices of James J. Caffrey, chairman, and Commissioners Harry A. McDonald and Edmond Hanrahan will be moved to Washington. A quorum will then be present here and the SEC's decisions will be released from the Capital. The moving, scheduled to start January 5, is expected to be concluded on January 27.

HOUSTON NAMED: Charles H. Houston of Washington has been appointed a member of the Advertising Council's public advisory committee. He will serve with 19 other leaders from civic, educational, labor and management groups. Houston, a former vice dean of law at Howard University, is a member of the President's Fair Employment Practice Committee and vice president of the American Council on Race Relations.

ODD LOTS: Gordon Foods, Inc., whose stock is widely held in Washington, declared the regular quarterly dividend of 10 cents a share, payable January 6 to stock of record December 20 . . . Stockholders of Maryland Drydock Co. will vote on a proposal that common shares be increased from 150,000 to 300,000 . . . New York Stock Exchange employes will receive year-end bonus of extra week's pay . . . Studebaker Corp. purchase of Empire Steel Corp. will be fought by Col. Peter Beasley, holder of 4500 shares of Empire stock and former president of Lockheed Aircraft Corp. . . . [illegible]ports that new corporate securities offered for sale during first nine months this year totaled $3,960,000,000, about a billion dollars less than in same 1946 period.

NEW EXECUTIVE: Jack Ross has been elected vice president of Smith's Transfer & Storage Co. in charge of sales. Irving Bland has been promoted to sales manager, succeeding Ross. President Arthur Clarendon Smith announced that the usual Yule bonuses will be distributed to employes on December 24 and that a new building, under construction on Bladensburg rd. and New York ave., will be completed by February 1.

CONCLAVE: A prominent array of Government officials spoke yesterday at the opening session of members of the Machinery and Allied Products Institute in the Mayflower Hotel, but all the talks were off the record. More than 150 industrial executives were at the conclave, which was devoted largely to Government-industry relations. The institute is a federation of trade associations in the industrial equipment field. Among the scheduled speakers yesterday were Senator Joseph H. Ball of Minnesota, Cyrus S. Ching, director of Federal Conciliation and Mediation Service; Robert N. Denham, general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board; Arthur M. Hill, chairman of National Security R[illegible] Board; Secretary of De[illegible]s V. Forrestal and others. [illegible]arley will continue today.

Duties of Christian Laymen Stressed by Walter Graham

"Christian laymen around the world have a big job ahead of them today," believes Walter A. Graham, former Washingtonian, now executive director of the Congregational-Christian Laymen's Fellowship.

Graham

Graham was formerly leader of young adult work for the Baltimore Methodist Conference — including Washington — and General Accounting Office personnel executive.

Announcing plans for the fellowship's new national committee that opened its planning meeting last night at the Hotel Sherman in Chicago, Graham said:

"Jesus was a layman. He worked and talked as a layman. He fixed once and for all the principle that preaching and practice must be one and the same."

Graham, who formerly attended Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, thinks laymen put as much careful planning into their church programs as into their businesses and that they should advertise them in the same way.

Dr. Russell A. Dixon, dean of Howard University, is also member of the national committee of the Congregational-Christian Laymen's Fellowship.

Church Addition Plans to Be Told

Plans for erection of an addition to the church will be announced at Loyalty Sunday services tomorrow at 9:30 a. m. and 11 a. m. at Wesley Methodist Church, Connecticut ave. and Jocelyn st. nw. The new building will face on Connecticut ave. The Rev. C. Stanley Lowell's sermon theme at tomorrow's two services will be "The Stuff of Dreams."

Silver Spring Church To Worship in School

Beginning tomorrow the congregation of Calvary Lutheran Church, Silver Spring, will hold its Sunday school and church services in the Montgomery Hills Junior High School, 2d ave. and Seminary rd. The congregation, organized in 1941, has been worshiping at 9601 Georgia ave. pending erection of a building. The Rev. George W. Hoyer is pastor.

2 Denominations Hold 'White Gift' Service Tomorrow

Lutherans and Universalists will hold "White Gift" services tomorrow to bring Yule cheer to persons in District institutions.

The gifts from the Lutherans will be sent to the Home for the Aged at Blue Plains, District Training School at Laurel, Md.; the Receiving Home for Children and other places. The donations will be sorted and wrapped at the Lutheran Inner Mission Society office, 1002 11th st. nw.

Gifts received at a service at the Universalist National Memorial Church, 16th and S sts. nw., at 11 a. m., will be shipped to the Neighborhood House at Suffolk, Va.

Parish School Dedication Tomorrow

Religious and political figures will participate in dedicatory ceremonies for the $100,000 Trinity Lutheran Parish School tomorrow at 3 p. m. at 3705 Legation st., Hyattesville, Md.

Behnken

Principal speakers will be Lansdale Sasscer, Maryland State Senator, and Dr. J. W. Behnken, president of the Lutheran Synod of Missouri, a branch of Lutheranism covering most States east of the Mississippi.

The school, founded in 1944 by the Rev. Edwin E. Pieplow, pastor of Trinity Lutheran Church, Mount Ranier, now has 80 children enrolled in grades 1 to 8. The teachers are graduates of Lutheran normal schools. The school has its own print shop and workshops.

When the Missouri Synod of Lutheranism was formed over a century ago, most of its churches maintained secular schools for their members' children. The Trinity Lutheran School is supported by Trinity Church.

Views Vary On Religion In Schools

Arguments for and against religious instruction in public schools were heard over WTOP Thursday night during the regular Columbia Broadcasting System program, "In Your Opinion."

The subject was, "Should Religion be Taught in the Public Schools?"

The Rev. Erwin Shaver, director of Release-Time Education for the International Council on Religious Education, said yes.

A negative opinion was delivered by the Rev. J. M. Dawson, executive secretary of the Joint Conference Committee on Public Relations of the Baptist Communion in America.

Dr. Shaver said in the plan for "religious education in cooperation with the public schools," the pupils are excused for one or more periods a week to enter classes in religion.

"These classes," he said, "are sponsored by the churches which furnish the teachers and choose the study material. The costs are met by the churches and therefore no public funds are used."

Indorsed By Varied Faiths

He said the plan, although Protestant in origin, has been "heartily indorsed" by other faiths, such as Roman Catholics, Christian Scientists, and Mormons. He said Jewish groups are divided in their sentiments but are actively cooperating with the plan in New York and other cities.

Declaring there are no legal reasons why public school buildings should not be used for religious instruction, Dr. Shaver said, the program has done much to bring together "in a friendly shoulder-to-shoulder working relationship the religious groups of America—Catholic, Jewish and Protestant."

In disagreement with this viewpoint, Dr. Dawson said religion should be taught in the home and the church and not in the public schools "under compulsory law."

Separation of Church, State

Dr. Dawson said he opposed the program because it merges "the legal function of government as constituted in the public schools with the institutional function of the churches," which "is in violation of the American doctrine of separation of church and state."

He charged that the program has seriously interfered with regular school work, that use of school buildings does constitute a use of tax funds for sectarian purposes and that it is impossible to conduct the plan on a nonsectarian basis.

The "most repugnant" feature of the program, Dr. Dawson declared, is its "compulsion." He said he could never cooperate with a system "which puts the weight of a feather on anyone to compel him to be religious." He said the "shifting of responsibility" for religious instruction to the public schools will do "serious injury" to the home and to the church.

Minister's Wife Tells Experiences

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Reporter

A preacher's wife "let down her hair" last Sunday night and the congregation enjoyed every moment of it.

Mrs. German

Speaking at the 15th anniversary services of her husband's pastorate at Bethany Baptist Church, 2d and Rhode Island ave. nw., Mrs. M. P. German told how she went to hear "the new preacher" on a Sunday back in 1932.

"I went home and told my mother that I didn't think I'd go to Bethany Church again because I didn't like the new minister's preaching. Then I later turned around and married him."

Mrs. German said she was told long ago that the most important attributes of a minister's wife are "to love people, to be sincere and to be natural." That sage advice, she recalled, came from the late Charles Fairman, former art curator of the Capitol and charter member of Bethany Church.

Worked in Mountains

Mrs. German was engaged in social welfare work in the Virginia and Kentucky mountains before coming here in the early 1930's. She formerly taught a woman's Bible class at Bethany Church.

The pastor's wife, later in her message, said "the little funny human interest things that happen every day make the ministry such an interesting vocation," and added:

"One night the pastor and I were sitting in the living room and we answered a knock at the door. There stood a soldier and his girl, wanting to be married. After the wedding, the groom handed my husband a $5 bill and blushingly asked for $3 change. My husband didn't have the change so I dug in my purse and gave the groom $3. The soldier then turned to his pretty little bride and said, apologetically:

"I'm sorry that I had to ask for that change, honey, but I'll try to do better next time!"

Dumbarton Ave. Church Marks Its 175th Year

Dumbarton Avenue Methodist Church — mother church of Methodism in the District of Columbia—tomorrow will celebrate the 175th anniversary of its founding.

WHERE ARE OUR BELOVED DEAD?

Do they go to heaven, paradise, or purgatory at death? How long after death does it take them to reach heaven? Are millions of souls waiting in heaven for their bodies which are decaying in the graves? Do they know about the sorrows and troubles their loved one are experiencing on earth?

Louis Says Lesnevich May Get Title Bout in June

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—The darnedest illusion is being conjured for Sunday afternoon in Yankee Stadium—something about a football game between the Cleveland Browns and the New York Yankees for the All-America Conference title that will draw 70,000 fans and a $220,000 gate.

POVICH

It's all pretense, of course. There is no team called the Cleveland Browns, and the New York Yankees are just a team that somebody dreamed up. The All-America Conference is just a foolish whim, and those 70,000 fans are day-dreamers using stage money to buy tickets to a nonexistent contest.

Or so the National Football League would have you believe.

The NFL, which got into the pro football business first, continues to pretend it's the only major league of football. But maybe the NFL should be forgiven for discerning no rival on the stage. The NFL has been tilting its nose so high in the air these last three years that it might say truthfully the All-America Conference hasn't yet come into view. But by this time maybe the NFL at least ought to be hearing the clink of those hard dollars the conference teams have been getting.

MY BET IS that there is such a league as the All-America Conference and that they do have teams called the Browns and the Yankees and that they will play a game Sunday afternoon and draw 70,000 customers. In New York this week, you'd swear you saw long lines of persons scrambling for tickets to the game, and, if it's a gag, then all of the New York newspapers which have been printing pregame stories in profusion, have all gone gullible at the same time.

In fact, my old and truthful friend, Ray Flaherty, tells me flatly that he is head coach of a team called the Yankees and that they are indeed playing a team called the Cleveland Browns for the title, and moreover, that it's a sell-out. I'm going to believe him.

Flaherty says he's positive that there is such a team as Cleveland, because his Yankees have played 'em five times in the last two seasons, and you don't forget easily when you get the kind of kicking around the Browns have given him. In five games, the closest the Yankees have come to beating the Browns was the last one when they played to a 28-28 tie.

AND DON'T suggest to Flaherty that Otto Graham is just a name that somebody thought up 25 years ago for a babe that arrived stillborn. Graham, he says, is the very active T-formation quarterback of the Browns, who can thread a needle with a forward pass, and did exactly that last time when he wiped out a 28-0 lead of the Yankees.

There's a man named Marion Motley, too, says Flaherty, who plays for the Browns, and he's the best fullback in the business—a 230-pound colored boy who hits a line faster than any fullback Flaherty ever saw . . . "I wish Motley was just a myth. We wouldn't need to be making all these plans to stop him," said Flaherty.

In the conviction he has the Cleveland team to play on Sunday, Flaherty is now heavily involved in more plans. He has been indoctrinating his Yankees all week in the necessity for stopping the maraudings of two Cleveland ends named Mac Speedie and Dante Lavelli, who think nothing of grabbing passes from Graham and going for touchdowns . . . "I hope I'm wrong and that those two guys are just figments of my imagination," says Flaherty.

AS FOR HIS owns Yankees, Flaherty says he isn't going into the contest exactly unarmed. He'll be something of a two-gun man with Spec Sanders and Buddy Young on his side. No team has stopped both of them on the same day thus far this season, though Sanders, he admits, doesn't rate with Graham as a forward passer.

Aside from the Cleveland club, the trouble right now is, says Flaherty, that Sanders has a weak ankle and might get it rehurt. "I'm going to tape it up myself," said Flaherty. "The only thing I ever boast about is the way I can tape an ankle. I played 15 years in the pro league, taped my own ankles all the time, and never had one hurt."

I'm sold on the idea that there will be a game Sunday, and I think I can convince the NFL it isn't the only league in the pro football business . . . Even if the NFL continues to keep its nose in the air, I'll convince 'em . . . I'm having this printed in skywriting.

Maryland Loses Home Debut, 63-52, To Loyola

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

Loyola kept intact its record of never losing to a Maryland basketball team and spoiled the Terrapins' home opening, 63-52, last night at College Park.

It was the sixth victory over a Maryland team by the Baltimore school.

Mike Zedalis scored 18 points to lead his Loyola teammates, including Jim Lacy, the Nation's second high scorer last year.

Loyola Starts Fast

Loyola started off with a rush right after intermission. Paul Feeley dropped two quick baskets and Bill Johnston made another to give the invaders a 33-27 advantage.

After Ed Waller's foul, Mike Zedalis dropped in two in a row and the Baltimore school held a 10-point advantage. Late in the game, Maryland rallied to draw within four points but never got closer.

The teams traded points at a fast and furious pace for the first 20 minutes and wound up all even, 27-27.

Widest margin enjoyed by either team was the five-point edge Bill Wanish's field goal gave the Terps at 21-16. Feeley and Lacey countered with baskets and for the rest of the half no more than two points separated the clubs.

Terp Jayvees Win

Brown and Center John Edwards led the first half scoring with nine apiece. Brown got five of his on foul conversions and missed four tries. Edwards had three field goals and three fouls.

The victors, who lost one in three previous starts, were led by Lacey's eight points. Surprisingly, Lacy missed one of his five foul tries. Last year, he had a consecutive streak of 38 conversions.

In the preliminary game, the Maryland Jeyvees ranaway from Strayer Business School, 49 to 20. Ward and Cranford each had eight points for the winners.

Illinois Calls Rocky Poll 'Farce'

Board Berates NBA's Biased Method And Reiterates Ban of Graziano

Chicago, Dec. 12 (AP).—The Illinois State Athletic Commission today described as "a complete farce" a recent poll by the National Boxing Association which showed sentiment slightly in favor of permitting Middleweight Champion Rocky Graziano's return to the ring.

The Illinois commission was the first to bar Graziano because of his war record and several other States passed similar resolutions which prompted the NBA to conduct its poll.

"In our opinion, no poll could have been more partial from its inception," the commission declared, "and this commission protested vigorously the manner in which the poll was being made.

"It is our considered opinion that the poll was a complete farce, the result of which certainly does not reflect credit upon the NBA, which is supposed to be the controlling influence for good in boxing, instead of a factor in dragging the sport into the gutter.

"It is discouraging to have the governing body conduct a poll as biased as this one was.

". . . desertion from the armed forces of one's country in time of war cannot be dealt with too heavily—certainly it should not be condoned."

"In view of the manner in which the National Boxing Association conducted the so-called poll in the recent Graziano case, the result is not surprising."

"The commission reiterates its former stand—that it will not permit one who has refused to fight for his country to fight for American dollars in the State of Illinois."

"The youth of the country can no longer look to the National Boxing Association for upholding American principles of patriotism."

2 Shooters Test Aim at Golf Ball

Spokane, Wash., Dec. 12 (AP). Two Spokane trapshooters think they can pick off a golf ball in full flight with shotgun blasts.

Marvin (Bud) Ward, Western amateur golf champion, thinks they can't.

So Ward will tee off Sunday with a red golf ball and Frank Stoop and Mayor Arthur Meehan will blaze away.

Ward figures his golf ball will travel 120 miles an hour for the first 50 yards. Gunsmiths say the muzzle velocity of a trap load is 900 feet per second, but that the effective range is 60 yards, so the gunners must hit the ball quickly or not at all.

Demaret Leads Golf With 132

Miami, Fla., Dec. 12 (AP).—Jimmy Demaret of Ojai, Calif., shot a 6-under-par 64 in the second round of the $10,000 Miami Open golf tournament today to take a 2-stroke lead at 132.

Ed Furgol of Detroit pulled into second place with a 68 which brought his total to 134.

Another stroke behind at 135 were two other Detroiters, Walter Burkemo, who posted a second-round 67, and Sammy Byrd, with a 68.

Rating with the Detroiters were Dave Douglas, Wilmington, Del., winner of the recent Orlando open, who carded a 4-under-par 66.

Fred Haas, jr., of New Orleans, leader in the first round, was tied at 137 with two leading amateurs, Frank Stranahan of Toledo, and Gene Dahlbender of Atlanta.

Haas fired a 2-over-par 72, Stranahan had a 69 and Dahlbender 68. Others at 137 were Ted Kroll, Philmont, Pa., Glenn Teal, Jacksonville, and Ben Hogan, Hershey, Pa.

Lew Worsham of Washington, D. C., added a 37-32—69 to his first round 70 for a 139. Worsham was seven strikes off the pace set by Jimmy Demaret of Ojai, Calif.

Team Wants Game

Mount Rainier Recreation Unlimited Basketball Team wants a game against a Washington opponent for Monday and Wednesday. Teams interested may call Lou Frey at Warfield 2283.

Heinie Miller Defends Poll

Heinie Miller of Washington, executive secretary of the National Boxing Association, defended the poll.

"This was not a half-baked job at all," Miller told a reporter. "We went at it rather thoroughly—and very expensively, too, I might add."

Miller said the NBA decided to make the poll after it had received a great many unsolicited letters, some for Graziano, some against.

"I have had 39 years of military service, 19 of it active," (as a colonel), said Miller, and "this whole thing is a very hard decision for me to make, but nothing I ever learned in service ever taught me to kick a man when he is down. I feel Graziano has fully paid his debt to society."

Southern Loop Rejects Post-Season Ban

Roanoke, Va., Dec. 12 (AP).—Two proposals to ban play in post-season football bowl games and to allow freshmen to participate in eight minor sports were rejected today by the Southern Conference at its 26th annual convention.

When Col. William Couper, conference president, from Virginia Military Instutute read the board ban proposal and asked for a second to the motion, not a word was said by any of the 60 coaches, athletic and athletic council members.

So Couper said the present rule that "no post-season games will be permitted, without consent of the conference" would remain in force.

Bowie Wins Bid For 1948 Dates

Baltimore, Dec. 12 (AP).—A dispute between Bowie and Pimlico over racing dates for 1948 was decided today in favor of the former by the Maryland Racing Commission.

The two tracks were in dispute over the number of Saturdays to be assigned. The commission gave three to Bowie and two to Pimlico.

The schedule for the four one-mile tracks remains about the same with Bowie, Havre de Grace and Pimlico having split meetings and Laurel running for 25 days in the fall.

The dates: Bowie, March 31-April 13 and November 13-27; Havre de Grace, April 14-May 1 and May 17-26; Pimlico, May 3-15 and October 29-November 12; Laurel, September 30-October 28.

Bettor's Bleat Brings on Probe

Honolulu, Dec. 12 (AP).—A gridder's complaint that his team's victory cost him a wager although he bet on it to win exploded today into a police investigation into gambling on last Sunday's championship fray in the Pacific Coast Pro Football League.

The Hawaii Warriors won, 7-6, and became league champs—but the squawking gridder and several of his teammates had wagered that they would triumph by 19 points or more.

Detective Capt. Eugene Kennedy said he was preparing to file gambling charges against 14 members of the Warriors. Gambling by pro athletes, although on themselves, is illegal in Hawaii.

4 Area Teams In Basketball Games Today

George Washington, victor in its first four games, makes its basketball debut in the spacious National Guard Armory tonight against Virginia Military Institute in a Southern Conference contest.

In another local game, American University entertains classy Muhlenberg. Georgetown, bidding for its third straight and national recognition, travels to New York to meet St. John's of Brooklyn in Madison Square Garden.

Catholic U. will play Loyola of Baltimore in an afternoon game there and Navy, opening its season, entertains Johns Hopkins also this afternoon.

Frank Summers, in his twenty-fifth year as a basketball coach, brings a VMI team that's composed mainly of freshman. A sidelight of tonight's game is that Summers coached Bill Cantwell at Hampden-Sydney when the Colonial ace was chosen the most valuable player in Virginia.

Starting for GW with Cantwell will be Art Cerra, Maynard Haithcock, Phil McNiff and Johnny Moffatt. The latter, an all-high selection when he played for McKinley Tech, has played a prominent part in the Colonials' four-game winning streak.

American U., fresh from its 57-42 Mason-Dixon Conference victory over Mount St. Mary's, will be out tonight to avenge two previous nonconference defeats. CCNY and Connecticut registered triumphs over American on its first trip.

Muhlenberg promises to furnish a stern test for American. Although the Mules lost to Temple, 56 to 53, they still have the Donovan brothers, who have starred in national tournament play.

Harry Donovan, who scored 389 points last season, made the All-Pennsylvania team and played on the East All-Stars in Madison Square Garden. Brother Ed, at 6.3, is the tallest man on the squad.

Georgetown has high hopes of gaining its third consecutive victory tonight before the critical New York audience tonight. After their 54-45 victory over previously unbeaten Loyola of Chicago, the Hoyas probably will be favored over St. John's.

Navy Communications Beats Quarters I, 50-38

Naval Communications Annex defeated Quarters "I," 50-38, at the victors' gym last night. Forward Joe Griffith tallied 16 points for the winners and Joe Spriggs dropped in 11 points for Quarters "I."

Bethesda-Chevy Chase Girls Beat Poolesville

Bethesda-Chevy Chase girls basketball team yesterday defeated Poolesville, 64-32, at the Poolesville (Md.) gym. Forward Janet Porter scored 32 points for the victors.

Joe Walcott Feels Champ Giving Him 'Brushoff'

New York, Dec. 12 (AP).—Joe Louis made it plain today that Light Heavyweight Champion Gus Lesnevich has at least as good a chance as Joe Walcott of being Louis' opponent in a title bout next June.

Louis' reference to Lesnevich was made when the heavyweight champion appeared before the press to announce he will retire from the ring after his title defense next summer.

His left eye still slightly puffed and discolored as a result of last week's bout with Walcott, Louis, when pinned down on whether he would prefer to fight Walcott or Lesnevih, said:

"I think Lesnevich is tougher. I think if Lesnevich had had me in the position this boy had me in, he would have knocked me out."

Walcott: "I Earned the Right"

Walcott, in New York for the day, expressed disappointment at Louis' statement and intimated the champion and a fine sportsman, but the "brushoff."

"I earned the right to fight Louis again," Jersey Joe commented. "I always considered him a great champion and a fine sportsman but now with him talking about meeting Lesnevich instead of me I don't know."

Walcott's handlers stated Jersey Joe would not be willing to engage in a return match for less than 30 per cent of the gate.

"He fought for 15 per cent the last time," a spokesman asserted, "and the contract stipulated that if Walcott won the receipts of a return engagement should be split 30-30.

"Louis himself set the division of the spoils—we didn't."

The Walcott spokesman said if Louis fought Lesnevich in his one remaining go as a champion then Jersey Joe would meet an unnamed opponent in Philadelphia in the summer and ask the National Boxing Association for recognition of the championship.

"It looks as if Louis is anxious to retire as a champion," he added. "He is thinking of the money he can get in various enterprises afterward. The best way for him to retire as champion is to fight Lesnevich instead of Walcott."

Seated behind Mike Jacobs' big desk in the Twentieth Century Sporting Club office, Louis met or fended off a barrage of questions almost as troublesome as the punches Walcott threw. Joe easily retained his crown as wise-cracking champion of the pugilistic trade and managed to bring forth the following bits of information:

To England For a Visit

That after his retirement, he will engage to some extent in several business enterprises, including a publicity agency with which he has been associated ever since he left the Army and the soft drink concern, which bears his name, and which will add beer to its line of products.

2. That he will leave for England February 19 for a month's visit in connection with the "health and holiday" program and will start training again at French Lick, Ind., immediately after his return.

Opening the mass interview, Louis announced: "It will be my last fight in June. After that the next fight I have will be in a bar room. I've had enough; I've been around a long time."

Harry Markson, Twentieth Century Club publicity man, interjected: "with the reservation, of course, that all prima donnas are entitled to six retirements."

Joe just grinned at that, and when a reporter asked: "Are you pretty well fixed financially?" Louis said: "I'm just on leave of absence from the Ford plant. I can always go back there."

Turyn Takes Turn

Maryland Certain to Be 'Up' (In the Air) for Bowl Game

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

If Maryland doesn't plan an air attack against Georgia in the January 1 Gator Bowl tussle, then a couple of seemingly significant developments yesterday are certainly misleading.

First off, the Terps announced they would go to Jacksonville by air, emplaning at 9 a. m., December 26.

And where will the air-minded Old Liners be quartered? At the Jacksonville Naval Air Station.

This isn't definite yet, but Maryland officials anticipate no trouble in getting their request approved to use the Navy's facilities there.

To inflate the idea that Tatum's bowl-happy Terrapins plan to do something besides breathe the Jacksonville air, Quarterback Vic Turyn, the ace passer, took his first workout since the N. C. State game yesterday.

Turyn, who was kicked in the back and played only four minutes of the scoreless tie with the Wolfpack, just jogged around the gridiron and took an hour's calisthenics. His pitching arm is in fine shape and he'll be ready to go full speed by Tuesday or Wednesday.

That's the best news the Terps have had in days, as Turyn is the boy who makes the Maryland "T" move.

There was cheering news from Athens, Ga., yesterday, too, but not for Maryland. The word from the Bulldog stronghold was that Quarterback Johnny Rauch, passing star, would be ready to go against Maryland January 1.

Rauch banged up a shoulder in the first quarter of the season's finale with Georgia Tech. The cast was removed yesterday and Coach Wally Butts is counting on Rauch.

Officially, the Bulldogs don't reassemble for practice until December 15, but most of the boys have been reporting to Butts daily for short drills.

Georgia will leave for Jacksonville December 28. The Bulldogs have already sold their supply of tickets. Of the 600 sent to College Park, 400 have already been purchased.

6 of 18 Teams Corner AP All-Pro Berths

By Frank Eck

NEW YORK, DEC. 12 (AP).—Three players from the National Football League, all linemen, repeated on The Associated Press 1947 All-Pro team announced today.

They are Tackle Al Wistert, 26, of the Philadelphia Eagles, Guard Riley Matheson, 31, of the Los Angeles Rams and Center Clyde (Bulldog) Turner, 28, of the Chicago Bears.

The only player to repeat from the All-America Conference is Orban (Speck) Sanders, 27, brilliant back with the New York Yankees.

The National League placed six players on the first team, the Conference five. Other National Leaguers on the team are freshman Tackle Dick Huffman of the Los Angeles Rams and Backs Sid Luckman of the Chicago Bears and Steve Van Buren of the Philadelphia Eagles.

Besides Sanders the four other Conference players, selected after checking reports from Associated Press sports writers in 14 cities, are Back Otto Graham and End Mac Speedie of the Cleveland Browns, End Bruce Alford of the Yankees and Guard Bruno Banducci of the San Francisco 49ers.

Although there 18 teams playing in the two professional leagues, the first team consisted of players from six teams.

Two of the first team players are former All-America men. They are Graham, Northwestern's All-America back of 1943, and Huffman, who made the 1946 All-America as a Tennessee tackle. Huffman is 22 and the youngest player on the All-Pro.

The All-Pro backfield consists of a powerful array with Graham and Luckman as the two outstanding passers and Sanders and Van Buren as hard runners.

Sanders is considered by his Yankee coach, Ray Flaherty, as "the best back in the country." Such a statement takes in a lot of territory, but it will be recalled that Flaherty coached the Washington Redskins in the rival National League.

The Yankee coach feels that Sammy Baugh of the Redskins still is the outstanding passer in the pro ranks.

However, Luckman received the call over Baugh in view of the winning streak he helped build up for the Chicago Bears. When Luckman and Baugh tangled early in the season, the Bear tosser completed 22 out of 31 passes in a 56-20 victory.

The second team backfield of Baugh, Johnny Clement of Pittsburgh, Frankie Albert of San Francisco and Marion Motley of Cleveland rates close to the first team.

Virginia Beach Survives Four-Way Photo Finish to Triumph

Caught in Draft

'Skins Lose Even If They Beat Yanks

A "situation," in addition to the Boston Yankees, will be facing the Washington Redskins as they close out their dreary National Football League season tomorrow at Griffith Stadium.

The Redskins must win to be sure they stay out of the league cellar. But if they win, chalking up their fourth victory, they lose the two extra draft choices reserved for all teams winning less than four games during the season.

A victory gives the Tribe a fairly successful season at home with four won and two lost. Six straight beatings on the road, however, have accounted for the local pros' worst season since coming here . . . Whatever their draft selections, after taking Alabama's Harry Gilmer as their bonus pick, the Redskins have announced the intention of going after the signatures of some previous draft choices . . . These include Charley Conerly of Mississippi, Tackle John Ferrara of Southern California, Cal Rossi of California and End John North of Vanderbilt . . . The middle of Washington's 1948 line figures to improve with the return of Clyde Ehrhardt to his center spot . . . The big star from Georgia, shot in the lung in Europe and advised to take a year off, recently declared himself "rarin' to go."

A new home attendance record goes on the books tomorrow . . . In five games the Redskins have drawn 181,642 fans and can't miss breaking their 1943 high of 206,540 for six games . . . Besides the lifetime records Sammy Baugh sets every time he touches a football, the Redskins have set 21 marks so far . . .

—Bill Burnett.

3d Victory In Row for Price Entry

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., Dec. 12.—E. W. Price, jr.'s, Virginia Beach acquired through a $5000 claim at Bowie, ran her local winning streak to three here today. The 3-year-old, showing disdain for her older opposition, survived a four-way photo finish to win the featured Ramoneur purse.

In the gang-rush to the wire, Virginia Beach was credited with a neck victory. J. E. Crider's much-raced comedy player was second and a like distance in advance of Miss Virginia McKinney's Scotsun, which, in turn, held a nose advantage over the Stevens Stable's Asaider in the field of seven.

With Scotsun the favorite, Virginia Beach paid $8.40, her best price here, under the handling of Jockey Ray Arduini of Washington, the daughter of Johnstown was clocked in 1:26 3/5 over a track rated "good." Ideal weather prevailed.

Scotsun, winner of his last four races in a row, took the lead early under the handling of Jockey Jimmy Baird. However, Arduini moved Virginia Beach up the pacemaker and the pair began a head-and-head struggle.

Asaider slipped through on the inside not only to get into the battle but to take a brief lead. In the stretch, this trio struggled as a team as Comedy Player came on with a rush.

It was anybody's race going to the wire. Virginia Beach had the final punch, however.

The program began with an odds-on victory by Mrs. J. Jenkins, jr.'s, Toppy which paid $3 to win after showing a front-running effort engineered by Jockey George Cardoza.

Staunton Beats Devitt, 53 to 43

Staunton, Va., Dec. 12.—After a ragged first half, Staunton Military Academy cagers picked up steam in the third and fourth periods to take hard earned 53-43 victory over Devitt Prep here this afternoon. It was opening game for local Cadets.

Tom Dandelet of West Virginia, paced the winners in the point-making department with 12, followed Bob Spears with 11. Patty Rhodes' 12 topped visitors.

Eastern High Loses, 57-34, In Opener

Eastern High's Ramblers opened their 1947-48 basketball season yesterday at Eastern gym by taking a 57-34 licking from Patterson Park, Baltimore's defending inter-high champion.

The close checking Parkers took command after three minutes of play and were ahead the rest of the way. Mel Baldwin, their 16-year-old star, who was voted most valuable player in last year's Duke-Durham tournament, saw action for only the first three quarters. But in that time he racked up 19 points. Most of his shots were layups from the left side.

The 5-foot, 9-inch Baldwin got plenty of assistance from Patterson Park's 6-foot, 3-inch center, Bob Gulas, who recovered about 60 per cent of the rebounds off both blackboards. Eastern's scoring standout was red-headed Walter Brown who tossed in nine points. Aggressive Harry Wharam shone for Eastern with his floor play.

In the preliminary, Eastern's junior varsity defeated Bell Vocational School, 30-13.

At Charles Town.

DEAR FOLKS:

Nothing succeeds like success. Jockey George Cardoza got his "hot hand" early in the meeting. As a result he is much in demand for serious riding and tops the saddle artists here. The Connecticut boy's family found their way to America via Portugal. He is one of the best educated riders on the grounds. Cardoza didn't get very far in the saddle before he went in the Army, but since has been coming along at top rate. He is married and is buying a home for his parents. Much of his success here can be traced to Calvin Bowling, his agent, who has made a specialty of looking out for good boys for some years. The Baltimorean has developed several apprentices of merit and has had the book of many big-time riders, including Paul Keiper. At the conclusion of this meeting Bowling goes to Tampa, Fla., with apprentice T. Richmond. Cardoza will pass up winter racing and wait for the opening of Bowie next spring. He is serious about a riding career and hopes to gain a foothold on the Maryland milers, where he was an occasional winner last fall. Big Saturday show here. See you on the rail. BILL.

Tomorrow Against Marianapolis

Bullis Prep Holds Big Weight Edge in Shoe Bowl Game

Special to The Washington Post

Lynn, Mass., Dec. 12.—The future Admirals of Bullis Prep of Silver Spring, Md., will carry an average weight advantage of more than 6 pounds per man in the line and more than 2 pounds per man in the backfield when they fan out for the starting whistle against Marianapolis Academy of Thompson, Conn., in the "Shoe Bowl" classic here Sunday afternoon.

Up front, Bullis will average more than 198 pounds per man, while the Connecticut club will average slightly less than 192 pounds from end to end.

Heavyweights in the opposing forward walls will be Paul Tetreault, the Bullis 215-pound right tackle, and Mike Topalian, the 215-pound center for Marianapolis.

The biggest advantage in weight and height, in the starting lineups, will be enjoyed by Dick Goelzer, the 200-pound, 6-foot 4-inch Bullis left end, against Ed Kissell, the 173-pound, 5-foot 8-inch right end for Marianapolis. The high-scoring Bullis giants may make life miserable for the Marians Sunday afternoon, unless Coach Vin Wassell can fashion a defense to neutralize Goelzer's physician advantages.

Chief scoring threat for Marianapolis is Walter Belardinelli, left halfback, who stands 6 feet tall and tips the beam at 195 pounds. Belardinelli has scored 15 touchdowns and five points after in his team's seven straight wins this season. He is extremely fast and in every game this fall he has broken away for long runs.

The clash of these unbeaten and untied elevens is being billed here as "for the national prep school championship." The game is being sponsored by Lynn Post 7, Italian-American War Veterans, and the net proceeds will go into the rehabilitation and hospital fund of the organization.

'Frostbite' Regatta Today

The first annual Potomac Frostbite Sailing Regatta under the sponsorship of Georgetown, George Washington and Maryland universities begins today with nine schools competing.

Teams from Princeton, Harvard, Brown, Yale, M. I. T., Boston College and the three area schools will race for the Marvin-Gorman-Byrd Trophy on the Potomac off the Carinthian Yacht Club.

The regatta will continue throughout tomorrow.

Brown, winner of the intercollegiate championships last November, will be a slight favorite, with Yale, Harvard and George Washington regarded as the leading challengers.

Today's program, which will last from 1 to 5 p. m., comprises eight races. Twelve more races, starting at 9 a. m. tomorrow, complete the event.

A banquet for competitors will be held tonight, 6:30, at Georgetown, while a dance, including the crowning of the regatta queen, takes place tonight at the George Washington University Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity house.

What Am I Saying! — By Frank Morgan: Don't believe a liar. Not one lie in a hundred is true!

Merger Plan For Chests Of 3 Areas Advocated

35 Board of Trade Volunteers Seek To Help Business Unit 1 Reach Goal

Consolidation of the Fairfax, Arlington and Alexandria, Va., Welfare Councils and Community Chests has been urged by Wallace S. Hughes, executive director of he Alexandria Council and Chest.

Hughes recommended the move as the Community Chest Federation announced that volunteers were keeping alive the drive to raise $3,900,000 for 1948, although the official area-wide campaign was completed on Thursday.

An active group of 35 members of the Washington Board of Trade has begun a solicitation drive to aid Business Unit 1 of hteFederation campaign, which seeks to bring in $1,532,500 toward the $3,900,000 goal.

For Northern Virginia

The Alexandria welfare official told a meeting of the Alexandria Community Welfare Council he believed the welfare groups in the three communities should be merged into a Community Chest of Northern Virginia. The consolidated group would continue to participate in the Community Chest Federation, which for the past several years has included the entire greater Washington area.

The suggestion for the merger came after Hughes had pointed out that the federation campaign had achieved only 81.38 per cent of its quota. He suggested other changes in Virginia because of the reduced 1948 budget.

Among those would be merging of the Alexandria Visiting Nurse Service with the Community Health Center, and inclusion of these two services as part of Alexandria Hospital, with a reasonable fund provided to the hospital for clinics, medical social service and hospitalization.

The Public Welfare Department would be requested to finance a program for transients, under Hughes' recommendations, paying the Salvation Army for room and board. He also suggested combining the Hopkins House facilities into the Bethune Branch, YWCA, and urged study of unifying the programs of the Catholic Charities of Northern Virginia and the Family Service Society.

To Be Led By Lamar

The Board of Trade post-campaign volunteers are all members of the membership committee of the Board and will be led by W. Russell Lamar, committee chairman. Business Unit I, which will be aided by the group, had obtained $1,151,726 in contributions, or 78.49 per cent of its quota, by the final report meeting of the Federation drive on Thursday. Granville Gude is chairman.

Federation Campaign Chairman Edward H. Foley, jr., who has pledged that the drive will continue "so long as it is fruitful," reminded the community that Chest-supported agencies are facing a 1948 total deficit of $826,258 if the drive is not successful.

"I must remind every citizen that our work cannot be ended until we have reached everyone who can afford to give," said Foley. "Checks can still be written to the Community Chest Federation and mailed in to 1101 M st. nw."

Three Injured, Two Cars Demolished In Lee Highway Sideswiping Collision

. . . AND THREE WERE INJURED—A collision last night on the Lee Highway at Uhle st., Arlington, Va., virtually destroyed the two cars and injured three persons

Two cars were virtually demolished and three persons injured in a collision on Lee highway at Uhle st., Arlington, Va., last night at 6 p. m.

Arlington County police said a car driven by James T. Johnson, 29, of 1721 North Edison st., Arlington, going east on Lee highway, crashed into the side of a westbound auto driven by Lawton E. Inabinet, 32, of 1007 North Liberty st., Arlington.

Three persons, all passengers in Inabinet's car, were injured and were taken to Arlington Hospital. They were Harry O. Clem, 45, of 600 North Lincoln st., Arlington, who was admitted with possible internal injuries and cuts; Mrs. Shirley Kent, 22, of 730 Oakland st., Arlington, released after treatment for cuts to both knees, and Miss Wyllo Hill, 20, of 5420 North 9th rd., Arlington, who was released after treatment for cuts and bruises.

Property damage to the two cars was estimated at $1400.

Three Cars Collide

In the District, a three-car crash at 2d and K sts. ne. injured the driver of one vehicle.

Thomas Harrow, 24, 1906 Pennsylvania ave. nw., driver of an ice cream truck, suffered back injuries when his truck collided with another and ricocheted from the curb into a passing Woodward & Lothrop bus. He was taken to Casualty Hospital.

Police said that Harrow's truck was proceeding east on K st. when it collided with a panel truck driven by William H. Craig, 19, 1251 Kearny st. ne., going south on 2d st. The ice cream truck glanced into the corner curbing and off into the path of the bus, operated by Ryland Sasacer, 50, 738 15th st. ne., they said. Neither of the other drivers or the some seven or eight passengers in the bus were injured.

Leaves Sidewalk, Struck

Richard A. Jarboe, 4, 316 E st. ne., was struck by an automobile when he walked from the sidewalk between two parked cars on E st. near his home. He was taken to Casualty Hospital with possible head injuries and a possible fractured leg.

Irwin Brock, 52, whose address was not immediately determined was injured when struck by a car operated by Samuel Stevenson, 17, 530 44th st. ne., on 7th st. nw. Police said that he was crossing against the red light. He was admitted to Emergency Hospital where he was said to have possible fractured wrists and head injuries.

Parking Lot Ups Fee to Cut Business

Proprietor of Big Downtown Facility Would Discourage All-Day Customers

A District businessman yesterday came up with a novel reason for raising prices—he's doing it to drive customers away.

That was explained as the primary object of posting a notice that all-day rates at the Great Plaza parking lot in the rear of the District Building will be increased 10 cents, effective December 16, the management declared.

Public rates at the lot—which holds 1150 cars and is one of the largest in the city—will be boosted from 50 cents to 60 cents for all-day customers. There will be no change in night prices or the special $5 a month rate to Federal employes.

Wants Part-Time Parkers

F. Warren Brokaw, who with Dominic Antonelli, jr., leases the lot from the Federal Government and operates it in the name of Federal Parking Services, declared:

"There are just more customers than we can handle. We refuse to become involved in the traffic congestion caused by all these people ganging up here, and we are entitled to sufficient revenue to repay us for our effort and services.

"We haven't been able to take care of 'shoppers' and other part-time parkers, who are the most profitable to us," said Brokaw. "We are still the most economical lot in the area."

Brokaw said there is "no profit in letting the lot fill up in the morning and waiting until 5 p. m. to clear it out. If 60 cents doesn't scare any all-day parkers out we're just going to cut down on our employes and make this an all-day lot."

People who cannot afford to use a parking lot should be permitted to park on the Ellipse, behind the White House, Brokaw declared. Parking there is now limited to two hours.

Coast Guard Ban

The public still is barred from parking at the Coast Guard lot at 13th and D sts. nw., across from the Great Plaza lot, when the Coast Guard lot is not in general Federal use—after 6 p. m. and on weekends and holidays.

On order of H. R. Owen, manager of the Triangle district for the Public Building Administration, a cable was stretched across the entrance of the lot to keep out free parkers when the lot, with a capacity of 143 cars, is not being used by Government employes with parking passes.

Officials said that was done to keep out those "creating nuisances," and to prevent a fire hazard, but Owen later acknowledged that the operators of the Great Plaza lot also had asked him to close the Coast Guard lot to the public.

H. G. Hunter, assistant commissioner of the Public Buildings Administration, said yesterday that the space at 13th and D sts. is assigned to the Coast Guard "and its their business."

"We have the same situation," he said, "with respect to all Government buildings with parking lots."

Butter Tops $1 a Pound At Some Dealers Here

Rise Sends Price To Highest Point In Quarter Century; Margarine Is Up

Butter at more than $1 a pound was being sold here yesterday for the first time in 25 years.

New high in top quality, print butter was reached by some Connecticut ave. stores, with a $1.05-a-pound price tag. One large dairy slipped over the $1 level, charging $1.01 for a pound of 93-score, home-delivered butter.

Prices in general, however, remained below the dollar mark, with most chain stores selling top grade butter from 95 to 98 cents. Several dairies were getting 99 cents a pound for their best-grade butter.

Other prices in chain stores ranged downward as low as 85 cents.

Butter prices in Washington are the highest since 1921-22, said Henry Males, chairman of the butter and egg division of the Merchant and Manufacturers Association.

Margarine Price Up, Too

He found an indication of consumer resistance in the fact that the New York wholesale butter market dropped 1½ to 2 cents a pound Thursday from its Wednesday high of 90½. The Department of Agriculture, however, reported that yesterday's New York wholesale price was back to 90 cents.

Oleomargarine prices were up, too, ranging from 39 to 45 cents a pound in most stores. Average price was around 43 cents for best quality margarine.

While butter prices have been increasing steadily for weeks, one dairy official yesterday reported the 99 cents his company was charging for home-delivered butter represented a 5-cent increase over its price of a week ago.

Even so, he declared, "we're really not making any money on butter. Everybody is selling it at a loss."

The official said his company had set its price at 99 cents because "we're ashamed to charge any more."

"We didn't want to charge a dollar," he said.

"Doesn't Make Sense"

A spokesman for the Washington Restaurant Association said the new prices simply meant "that much less butter, that much more margarine" would be served in District restaurants.

Males declared there was no reason why prices should be so high right now. "It doesn't make sense," he said.

He pointed out that the Capital Butter & Egg Co., Inc., of which he is an official, was wholesaling butter at prices ranging from 88 to 90 cents a pound for best grade, a figure 3 or 4 cents lower than most wholesalers.

Jefferson, Shaw High Schools Praised for Food Drive Help

The Washington Post

"CONSERVATIONISTS"—Betty Frances Davis (left), of 625 M st. sw., and Grace Piccioni, 937 Maryland ave. sw., make coconut mounds in the home economics class at Jefferson Junior High School

The Jefferson and Shaw junior high schools have been cited for their cooperation in the food conservation drive.

The schools were singled out by Mrs. Olga Day Rush and Dr. Madeleine W. Kirkland, directors of home economics for the District schools, as the two whose students and teachers have done most to further the campaign of the D. C. Citizens' Food Conservation Committee.

Mrs. Rush and Dr. Kirkland, who are members of the public schools Food Conservation Committee, praised the schools in a report to D. C. Conservation Chairman James E. Colliflower.

At Jefferson Junior High, Mrs. Elsie Davidson's ninth grade students are engaged in a Christmas project of which the theme is "At Christmas time, use the food that is plentiful."

Menus for Christmas goodies include coconut mounds, stuffed dates, fruit rolls, peanut butter brittle, uncooked peanut butter candy and candied apples—all chosen because no eggs or flour are required to make them, according to Mrs. Davidson.

Lining the walls of Mrs. Emma A. Herron's seventh grade homemaking class at the Shaw School are Government posters and hand-drawn sketches made by the pupils. The sketches illustrate fod conservation rhymes. Each student is making a scrapbook of conservation hints and food news.

The class stresses methods of stretching meats in the dinner menu and the use of inexpensive cuts. Half slices of bread are served in the home economics classroom as a conservation measure.

Police Board Defers Ruling In Haun Trial

Patrolman Claims He Did Not See Fight, So Made No Arrests

A youthful police private yesterday pleaded not guilty to a charge that he had neglected his duties at a police board trial.

Haun

At the hearing, which lasted 4½ hours, a dozen witnesses were heard in the unusual case involving Private Robert W. Haun, 29, attached to Eleventh Precinct, accused of failing to make a thorough investigation and an arrest in a knifing incident along his Congress Heights beat November 16.

The trial board, which included Police Inspector Clement Cox, Thirteenth Precinct Capt. Albert I. Bullock, and Assistant Corporation Counsel Irving Bryan, deferred decision after earlier turning down a motion by the defense that the charges be dismissed.

Jones Sentence Upheld

The board also held up its sentence in the case of Private Jerome J. Jones, 28, of Tenth Precinct, who pleaded guilty to having fallen asleep on his beat in the early hours of November 30. Jones, who had served in the Navy during the war, joined the force in 1943. Yesterday was his first appearance before the police trial board. After pleading guilty, he told the board that he had gone to work overfatigued after a busy day tending to a sick wife, an ailing child, and three other children.

Private Haun, a former Marine who joined the Police Department in 1942, was off duty the night a scuffle took place in the 2800 block of Nichols ave. se., involving at least one soldier and two civilians.

3 Injured in Fight

During the fight, which began in a restaurant and wound up in the street, three persons were injured. Pfc. Thomas R. Bryant, attached to a Bolling Field unit, and Clyde C. Carter, a Navy Yard blacksmith of 321 Raleigh st. se., were cut up and hospitalized; and Leo Buckler, a St. Elizabeths attendant, of 335 Raleigh st. se., was punched and kicked in the face.

Haun came upon the scene—according to his and other testimony—after the fighting was over, sometime between 8 and 8:30 p. m. The private made no arrests, he said, because he did not witness the fighting and no one would accuse anybody of a cutting.

Just before 10 p. m., as he was about to proceed to the Eleventh Precinct Station to file his official report of the incident, Haun testified, he encountered Lieut. Roy Aggleson at the scene of the fighting.

Negligency Charged

Assistant Corporation Counsel William S. Cheatham argued that Private Haun was negligent in failing to make a quick report to the station house. Defense Counsel Charles E. Ford contended, on the other hand, that Haun, although off duty was proceeding with his investigation in a normal manner.

Court Definition of Word Sport Frees Woman in Morals Case

By Alfred E. Lewis
Post Reporter

A dispute between judge and prosecutor on the meaning of the word "sport" yesterday freed a 29-year-old old woman of charges of soliciting prostitution.

Pvt. Herman A. Payne of the Vice Squad testified before Judge Armond Scott in Municipal Court that he arrested Florence V. Hobbs, Baltimore, in the 600 block of N st. nw. late Thursday night after she approached him.

Payne testified the woman asked: "Would you like to spend some money for some sport in my room?" She further told Payne that the cost would be $3 including the room.

The judge said that he thought the word "sport" was ambiguous. He continued the case for half an hour while he sent his law clerk to get the latest decision.

When the case resumed, Scott quoted the United States Court of Appeals in a similar case as saying the word "date" was ambiguous and did not necessarily mean that a woman asking for a date was inviting prostitution.

Assistant United States Attorney James McKay remonstrated:

"But surely, Your Honor, the time of the night and the conversation about the money and the room would have a direct bearing on the interpretation of the word "sport."

Scott replied that people played poker at night or had drinking parties at night. He added he was morally convinced that sex was involved in this case, but would not sentence people on his moral convictions.

Scott said that the ruling of the Court of Appeals would make him dismiss the case. He so ordered.

Little More Of That Sun Is Due Today

A cold air mass lay over most of the Nation yesterday like icing on a cake—and Washington was out on the edge where the coating was thin.

The warm sun got through enough to send the temperature here to a high 40 degrees and the Weather Bureau said it would warm up about that much today under clear skies.

Of more than 60 degrees and the Weather Bureau readings from all parts of the country, San Diego's 69 was one of the highest for the day. The Texas citrus country was in the 40s; Jacksonville, Fla., had a low of 52.

Freitas Vale Named Brazilian Envoy to U. S.

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, Dec. 12 (U.P.).—Cyro de Freitas Vale has been appointed Ambassador to the United States, the Foreign Office announced today.

He will succeed Carlos Martins, who has been Ambassador in Washington since March 1939. Martins was expected to be transferred to Buenos Aires.

Austrian Wine Reminds Parley of Treaty Need

London, Dec. 12.—Dr. Karl Gruber, Austrian Foreign Minister who is here because of the Council of Foreign Ministers, has sent each of the Big Four foreign ministers a bottle of Austrian wine with this note:

"This little gift from Austrian soil, besides providing you with some enjoyment, may remind you that Austria is still waiting for the conclusion of the (Austrian peace) treaty."

Today, it was learned, Viacheslav M. Molotov, Soviet Foreign Minister, had sent his bottle back to Dr. Gruber, unopened.

600 Lost Jobs In Maryland During Week

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 12 (AP).—Eight Maryland firms laid off approximately 600 workers temporarily last week when unemployment compensation payments totaled $124,883 in the State.

Readjustment allowances to veterans came to $89,934, Russell S. Davis, chairman of the Department of Employment Security, reported to Governor Lane.

Payments in the county offices included 2966 checks totaling $49,610, and in Baltimore 3796 checks totaling $66,345. Out-of-State claimants received 448 checks totaling $8919.

County veterans received 2501 checks totaling $49,546 and Baltimoreans 2034 checks totaling $40,388.

Fulton Lewis, Jr. Wins Suit Over Use of Road

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 12 (AP).—Fulton Lewis, jr., radio commentator, had the backing of Maryland's Court of Appeals today in his insistence that neighbors stop using a roadway on his Scotch Neck peninsula estate.

The court upheld a decree of the St. Marys County Court barring Mr. and Mrs. Mangum Weeks from "trespassing" upon Lewis' property.

Mr. and Mrs. Weeks, who own land on the other half of the peninsula which extends into a tributary of the Patuxent River, had appealed the County Court's decision.

They argued that they have used the roadway since 1936, when erosion destroyed the original road dividing the properties. The new route lies entirely on land owned by Lewis and his wife.

Prosecutor And Lawyer End in Draw

By Alfred E. Lewis
Post Reporter

A lawyer and a prosecutor, each trying his first case in Municipal Court, yesterday, fought a 15-minute battle over a charge of attempted car theft and wound up with a temporary, no decision, draw.

The lawyer, Louis Jongbloet, 40, 4304 Ellicott st. nw., was appointed by Judge Armond Scott to defend Genne Rinne, 22, 900 North Wayne st., Arlington, Va., charged with attempted larcency of a policeman's automobile Thursday afternoon.

The prosecutor, Stafford R. Grady, 26, 2107 Wyoming ave. nw., youngest man in the United States Attorney's office was appointed an assistant last month. Both he and Jongbloet are graduates of George Washington University law school.

Jongbloet a former professor of languages at Columbus University, obtained his law degree while convalescing at Walter Reed Hospital from injuries received in Italy while a member of the Civilian Intelligence Division.

The prosecutor presented his witnesses first—Pvt. Harvey Mattingly of the First Precinct, who testified he saw Rinne in a car parked across from the Municipal Building, and Pvt. Robert F. Siebert, to whom the car belonged and who arrested Rinne.

Siebert testified that Rinne admitted getting into his car but said that he thought it was a friend's car. Siebert said the car glove compartment had been rifled and the ignition wires tampered with.

The defense attorney then moved that Judge Scott dismiss the case on the grounds that the prosecution had failed to show that Rinne had tried to steal the car.

However the prosecutor came back with the argument that testimony that the ignition wires had been tampered with proved that there was an attempt to steal the car.

The judge ruled in favor of the prosecutor, and the defense attorney asked the defendant to take the stand in his own behalf. Rinne testified that he had gone for a walk on his lunch hour and had got into the policeman's car thinking it belonged to an Alexandria friend.

The youthful prosecutor then asked the judge to find the man guilty, but was overruled.

The judge continued the case until Wednesday to give Rinne a chance to bring his friend into court to show he has a similar car.

Police Trial In Clegg Case Is Postponed

The special police trial board yesterday deferred hearings of the Clegg case until early in January.

Postponement of the trial of three policemen accused of illegally arresting, detaining and beating Julius Willie Clegg, 26-year-old Negro war veteran, was granted at the request of Assistant Corporation Counsel Oliver Gasch.

Gasch said that he and Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West, who will personally handle the case, needed more time to question 29 witnesses to be called up by the prosecution.

Also, Gasch disclosed, West is planning to confer with Maj. Robert J. Barrett, superintendent of police, to amend charges preferred against the three policemen, Dectective Sergt. Alex K. Kapsol, Sex Squad Investigator David S. Ennis and Pvt. John G. Gibboney of the First Precinct.

The board—comprising Inspector Clement Cox, chief clerk of the department; Capt. Albert I. Bullock, of the 13th Precinct; and James O'D. Moran, member of the Alcoholic Control Board—agreed to set hearings at a January date acceptable to the Corporation Counsel's Office and Charles E. Ford, defense counsel.

Area News in Brief

Smoldering Chair Brings Fast Action

Billows of smoke led to some brave efforts yesterday before it all turned out to be a smoldering overstuffed chair.

The smoke was pouring out of a second-floor apartment at 112 Irvington st. sw., at 9:15 a. m., when Theodore G. Tulin, 22, of a downstairs apartment there took action.

He obtained a passkey, donned an old Army mask, he said, and invaded the apartment. But, it appears that the mask was ineffective against the smoke and he dashed for a window.

Wolf

At the same time Police Pvt. John J. Wolf, 35, of the Eleventh Precinct, was dressing in his home at 111 Joliet st. nw. He saw the smoke, put on his coat and rushed to the scene

He manage dto get a ladder, and was starting to the rescue when Tulin manage dto get out the window and start down.

Firemen soon arrived and found an overstuffed chair on fire. There was little damage to the apartment, although Tulin reported that he got his lungs full of smoke, while Wolf said he caught a cold from his exertions.

Twin Polar Bears Die

Twin polar bears, born at the Zoo early Thursday morning and cast off by their mother, died early yesterday.

Attempts were made to bottle feed them every three hours, but both weakened rapidly during the night, according to Dr. William Mann, director of the Zoo. Bear cubs seldom live when born in captivity, he said.

Held for Grand Jury

Robert M. DeBolt, 18, a seaman attached to the Naval Research Institute, Bethesda, was ordered held for the grand jury yesterday under $2000 bond on a charge of sodomy. At the preliminary hearing in Bethesda Police Court, police testified DeBolt "waylaid" a 14-year-old boy December 6 on a vacant lot in Bethesda.

In a similar case, Okey C. Patton, 38, of 2137 G st. nw., was convicted in Montgomery Circuit Court of a like charge after a 19-year-old "decoy" testified he encouraged Patton's advances while police watched from behind a tree. Imposition of sentence was deferred by Judge Stedman Prescott.

Suit Charges Coercion

A 49-year-old former Washington dentist, who is now a Silver Spring developer, has charged in a divorce suit his 27-year-old wife "coerced" him into signing over his property to her shortly before she deserted him.

In the suit, filed in Montgomery County Circuit Court, Dr. S. Dewey Gottlieb, 1017 Woodside pkwy., Silver Spring, charged his second wife, Mrs. Evalynne D. Gottlieb, walked out of his home December 2 taking valuables and negotiable papers.

He asked for a limited divorce and obtained a temporary injunction restraining his wife or her mother from cashing a $15,000 certified check or $30,000 in real estate notes.

Note to Santa Claus

Santa Claus, please note:

There is at the Twelfth Precinct stationhouse an electric train set consisting of one Marx electric engine, five cars, track and one transformer, found near a tree in the 1000 block Franklin st. ne., about 5:45 a. m. yesterday by Police Pvt. Adam J. Ekas.

Fire in Newspaper Plant

A small fire in a ventilating fan caused damage estimated at several hundred dollars at the Times Herald building, 1317 H st. nw., shortly before noon yesterday.

The blaze occurred in the stereotype room. Heat from a lead pot vent pipe set fire to the ventilating fan motor and to dust which had collected around the fan, employes said. The dense smoke required the use of masks by firemen, but there were no injuries.

Mrs. Glass Loses Gold Pin

Mrs. Aurelia Glass, widow of Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, yesterday reported to police here the loss of a gold pin set with pearls and garnet stones, a family heirloom.

"For generations, just about every girl in our family has worn that pin when she was married," said Mrs. Glass, who resides at the Mayflower Hotel.

The pin apparently fell from her dress, Mrs. Glass surmised, while she was riding in one of several taxis Thursday. Mrs. Glass said a great-grandmother had given it to her many years ago.

Defendant Surprised

A man being tried for the theft of two pairs of trousers belonging to William Prescott, former Montgomery County Commissioner, learned in court yesterday the judge in the case was Stedman Prescott, brother of the victim.

The defendant, Norville Lee Simpson, 35, formerly of Washington but now of New York, was found guilty in a jury trial. Judge Prescott deferred imposition of sentence.

To Speak at Annapolis

Harold E. Stassen, former naval captain, will speak tomorrow at the United States Naval Academy when a bronze bust of Fleet Admiral William Halsey, jr., former commander of the Third Fleet, is presented to the Academy. Stassen was Halsey's flag secretary.

The bust, gift of Benjamin B. Dossett, class '07, Charlotte, N. C., and Mrs. Dossett, is the work of former Lieut. Comdr. Wheeler Williams, Chicago and New York, 1937 Paris gold medal winner. During the war Williams served in photo interpretations.

The ceremony will be attended by many high ranking officers who served with Admiral Halsey.

Right-of-Way Brings $954

A Fairfax condemnation jury yesterday awarded Joseph S. Genovese $954 for 2.7 acres needed by Virginia Electric & Power Co., for a power line right-of-way.

Genovese's tract, part of a nursery,, lies two and a half miles south of Annandale in Fairfax County.

This was the third case in a group of seven which must be settled before VEPCO can start construction of its 110,000 volt line to bring more power to the fast growing northern Virginia area.

Church Units Completed

Foundations for the first two units of the new St. Ann's Catholic Church and school have been completed in Arlington's Westover area, the Rev. R. Dixon Beattie, church pastor, announced yesterday.

The two units, to be used temporarily as a church and upon completion as a social hall, are located at the intersection of N. 10th and N. Frederick sts. and Fairfax dr. After all units are built, St. Ann's will have a church, school, convent, and rectory. The first units are scheduled for completion by next Easter.

Legion Head Resigns

Willard D. Normandy yesterday announced his resignation as commander of Takoma Park Post 28, American Legion. He said he was resigning the post, to which he was elected in June, to accept a position in Chattanooga, Tenn.

Cost of Celebration

A 19-year-old youth who admitted he pulled a false alarm to celebrate his release from Occoquan will have something else to celebrate in about 60 days—his release from jail.

Tripped up by an alert cab driver, Livingston Rich, of 1244 I st. ne., was sentenced to 30 days straight time by Municipal Judge Aubrey Fennell yesterday. He will have to serve an additional 30 days for not paying a $100 fine.

The cab driver, Ernest Stasulli, 27, of 1208 Meigs st. ne., told Judge Fennell he watched Rich pull an alarm at 7th and G sts. nw., then walk away. Stasulli trailed him and pointed him out to police when they arrived.

Pleading guilty, Rich said he had been drinking to celebrate completion of a term for housebreaking.

Academy Gets Uniform Nimitz Had at Surrender

By The Associated Press

Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, retiring Chief of Naval Operations, yesterday presented to the Naval Academy Museum the khaki uniform he wore when he signed the Japanese surrender documents aboard the U. S. Missouri in Toyko Bay September 2, 1945.

"I'm giving all of the uniform except the shoes and I need those to walk to California," joked Admiral Nimitz.

As a surprise, the admiral took out of a paper bag a South Pacific native fan, a circular woven grass mat edged with feathers.

"My wife says it is attracting moths," said the admiral, a bit wistfully.

Falls Church Relief Plan Gains Ground

The unusual "Falls Church Plan" to collect food and clothing for needy European families yesterday had spread to Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Washington, with an eventual prospect of reaching every major city in the country.

Originating with Mr. and Mrs. John Graham, 216 Little Falls st., Falls Church, the "plan" calls on individuals or families to form themselves into "sharing teams" to pay for, collect and arrange for shipment of food and clothing packages abroad.

Graham yesterday traveled to Philadelphia with copies of the idea to present to acquaintances there. Earlier, he had contacted friends in Washington and Baltimore on the plan.

Will Promote Plan

Meantime, Mrs. Beatrice Schalet, director of the Washington office of CARE (Cooperative for American Remittances to Europe) said she planned to ask the relief group's headquarters in New York City to have a description of the Falls Church idea sent to 1700 newspapers across the country.

Mrs. Graham, cooriginator of the idea, said she already had spoken to civic leaders in the nearby Vienna and Sleepy Hollow, Va. communities about the plan and expected the idea to catch hold there.

Mayor Praises Move

Falls Church Mayor Fenner Hazelgrove yesterday described the plan as "most worthy," and commended the group of town residents now participating "for taking the bull by the horns and doing something" about Europe's problems.

The "sharing teams," composed of three families under the plan, are expected to recruit a fourth member who in turn will begin another team.

Working from a master list of needy European families compiled by reputable international relief agencies, teams may designate families they desire to aid, pool their food and clothing for shipment, or buy ready-packed food boxes.

NCPPC Acts

Airport Site On Kingman Island Out

The National Capital Park and Planning Commission yesterday disapproved use of Kingman Lake Island as a site for an airport for private flying.

The NCPPC, concluding its regular monthly meeting, disapproved the site, straddling an imaginary East Capitol st. in the Anacostia River, chiefly on the grounds that it is in the midst of a thickly populated area, Maj. Gen. Ulysses S. Grant 3d, chairman, said.

The NCPPC's motion of disapproval followed a strong plea by the Washington Aviation Planning Council, headed by Gen. Jennings Randolph, on behalf of the site. The council recommended no other location.

Need Recognized

The NCPPC said it recognized "the immediate need for providing for smaller planes as close-in as possible, but not within any thickly settled, developed part of the District of Columbia or metropolitan areas in Maryland and Virginia."

Study of "one or more" possible close-in airports "will be expedited as much as possible," the NCPPC said.

Earlier in the day Commissioner W. E. Reynolds of the Public Buildings Administration told the NCPPC that Congress had allocated funds to draw plans for a combined 500-bed hospital and research center at the National Institute of Health at Bethesda, Md.

Research in cancer, heart disease and other diseases will be provided for in the new laboratories to be constructed on the Luke Wilson estate property across Rockville pike from the new Naval Hospital. More ground is to be acquired.

Great Plaza Plans

The commissioner also outlined plans for beautification and limited automobile parking at the Great Plaza on 14th st. between Pennsylvania and Constitution aves. nw.

According to the plan agreed upon in 1945, the plaza, now a public parking lot, will include parking for automobiles of the District Building and surrounding Federal buildings under rows of trees on three sides, with the recently dedicated Oscar Straus Memorial Fountain as the central feature.

Revised plans for the new Federal court house, Constitution ave. and 3d st. nw., were presented by Architect Louis Justement, providing a main entrance to the building on the south, with a main parking entrance for 180 cars on 3d st.

Parking Survey Asked

Brig. Gen. George R. Young, District Engineer Commissioner, stressed the need of making an intensive study of the parking situation in this whole area. The study, expected to be made by the District Motor Vehicle Parking Agency and the Highway Department, will include the entire Judiciary Square are as well as the new Municipal Center.

The study is especially pertinent as construction of the new courthouse will remove one of the city's largest downtown parking lots.

Plans for future development of the United States Soldiers' Home, a United States Engineers office project, also were described to the NCPPC, which is interested ni seeing that roads are extended north to south and east to west through the Home development.

Plans for development of Columbia Island, at the western end of Memorial Bridge, were reviewed by the NCPPC in an effort to expedite deevlopment. The plans call for a roadway through the center of a plaza on the island with ornamental columns on each side.

Action on River Fill

The NCPPC also asked the District Engineer's Office to withhold a permit requested by the Braddock Light & Power Co. to fill and rip-rap the river's edge in the vicinity of its building at the north end of Alexandria until such time as ownership could be worked out between the company and the Department of the Interior. The section, involving water rights, is east of Memorial Circle, Mount Vernon Highway.

The NCPPC's staff was directed to work out plans for the Armstrong High School addition at Brentwood pkwy., and 6th st. ne., with the District Commissioners and Board of Education, to prevent any conflict of purposes with adjacent Columbia Institution for the Deaf.

The NCPPC also asked readjustment of plans for the Payne School construction at 15th and C sts. se., so as to provide one large playground instead of two small ones.

Law Change Sought

The NCPPC also decided to seek introduction og legislation permitting transfer of land outside the District boundaries between the District and any Federal agency. A similar law permiting exchange within the District has been in effect about 15 years.

It also was decided to seek reintroduction of a bill for exchange of land between the Department of the Interior and the Smoot Sand & Gravel Corp., on an acre-for-acre basis along Mount Vernon hwy. below Alexandria.

The company, whose property extends along a section of the highway, can build or excavate up to the pavement. To preserve scenic values, the NCPPC recommends exchange of some adjoining Department of Interior land for a strip along the highway.

The NCPPC announced that its next meetings will be held January 29-30, March 18-19 and April 29-30.

PUC Orders Bus Line Data From W M & A

The Public Utilities' Commission yesterday asked Washington, Marlboro & Annapolis Motor Lines, Inc., for detailed information regarding it bus operations within the District.

W. M. & A. asked permission November 20 to raise cash fares on its buses operating within the District from 10 to 15 cents and make tokens two for 25 cents instead of three for 25 cents.

In yesterday's order, PUC pointed out that the company's books and records—which show a deficit due to increased operating costs and wage boosts—do not separate intra-District operations from those in Maryland or between D. C. and Maryland.

"In order for this commission to pass upon the reasonableness of the proposed increased fares," PUC said, "it will be necessary to fares provide a reasonable return determine whether the present upon the capital invested in the equipment and facilities used in the furnishing of bus transportation service within the District of Columbia."

Accordingly, PUC ordered the company to submit a daily statement from December 29 through January 31 showing the number of passengers carried on each line within the District and from the District to points in Maryland.

Envoy, Wife Honored At Party

By Elizabeth Maguire

ANIMATED conversation and Latin American beauties filled the drawing room of the Bolivian Embassy yesterday afternoon. The "after six" party was given by the Ambassador and Senora de Martinez Vargas in honor of the United States Ambassador to Bolivia and Mrs. Joseph Flack, who are here on a visit.

Pretty Senora de Belt was there in a red velvet beret, and Nora Martins came with her father, the Dean of the Diplomatic Corps. Senorita Maria Elena Restrepo, daughter of the Colombian Ambassador, charmed a circle of attaches, and handsome Senora de Mora was there in a hat of tall ostrich plumes.

Among the early arrivals was Don Guillermo Sevilla Sacasa of Nicaragua, son-in-law of Anastasio Somoza. He was warmly greeted by other Latin Americans.

Guest Wears Blue

When the Ambassador and Mrs. Flack arrived, they were introduced informally around the room. Mrs. Flack wore a becoming blue dress and black feather hat. The Ambassador, in conversation with a small group, gave an interesting description of La Paz, the highest capital in the world. It is 12,500 feet above sea level, and the airport which is a few miles away is 13,404 feet above sea level.

The city of La Paz cannot be seen as you approach it from the airport, as it is in a bowl. A concrete road and several railroads lead down into the town of some 350,000 inhabitants. On top the bowl you see a range of snow-covered mountains, 16,000 feet high and 100 miles long. Inside the bowl, however, you see only one mountain peak, the famous Illimani.

The Ambassador was minus a decoration, as it's against the rules for a diplomat to receive decorations while on duty. However, Bolivia's highest honor, the Condor de los Andes, was recently awarded him out of appreciation for his work in that country.

Senora de Belt mentioned what a relief it was to have her family all under one roof again. The Palestinian question, which kept Ambassador Belt busy up to the last minute at U. N., came up for a lively discussion.

The Ambassador of the Philippines, Joaquin Elizalde, who was among the guests, plans a visit to the Philippines sometime soon, stopping off en route for a visit with his brother, Manuel Elizalde, in California. Other guests in the room included Mr. and Mrs. David Fernsler, Mrs. James Mersereau and pretty Senorita Zulita Fernandez-Davila.

Dance Series Is Resumed at Gun Factory

The first of the winter series of Sail Loft Dances held at the Naval Gun Factory took place last evening with Rear Admiral T. D. Ruddock, superintendent, and Mrs. Ruddock among those entertaining at a buffet supper beforehand.

Later, Admiral and Mrs. Ruddock welcomed the guests at the Sail Loft and receiving with them were Capt. and Mrs. A. S. Wotherspoon and Capt. and Mrs. J. McN. Taylor.

Others having guests before the dance were Capt. and Mrs. A. D. Blackledge.

Admiral and Mrs. Ruddock had invited Rear Admiral and Mrs. James H. Foskett, Capt. and Mrs. Wotherspoon, Captain and Mrs. Taylor, Capt. and Mrs. J. R. Pahl, Capt. and Mrs. H. D. Hoffman, Capt. H. P. Coloney, Capt. and Mrs. C. L. Freeman and Dr. and Mrs. R. O. Bennett.

Dining with Captain and Mrs. Blackledge were Rear Admiral and Mrs. Charles C. Hartman, Capt. and Mrs. Francis A. Packer, Capt. and Mrs. Jack Maginnis, Col. and Mrs. Lenard B. Cresswell, Capt. and Mrs. William P. Chilton, Capt. and Mrs. Clarence E. Voegeli, Capt. and Mrs. Marshall E. Dornin and Capt. and Mrs. Louis A. Reinkin.

The Sail Loft dances have for years been one of Washington's most popular institutions for service officers stationed in the Washington area. The series was discontinued during the war but was revived last year with a series of four dances.

The next dance will be held December 30 in honor of midshipmen and cadets and college juniors of service families home for the holiday season.

MRS. JOSEPH WILLKIE

Willkie—Schildroth

Miss Mary Elona Schildroth and Ensign Joseph Brian Willkie were married yesterday in Walter Reed Memorial Chapel, the Rev. John A. Dunn officiating. Mrs. Willkie is the daughter of Mrs. William Henry Schildroth of Washington and her husband is the son of Mrs. Joseph A. Willkie, also of Washington.

Escorted by her brother, William H. Schildroth, the bride wore a gown of cream lace over satin, with bustle back and court train. Her finger-tip veil was a cream illusion and she carried a bouquet of gardenias.

Mrs. Bernard Achhammer, matron of honor, wore a gown of hyacinth blue moire taffeta and carried American Beauty roses. Joseph A. Dianda was best man and the ushers were William Boyle and Carl Stotmeister.

The bride attended the Academy of the Holy Cross and Maryland University. The bridegroom attended United States Marine Academy at Kings Point, N. Y., and George Washington Univeristy.

After a wedding trip to Florida, Mr. and Mrs. Willkie will live in Washington.

Phillips—Hutter

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Heyward Hutter of Lynchburg, Va., announce the marriage of their daughter, Nancy Hutter, to Lieut. Jack Ben Phillips, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Thomas Phillips of Milwaukee, Wis. The wedding took place November 15 at St. Luke's Episcopal Church in San Francisco, with the Rev. John C. Leffler, the rector, officiating.

Lieutenant Phillips was graduated from University of Virginia and is stationed with the First Marine Brigade in Guam. His bride was graduated from Farmville State Teachers College, Farmville, Va., and has been making her home in Alexandria, Va. She will be with her parents until she joins Lieutenant Phillips.

Gelfound—Migdal

Miss Mildred E. Migdal and Alvin A. Gelfound were married at 4 p. m. December 7 at the home of the officiating clergyman, Rabbi Solomon Metz. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max Migdal of this city, and was given in marriage by her father. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gelfound, also of Washington.

Mrs. Gelfound was attired in an afternoon dress of gray with black accessories and a corsage of white orchids. She was attended by Mrs. Lelia Cohen of Watkins Glen, N. Y. Merrill Gelfound was best man for his brother.

Librarians Study Medical Subjects At Meeting Here

Mrs. Irene Strieby of Indianapolis, Ind., president of the Special Libraries Association, arrived in town this week to attend a symposium on medical subjects yesterday and today at the Pentagon.

The symposium, which is sponsored by the Army Medical Library under the leadership of Dr. Claudius F. Mayer, is exploring in general and specific terms the problem of subject headings for medicine and the indexing of medical literature. Others taking part in the symposium are Dr. Sanford B. Larkey, Welch Medical Library, Johns Hopkins University; Janet Doe, New York Academy of Medicine; David Haykin, Library of Congress; Estelle Brodman, College of Physicians and Surgeons, Columbia University.

Yesterday Mrs. Strieby was entertained at a buffet supper at the home of Mrs. Ruth Hooker, chapter president, and today she will confer with convention representatives to discuss the program planned for the thirty-ninth annual convention of the association, which will be held in Washington next June 6-10. Jane Brewer Amann, chapter recording secretary, is convention chairman. Plans for the convention include a Federal institute over which Dr. Luther Evans, Librarian of Congress, will preside.

Mrs. Strieby is one of the 16 charter members of the Indiana chapter of Special Libraries Association, which was founded in 1941, and for many years before that date she had supported the preceding informal organization of special librarians, who were hosts to the 1940 national convention.

The history of Special Libraries Association dates back to 1909, when a group of 26 librarians associated with the industrial, business, engineering and manufacturing concerns, met and organized under John Cotton Dana the structure which has become the second major library association.

The first annual conference was held on November 5, 1909, with a charter membership of 57. Today the membership totals more than 5000.

Those Neighborly Students

Guests Attend Waxing 'Bee' And Leave Apartment Shining

By Lucia Brown

The old-fashioned practice of holding a bee—"a neighborly gathering of people engaged in united effort"—was revived out George Washington University way the other night.

The scene: The apartment of Leonard Vaughan and his wife, Rubinette, at 2115 H st. nw. (He's an Army veteran now attending G. W.).

The purpose: To put the finishing touches—wax, specifically—on Mrs. Vaughan's housecleaning.

The guests: Two other student veterans, Jesse Federle and Robert G. Trumbull, jr., and their wives, all of whom live in the same apartment house with the Vaughans.

"In the old days, they used to combine work and pleasure by having quilting and corn-husking bees," laughed pretty Rubinette Vaughan, "so I thought why not have a 'waxing' bee, invite the neighbors in to help shine up the place and eat supper?

"We're so busy around here, you know," she added, "we don't have much time to get together. The boys are all in school and studying nights, and the wives either have jobs or children to take care of."

It was indeed the shining hour when the Vaughans, Federles and Trumbulls got together at the Vaughans' apartment. The hostess lost no time in handing out polishcloths, paste and liquid wax, mops and a waxing machine.

"No supper till the work is done!" said Rubinette, and the "bee" started humming immediately.

Everything from tennis rackets to tables — including picture frames, luggage, floor furniture, even the baby's playpen—got its share and wound up with a satin sheen that made the apartment fairly sparkle. Despite a few groans and creaking knees, it was less than an hour till the job was done and the guests were ready for supper.

"Looks doggone nice," said Jesse Federle, as he surveyed the apartment with satisfaction. "How about matching one of these "bees" over at the Federles' sometime?"

"You're on!" cried the crowd, as they heaped their plates high with the delicious supper served by Rubinette Vaughan.

The three young couples who were in on the waxing bee are part of a busy community of former GI's and their wives who live in the vicinity of George Washington University. Leonard Vaughan, who is from Richmond, Va., and a former Army major, is a student in psychology and director of Veterans Education at G. W. His wife is a graduate of Mary Washington College, in Fredericksburg.

Robert G. Trumbull, jr., who was a captain in the Army Medical Corps during the war, is majoring in economics at G. W. His wife, Rhoda, received her bachelor of fine arts degree from the Rhode Island School of Design. Jesse Federle, formerly of Harrison, Nebr., was a staff sergeant in the Army Air Corps and is now a premedical student. His wife, Maries is on the staff of Senator Hugh Butler, of Nebraska.

Missourians to Stage Christmas Party Dec. 20

"WHAT'S BUZZING?" asks Bitsy, the Vaughan's pup, anxiously, as the waxing "bee" circles around the chair of his friend, 10-month-old Walton Vaughan. Rubinette and Leonard Vaughan did a particularly good job on their son's high chair despite Bitsy's solicitude

Men Will Model New Fashions At Optimist Club's Dance

Oyez! Oyez! Gather 'round ye style sticklers. Watch the men demonstrate the much discussed "new fashion look" — bustles, padded hips, drapery devices and bouffant skirts—well, everything that keeps milady in a dither this season. Fifteen courageous males will bulge or pinch in wearing their spouses' best numbers when the Opti-Mrs. Club of the Optimist Club of Washington stages its country dance and fashion show 8:30 o'clock tonight at the Eastern Branch of the Boys Club.

Not only will the models don the extreme feminine styles but will bring out a few outmoded suits of by-gone years. There'll be a laugh at every turn—and all for the cause of aiding the Boys Club of Washington, which was established in 1886.

The male counterpart of the Opti-Mrs. Club has for many years been supporting various programs for the boys. For instance, the Optimist Club sponsors the concert band, symphony orchestra, health and library programs plus Inter-City All Star baseball games at Griffith Stadium.

Smith College Alumnae Hear Of Urgency of Aid to Europe

By Genevieve Reynolds

John H. Ferguson, an executive director of the Committee for the Marshall Plan to Aid European Recovery, yesterday stressed the urgency of rushing immediate aid to western Europe.

Guest speaker at the Smith College Club's luncheon held in the Parrot Restaurant, he told the audience, "time runs against us for success of interim aid as well as the Marshall Plan. The greater the delay, the less chance there will be for success."

Pointing out it is economically advantageous to the United States to help western Europe get on its feet again, Ferguson said that from 1928 to 1937 this country's foreign exports to the continent included more than half of the cotton crop, 35 per cent of leaf tobacco, 28 per cent of crude sulphur, 20 per cent of surplus agriculture machinery and tools.

"Permanent loss of these markets would have a tremendous impact on our own economy," he declared.

Answers Queries

When queried as to what the individual can do to assist the Marshall Committee, Ferguson replied, "Since time is short the best way to be effective is to work with the organizations already working on the plan."

Asked to express an opinion on combining aid to China and Europe, "It seems to me to be a mistake to combine Chinese and European aid measures. Probably it will mean a reduction in appropriations for both Europe and China," he said.

Ferguson outlined the steps that lead to the creation of the Marshall Plan and explained its provisions. In planning European aid during the war he said that we had failed to grasp the enormity of Hitler's great destruction and complete disorganization of every normal European relationship. "We have failed to comprehend the extent to which human beings themselves had been affected in all their normal activities," he averred. "These were serious miscalculations, but they were dwarfed by such incalculables of nature as the drought."

Mrs. Philip Owen, program chairman, introduced the speaker.

Show Report Given

A report from the club's treasurer, Mrs. Francis I. McGarraghy, showed that the recent fashion show benefit netted $2240.43 for the Smith group's scholarship fund.

Mrs. James Sinclair called upon the members to give used clothing, shoes, men's old felt hats and other items that could be turned over to the needy European and Asiatics. She said that the club turns its collection over to the American Friends Service Committee for shipment and distribution.

Emphasizing the great need for clothing and shoes, she said in Hungary two or three people have to share the same dress and footwear.

Dollology Club to Hear Talk on Polish Customs

Miss Yolanda Majowska, past president of the Polonaise Society of Washington, will be guest speaker at a meeting of the Dollology Club today at 2 p. m. at Pierce Hall, 16th and Harvard sts. nw. She will discuss "Christmas Customs and Carols of Poland."

Following the program, reports on the recent doll show held at the Arts Club and the Dollology Club's Christmas donations to children at Glenn Dale Sanitarium will be given respectively, by Mrs. Edan Lons and Mrs. E. E. Estes. Mrs. Elise Jachowski, president, will preside.

Montgomery GOP Club To Have Anniversary Tea

Your Questions On Homemaking

Please publish a recipe for decorative icing I would like one similar to those used on birthday, anniversary or wedding cakes. S. A. W.

Icing made with confectioner's sugar is preferable, I think, to the boiled icings for decorative purposes because it is so much easier to handle. It hardens slowly, thus giving the person using it ample time to finish decorating the cake.

Butter Frosting:
¼ cup butter or other fat
2 cups confectioner's sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
dash of salt
3 tablespoons cream (about).

Cream the butter until soft; gradually stir in 1 cup sugar; then vanilla and salt. Add remaining sugar and enough cream for proper consistency. Beat until smooth. Approximate yield, frosting for top and sides on two eight-inch layers.

Where could I buy some redwood burl to grow as a house plant. Can you tell me something of its habit of growth, and how to care for it? G. R.

Redwood burl appears in the florists shops, and even some of the large dime stores, sometime after Christmas. As I understand it, winter is the only time the burls are cut. To grow them, place flat side down into a shallow bowl of water, keeping the water about one fourth inch deep. Keep in a warm room and the burl will develop fern-like leaves.

I spilled some baby oil over my hardwood floor. Can you tell me how to remove it? G. J. C.

Cover the stain with Fuller's earth and allow to stand for several hours to draw the oil out of the wood and absorb it. If this doesn't work, a solvent can be used, such as gasoline or benzine. In using these, the room must be well ventilated and every precaution taken against fire. Also, be sure there is no open flame in the room. Mix the solvent with the Fuller's earth to make a soft paste. Spread the paste on the stain one half inch thick or more and cover with a sheet of metal or glass to check evaporation. The solvent, working down into the wood, will dissolve the oil, which will be drawn up into the powder. Leave the poultice in place for several hours or until dried.

I have a silver-plated service set that gives the coffee a disagreeable flavor. I have scalded it out several times with soda water, but it continues to give off that flavor. Could you tell me anything to treat it with to remove this condition? M. P.

This disagreeable flavor which your coffee pot imparts to the coffee may be caused by an accumulation of stain on the inside of the pot which is not removed by washing and scalding. To remove this stain, scour the inside of the pot with a household cleaner and steel wool. Use a small round brush to clean the spout and any area which cannot be scoured by a cloth. If the pot is a percolator, be sure to hold the basket to the light to see if small grounds of coffee are lodged in some holes. If so, poke them out with a toothpick. After every inside spot has been scoured, wash well in hot sudsy water, rinse. There should be no trace of foreign odor left, but if there should be, fill with boiling water, add a handful of washing soda and let stand for several hours. Leave the pot lid open when not in use.

I have fallen heir to a number of old albums filled with victrola records, all still in very good condition but soiled. The backs of the albums are covered with cloth of dark brown color which is now faded in spots. Is there a paint or something I can use to renew their use and appearance? P.

If the cloth is firmly stuck to the backs of the albums, a coat of walnut varnish stain could be applied to freshen them. Before varnishing, sponge the covers with a cloth dampened with benzine to remove any soil which would prevent the varnish from adhering. Also, before varnishing, work out some arrangement for suspending the albums—perhaps hanging them over a clothesline. Apply two coats of the varnish, allowing the first to dry very thoroughly before applying the next. The records can be cleaned by wiping them with a soft cloth dampened with alcohol.

Can you recommend a method for cleaning indoor brick? M. B.

Smoked and sooty brickwork can be cleaned with a stiff brush or steel wool and rubbing powder or paste containing grit. Mechanic's hand soap containing sand is good for this. All traces of the cleanser must be removed before it dries, by rinsing well with clear water. It's a good idea to give indoor brick work a protective coating of wax once in a while so it will not become rough and collect dust. Either liquid or paste wax can be used, but the self-polishing type is easier to apply.

Is there any special process for oil painting on cloth? How can it be cleaned? L. H. G., Jr.

Recently I left a dust cloth, soaked with furniture polish, on my piano for a few minutes and it left a large white stain. Is there any way I can remove that? W. B.

White marks on varnished furniture can often be removed by wiping with a mixture of one tablespoon of cider vinegar in a quart of water. Tightly wring a soft cloth out of the mixture and rub with the grain of the wood. Also, wiping the spot with a cloth moistened with turpentine or camphorated oil should remove it.

What would remove a stain from a glass vase where huckleberry leaves have been? I have tried everything and would appreciate any suggestion. M. C.

If the opening in the vase is large enough to permit putting your hand into the vase, use a special cleaner which is sold for removing stains from bath tubs. Or, scour it with fine scouring powder moistened with vinegar. If it is a small-mouthed vase, fill it with household bleach and water in equal parts. You can add a handful of rice or beans and shake the vase; the beans or rice will help to scratch the stain from the vase.

Luxury Lingerie Always Pleases

By Peggy Preston

PONDERING that old annual bug-a-boo — what to give whom for Christmas? Well, for the feminine half of your list, at least, you can't go wrong with lingerie.

Women treasure filmy unmentionables as they do rare perfumes and jewels. They represent luxury to most of us and we like to own these pretty, dainty objects no matter how impractical they may be.

For that reason any item of lingerie is a welcome gift. Yet, it is possible to give lovely undies that are also practical. Visiting a few Connecticut ave. specialty shops we found attractive slips priced at $2.50 and up; gowns for around the same price. However, since this is a "high-cost-of-giving" year, the majority of gift-like garments were more costly.

Silk Still Rare

Only one shop we visited offered real silk merchandise. The continued high cost of this fabric makes it attractive only to a select few. But those able to afford it can get a wide selection this season, something which has been impossible for several years.

Elsewhere it was rayon that filled counters and shelves. This reliable material, which Americans have whole heartedly adopted, comes in varying degrees of quality and price, some of it actually in the luxury class.

At Pasternak's, the stock is ample and varied. A beautiful trousseau or gift set is made of fine quality rayon satin crepe in white, shell pink or pale blue. Entirely hand-made with hand embroidery, the gown is priced at $22.95; the slip, $16.95 and the panties $10.95. Matching these is a shimmering satin peignoir with trapunta type embroidery for $35.00 that would be a pretty addition to a bride's wardrobe.

We saw any number of hand-made gowns, the handiwork of expert seamstresses of Puerto Rico for $19.95 and $16.95. Some are made of dream-glow crepe which is not so sheer as chiffon or georgette but makes up better. It also washes beautifully and when well-tailored fits like an evening dress.

Hostess Gowns Please

In the hostess gown department are several outstanding garments. One, made of crepe back satin in cafe-au-lait shade, has 4 yards in the circular skirt and long sleeves with turned-back cuffs. A gold leather belt is studded with moonstones. Price, $49. A black crepe gown with Roman striped braid at the neckline and wrists is pretty enough to double as a dinner dress. Priced at $35.

Jean Matou's shop has an extensive supply of moderately priced lingerie items. Hand-made slips range from $8.95 to $14.98. Machine-made articles are available for under $4. In addition to the usual supply of rayon gowns, there are some cute flowered woolens for young customers.

Designed especially for the teen-agers is a darling quilted robe of flowered rayon with swing back for $19.95; also a tailored wool checked robe that looks like a topcoat and is just the thing for the college girl.

Hose Are on List

We found some nice stockings at this shop that would make welcome gifts. In the dark shades there are some sheer 51-gauge hose priced at $1.95 and $2.50. Not so sheer, but more practical are the 45-gauge for $1.35 and $1.45.

Rizik Bros. specialize in exquisite hand-made garments of real silk. The price tags are in proportion to the value of the items and if you are in the market for luxury-type lingerie gifts you'll want to see this collection.

At usual, this firm has a glamorous red silk chiffon nightgown, trimmed in black lace, for their Christmas window. Priced at $85.00 it has a matching black starched lace coat. There are real dream gown and robe sets of satin, the shoulders entirely covered with hand-made lace for $125.00 each.

HANDMADE gown and slip sets are pretty Christmas gifts and are available at all leading specialty shops and department stores. Lacy sets are favorites

YOU can always help Santa fill the Christmas stockings with some cobweb sheer hosiery. Be sure and ask for the new dark shades

Christmas Parties Fill Calendar for Alumnae

Alpha Chapter of Phi Delta Gamma, the National Graduate Fraternity for Women, will celebrate founders' day with a formal dinner at 7 p. m. today, at Club 2400. Mrs. Esther Brunauer, an honorary member of Gamma Chapter at Johns Hopkins University, will be speaker. Mrs. Esther Brunauer, assistant director for policy liaison, UNESCO relations staff, Department of State, will speak on international cultural relations and the work being done by UNESCO.

Mrs. Brunauer was the senior advisor to the first general UNESCO conference held in Paris in November, 1946, and to the second general conference held in Mexico City in November of this year. She was international relations secretary for the American Association of University Women from 1927 to 1944.

Dr. Paul F. Douglas, president of American University and honorary member of Alpha Chapter, will give the invocation. Mrs. Margaret Sebree will act as toastmaster.

Miss Rose Marie Rogers of Iota Chapter of Temple University of Philadelphia will also be a guest.

Alpha Gamma Delta to Instal Chapter at Maryland

Alpha Gamma Delta International Fraternity will install Alpha Xi Chapter at the University of Maryland today and tomorrow. Following the initiation and installation ceremonies at the university this afternoon there will be held the traditional rose banquet at the Continental Hotel in Washington, where Mrs. Caspar M. Durgin will preside as toastmistress. Miss Mary-Louise Brown, formerly dean of women at the American University, will be one of the speakers.

Tomorrow afternoon the grand council will be hosts at a presentation tea honoring the new chapter. Representing the grand council of the fraternity will be Miss Louise Leonard of New York City, executive secretary; Mrs. H. C. Flemmer, Chatham, N. J., second grand vice president, and Mrs. K. K. Kutz, Akron, Ohio, international extension chairman. Province officers participating will be Mrs. G. W. Schindehutte of Euphrata, Pa.; Miss Jean Hoyt, New York City; Mrs. Lyle Munson of Washington and Mrs. Charles F. Hildenbrand of Baltimore.

Mrs. C. M. Jansky of Washington, past grand president of the fraternity, will be general chairman for the installation and she will be assisted by Mrs. Austin V. Deibert, hospitality; Miss Geraldine Schlitgus, arrangements; Miss Marilyn Girton, decorations; Mrs. C. Herschel Jones, tea, and Miss Florence Patteson, records.

Action Committee Selects Washington for Convention

The Women's Action Committee for Lasting Peace will hold its national convention here, April 7, 8 and 9 at the Shoreham Hotel, according to an announcement by Mrs. Norman deR. Whitehouse.

Five hundred delegates from all sections of the United States will attend the three-day conclave.

Catholic Alumnae Will Have Mass

Alumnae Association of the Catholic University of America will hold its annual communion mass and breakfast tomorrow. The Right Rev. Msgr. Patrick J. McCormick, rector of the university, will be celebrant of the mass in the Murillo Chapel of the Shrine of the Immaculate Conception at 9 a. m.

Dr. Kathryn McHale, general director of the headquarters staff of the American Association of University Women and a member of the executive committee of the national commission for UNESCO, will be guest speaker at the breakfast at the Kenesaw.

Peace Leader To Be Speaker At Luncheon

Miss Emily Greene Blach, honorary president of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom and 1946 co-recipient of the Nobel Peace Prize, arrived in town yesterday to attend a three-day conference on "How to Turn the Tide Toward Peace." The dynamic peace leader will be guest of honor and speaker at a luncheon today, 12:15 p. m. in the Burlington Hotel at which the D. C. Branch of WILPF, will be hostess.

Last spring Miss Blach suggested that commissions to study proposals to internationalize the uninhabited polar regions and to place under United Nations control all international and strategic waterways. And this will be her topic for today, according to Miss Elizabeth Haswell, chairman of the league's D. C. branch.

After graduating from Bryn Mawr College with its first class in 1889, she chalked up another primary honor by being the first woman to win a coveted European fellowship for outstanding academic undergraduate work. Her early enthusiasm for literature gave way to interest in social and economic problems. She helped establish one of the earliest settlement houses and is one of the founders of the Women's Trade Union League.

In 1915 Miss Blach joined Jane Addams and other American women to attend an International Congress of Women at The Hague. Out of this developed the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom. Meantime, she held down the chair of political science, economy and social science at Wellesley College from 1896 to 1918.

After 1933, the veteran peace worker devoted great selfless labor in aiding European refugees, especially the Jewish people. Then in 1943 she worked equally as vigorously in behalf of the Japanese-Americans who had been evacuated from the West Coast.

In recognition of her peace efforts, Miss Blach, jointly with John R. Mott, received the Nobel Peace Prize.

Too ill to go to Sweden last year to be awarded the prize, Miss Blach expects to make the trip this spring.

Police Escorts Inner Wheel Club Bearing Gifts

If per chance you heard the shriek of sirens and witnessed the police escorting eight automobiles jammed with women up Connecticut ave. yesterday afternoon, don't be mislead. The women were members of the Inner Wheel Club bearing gifts for the patients of Blue Plains, Home for the Aged and Infirm.

At the club's Christmas luncheon held in the Mayflower, 90 members brought anywhere from 5 to 20 presents each to be given to the residents of the home. Then the committee delivered the holiday gifts to the tune of police escorts. But first the Inner Wheelers listened to a gay musical program by Mrs. Mildred Reynolds, soloist, accompanied by Mrs. Doris Mighzahn, pianist, at the luncheon get-together. Mrs. Kitty Tuerke, president, presided.

Senora de Belt Will Entertain

Senora de Belt, wife of the Cuban Ambassador, will be hostess at a children's Christmas party at 4 p. m. tomorrow at the United Nations Club. Guests of honor will be five European war orphans adopted by the Foster Parents Plan for War Children.

Children from 57 embassies have been invited to attend and to bring gifts of clothing or toys for war orphans still overseas.

Veterans to Honor Manila Visitor

Miss Concepcion Aguila, executive directoress of Centro Escolar University, Manila, Philippines, will be the guest in whose honor the Gen. Vicente Lim Post, No. 5471, of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, will entertain at dinner this evening at Trade Winds Restaurant.

New Trade Tax Method Urged In Alexandria

A new method of taxing business in Alexandria was proposed yesterday with estimates of yielding at least $260,000 annually or 50 per cent more revenue.

The proposed plan was outlined to Alexandria businessmen by Archie Dotson of the University of Virginia Bureau of Public Administration. Dotson said that the tax would be solely on gross receipts rather than on basis of "hodge podge" taxation categories.

Dotson estimated that about $260,000 could be collected from the $53,000,000 volume of business done in such a year as 1945.2 Under the present system, $125,000 was collected for that year.

Present System Outmoded

A few categories of businesses in the city are now taxed on the gross receipt basis, Dotson pointed out. Most businesses, however, either (1) pay a flat rate—sign painters are taxed $50 a year regardless of the amount of business they do; or (2) are taxed on some semigraduated scale—a 10-chair barber shop might be taxed twice as much as a five-chair shop, regardless of the volume of business.

Under the proposed ordinance, retail grocers who now have to pay a $30 tax to sell meat, $25 for fish, $10 for tobacco and so on to a possible total of $250, would not have to obtain all these licenses and then deduct them from gross receipts at the end of the year. They could sell what they wished, and at year's end pay taxes based on their volume of business.

Categories Listed

The ordinance, now being put into legal language for council consideration before December 31, classifies businesses in 11 categories: retail merchants, wholesale merchants, professional, contractors, repair services, personal services, business services, amusements, manufacturers, miscellaneous, and regulatory. Each will have its own tax rate depending on the nature of the business.

Dotson pointed out that this license tax is only one aspect of a complete tax survey being conducted by the bureau in cooperation with the city council's finance committee. Councilman Everett A. Hellmuth said he hoped recommendations for a complete overhaul of the city's tax structure would be ready by spring.

Potato Planting Goals to Stand As Set Sept. 28

The Agriculture Department said yesterday the 1948 State potato planting goals will stand unchanged as announced September 28—totaling 2,352,000 acres for all States.

Since announcement of the goals, the department has considered possible cuts in States where its purchases under price support operations this year were heaviest.

Those States include New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Texas.

'Veteran' Shows His Wealth

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

"JOHNNY FAGAN," a 7-year-old boy who does not remember his parents or his nationality and who has lived with American Army forces in Germany since the Battle of the Bulge three years ago, shows the money he has saved upon arriving in New York yesterday. Johnny, dressed in Army clothing tailored to his size, made the trip from Bremerhaven aboard the Marine Flasher. He adopted his name from a Lieut. Walter Fagan whom he met in Germany. A committee for the care of European children will look out for the boy until a home can be found for him

Chevy Chase Club to Study Rezoning Plea

Requested rezoning of a 30-acre tract across Connecticut ave. from the Columbia Country Club to permit erection of an apartment house will be discussed today at 4 p. m. by the club's board of governors.

President S. William Miller of the governing board said he did not know what action, if any, the board would take in connection with an application by the Chevy Chase Land Co. for rezoning of the tract from Residential A to C.

The property involved is situated on both sides of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad about ½ mile north of East-West hwy.

The petitioners plan a 338-apartment development on the tract. Hearing of the petition is scheduled Tuesday before the Montgomery County commissioners.

Bethesdan in Ibsen Play

Ann L. Kline, 109 Battery la., Bethesda, Md., will assist in the production of Ibsen's "Hedda Gabler" at Brown University, Providence, R. I., December 17, 18 and 19.

School Acts On Report by Health Dept.

Unsanitary conditions reported at Alexandria's George Washington High School following a recent inspection by the Health Department have been largely corrected, Principal Edgar G. Pruet said yesterday.

He called "minor" most of the conditions noted in a report to the health officer and released by the city manager. All possible action has been taken to correct them, he said, although some of the problems will require time to work out.

Health department inspectors reported that on October 10 they visited the school and found no towels or soap in rest rooms, and evidence of rats on the first floor. In the cafeteria they noted lack of water hot enough to sterilize, some garbage spilled on stairs, lack of adequate refrigeration for milk, and poor arrangement of refrigerator and store room.

Checking back November 24, they found the school had corrected only the condition of the hot water.

Pruet said yesterday the inspectors had mentioned to him specifically only th hot-water problem. He said they told him other conditions had been referred to the janitor or cafeteria manager for correction.

Czechs Acclaim New Trade Pact With Russia

Prague, Dec. 12 (AP).—The Prague press hailed the new Czechoslovak-Russian trade treaty today as the biggest trade agreement in the world, but Ministry of Foreign Trade sources confessed they were in the dark as to its final form.

Little could be learned here except the treaty will run five years and that Czechoslovakia proposes to ship some 200 kinds of goods to Russia.

"We know what the text of the treaty looked like when it left here, but there have been some changes," said an informant.

A Moscow dispatch distributed by the Czechoslovak government news agency quoted Minister Hubert Ripka, who signed the agreement, as saying grain and fodder shipped by Russia, along with shipments from Romania and Yugoslavia, would enable the nation to avert famine until the next harvest year.

Ripka was quoted as saying that 16 to 18 per cent of the country's foreign trade would be wrapped up in the Russian treaties.

Panel Named to Avert Telegraphers Strike

New York, Dec. 12 (AP).—H Ross Colwell, regional director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, today appointed a three-member panel in an effort to avert a threatened pre-Christmas strike by some 50,000 Western Union employes who are members of AFL unions.

The panel will meet in Philadelphia next Tuesday at 1 p.m., Colwell said.

Children's Aide Named

Mrs. Malcolm Morrow of Annandale has been appointed district director of children's work for the Alexandria District of the Methodist Church. She succeeds Mrs. M. P. Ayers of Clarendon.

The Maternal Maggie

'Sweethearts' Kids Worry Her

By Richard L. Coe

MAINLY ABOUT PEOPLE: Marjorie Gateson (call her Maggie), granddaughter of a Brooklyn Episcopalian minister, answered a chorus call back in her teens and got the job . . . Despite the elegant ladies she's played in the movies, musical comedy a la Bobby Clark's "Sweethearts" is familiar stuff to her . . . She was a musical star back in '19 when the great actors' strike went on and strengthened the Actors Equity movement . . . At that tender age she was asked to run for the Equity Council, but didn't because she thought she didn't know enough . . . Now, since her return to the stage after 13 years in Hollywood, she's on the all-important council and takes the job seriously . . . Being on the road, she has to keep up with those Tuesday meetings via mimeographed minutes, but she does it and well knows all the problems facing the theater today . . . Maggie frankly says she's a "reactionary," but if her admiration for solid theater experience is being "reactionary," it's a complimentary term . . . The kids of "Sweethearts" will be "laying off" three days after Washington's National to spend Christmas Eve with their families and Maggie's maternally anxious that they recognize their individual importance to the show by getting to Pittsburgh on time Christmas Day . . . While she enjoyed the pleasantness of life in Hollywood, she's "thrilled" to be back in the theater . . . She toured in "Kiss and Tell" all "up and down this great country of ours—I love Omaha and Oklahoma and there's nothing like our great Northwest." . . . "It's too bad a lot of the youngsters who hang around Walgreen's waiting for New York jobs and living on sandwiches don't realize what a great chance the road offers them," says Maggie. "Not only is the experience of working before live audiences unbeatable, the chance to see our beautiful country with all expenses paid is magnificent." . . . Inevitably, one talks of wartime USO tours in Africa and Italy . . . One of Maggie's commanding officers in NATOUSA, former Maj. Jim Parks, is now in town with the Veterans' Administration and Maggie's anxious to see him . . . The dashing Miss Gateson loves working with two such troupers as Bobby Clark and June Knight and we can't blame her.

GENE FORD, manager of the Capitol, reports in re our reportage of New York's State dropping vaudeville, that "no chain reaction was set in motion." The next 10 weeks of the Capitol's stage bills are lined up and include a raft of familiar vaudeville names. Among them: the Stroud Twins (next week), John Boles, Pansy the Horse (remember when Virginia Mayo was part of this act?), Dave Apollon, Smith and Dale, Joe E. Howard (the "I Wonder Who's Kissing Her Now" man), Hal Le Roy, Eddie Peabody, Joey Adams, Bonnie Baker, Freddy Bartholomew and Tex Benecke, coming back with Glenn Miller's old band, with which Tex has done so well.

THOSE GW PEOPLE responsible for the setting of "The Fan," the GWU Players' first offering which gives its second and final performance at Lisner tonight, can take a bow. The auditorium's big stage never looked handsomer than in its guise as an Italian village square. The sets were designed and painted by Jane Summers and Robert Stevens and executed by Nelson Wurz. Their job was considerable, for the Lisner stage is exceptionally wide. What so massive and colorful a set would have cost the professional theater is meteoric to imagine, but these folks and their large crews have pulled off a triumph. As for Goldoni's play, it's got its arid, if classical passages, and the players are zestful in their work.

TRAVELERS: Estelle Winwood, who will drive that car of hers everywhere she goes, came a cropper on the way from Boston to Buffalo. Fortunately, that brilliant comedienne wasn't as damaged as Jane Cowl was in crossing the street the other day (Jane's leg was broken), but Estelle was badly shaken. No bones broken, however, and "Lady Windermere's Fan" went up on schedule . . . The busy Mr. and Mrs. Burgess Meredith meet in New York this morning, the former choir boy getting in from London and Paulette Goddard from Hollywood. Tomorrow week, they'll open their new antique shop at Pomona, New York, titled aptly, "High Tor Associates." It's just 10 years ago that Bugs was acting in Maxwell Anderson's dreamy play, "High Tor" . . . George Raft has left for Morocco to star in "Outpost in Morocco," and who cares if he ever gets back?

FOOTBALLERS certainly will want to see the current Warner-Pathe newsreel depicting Collier's fifty-eighth annual All-America team. The men in action are Bob Chappuis, Ray Evans, Johnny Lujack, Skippy Minisi, Paul Cleary, Bill Swiacki, George Connor, Robert Davis, Steve Suhey, Joe Steffy and Richard Scott. It's on the Warner screen.

THANKS TO Irma Thomas and Orrin Markhus as well as all the other Icecap people for their reinvitation. Sorry, it's almost the end of the stay at Uline's and we still haven't said howdy. The ice revue does play a matinee Sunday, then, after the night show, it's the road again.

WEEK EVENTS include: The beginning of a fourth week at the Hippodrome for "Green for Danger," that British mystery yarn with the humorous detective. . . . Children's Film Library shows at 10 this morning in the usual Warner neighborhood houses. . . . Sunday night Community Education skips its usual film revival for a dance concert in the Martha Hush Graham manner, 8:15 at 914 20th st.

TOMORROW: Richard L. Coe shops for theater tickets in little, loud New York.

EARLY SHOPPER: Since Saturdays before Christmas always find half Washington down town shopping for the other half, we thought you'd like to see this example of a precrowd shopper, Deanna Durbin, who's now completing "Up in Central Park" at Universal

Court Cleared as Va. Girls Describe Details in Rape Case

Halifax, Va., Dec. 12 (AP).—In a courtroom cleared of spectators two young Halifax girls gave their accounts today of being raped while threatened with death by two members of a trio who first robbed them and their young farmer escorts on the night of November 22 near South Boston.

The girls—Hazel Duffie, 17, and Inez Yeatts, 18, both mill employes—and their companions—Millard Stevens, 20, and Alvin Puckett, 21—faced the accused at a preliminary hearing before Trial Justice W. P. Waller. The defendants were bound over to a special grand jury to be called Monday and returned to the Danville jail whence they were brought under guard of 15 State troopers for the hearing.

Herman Whitt, 15, pleaded guilty to both the rape and robbery charges and the other man charged with rape, John Major Brooks, 27, said he was guilty of the robbery but innocent of the rape charge. The third member, George Brooks, 21, charged only with robbery, entered a plea of guilty.

The three Negroes were not represented by counsel and Commonweath's Attorney Frank L. McKinney said counsel would doubtless be named for them by Circuit Judge C. E. Mitchell on his return from a court session in Mecklenburg. The case will come up for trial at the January 19 term of Halifax Circuit Court.

The State police had taken special precautions against any demonstrations but the hearing was conducted in a quiet and orderly fashion.

U. S. Will Supply Arms to Turkey

Ankara, Dec. 12 (AP).—The United States will supply 50 shiploads of equipment to the Turkish army under a 100-million-dollar aid program, Maj. Gen. H. L. MacBride, chief of the United States Army mission to Turkey, said today.

While small quantities already have arrived, the bulk of the material will come beginning in February, MacBride told a news conference. He declined to identify types of equipment on the ground that the information was a military secret.

Quake Felt in Chile

Santiago, Chile, Dec. 12 (AP).—A violent earth tremor shook Santiago at 1:33 p. m. (EST) today.

The National Telegraph reported the quake was felt in Valparaiso and Curico regions.

Painting Nets $27,720

London, Dec. 12 (AP).—The Earl of Halifax, former Ambassador to the United States, sold a Rubens masterpicce today for the equivalent of $27,720. The canvas, sent to an auction at Christie's, portrays the Holy Family with the infant St. John.

Goldstein to Fill Maryland Legislative Council Vacancy

Baltimore, Dec. 12 (AP).—State Senator Louis L. Goldstein, Democratic legislator from Calvert County, was named today a member of Maryland's Legislative Council.

Goldstein

Senator Joseph R. Byrnes of Baltimore, president of the Senate, and the council, announced Goldstein's appointment to fill the vacancy caused by resignation of Senator Joseph M. George (D., Queen Anne) to become a member of the State Roads Commission.

Senator Goldstein, a 34-year-old Prince Frederick attorney, was elected to the House of Delegats in 1938, and served during the 1939 and 1941 sessions.

He joined the Marines in 1942 and was discharged in May 1946. He was elected to the Senate and started his term in the 1947 session.

The Legislative Council acts as an "executive committee" for the General Assembly between sessions, studying proposals and passing them on to the Legislature.

Scientist Studies Threats To Virginia Apple Orchards

Blacksburg, Va., Dec. 12 (AP).—The potential threat to Virginia orchards of boron and zinc deficiencies has prompted a Virginia Agricultural Experiment Station scientist here to make a study of the two.

Associate Plant Physiologist G. Myron Shear reported that damage from zinc deficiency has been light in most cases, but that in one orchard near here 100 trees are about to die from it.

In severe cases, he said, the deficiency results in production of a rosette of pale, small leaves at the beginning of the season, and little development of buds on affected limbs.

Use of Zinc Spray Urged

He recommended use of a zinc sulfate spray in cases where definite symptoms are observed. The spray, according to Shear, should be applied while the trees are dormant, and should be combined with other treatments to restore the trees.

Boron deficiencies, he said, are more widespread, and appear to be on the increase. It usually results in internal or external corking on the fruit.

He suggested use of borax on the soil around the tree to combat the deficiency. A shortage of the vital material, he stated, may be induced by overliming of the soil.

Mice Cause Damage

Meanwhile, destruction of trees by mice has become so widespread that many growers rate the rodents as their No. 1 problem. Nearly all damage to roots and bark in State orchards is the work of the pine and meadow species, according to a study by two members of the staff of Virginia Tech.

The meadow mouse, the report said, thrives on the grass around the trees, while the pine mouse has been known to eat small tree roots and bark. The report recommended a thorough rodent control program to combat damage by mice.

Murderess Guillotined

Paris, Dec. 12.—Mme. Lucienne Thioux, 43, convicted of murdering her 73-year-old husband less than three hours after their marriage last March, was guillotined in the prison at Melun, the French News Agency reported today. Mme. Thioux pushed her husband through a prepared gap in a footbridge shortly after the marriage ceremony.

City Employes Ask Council For Pay Raise

Fredericksburg, Va., Dec. 12 (Spl.)—The City Council here has received a request for a "substantial increase" in pay from virtually all municipal employes except elective officers and school teachers.

A group of worker representatives previously asked for a flat $300 yearly boost, but the council later voted a tentative increase of $10 a month. The request received this week was handed to the finance committee for study and recommendation.

The council named five members to confer with officials of Stafford, King George, and Spottsylvania counties on a proposed consolidated high school for the city and three counties.

Finance chairman John F. Gouldman, jr., said that further hearings would be necessary before the 1948 budget can be prepared.

Rev. Townshead Named

The Rev. Morton Townshend of Powhatan County has been appointed to serve as rector of four churches in this area. They are Christ Church, near Irvington, known as "King Carter's Church"; St. Mary's Whitechapel, Lively, both colonial parishes; Trinity Church, Lancaster Court House, and Grace Church, Kilmarnock.

To Build New Firehouse

The Bowling Green Volunteer Fire Department will begin construction of a new cinder block firehouse before the first of the year. Funds up to $3500 have been appropriated by the Caroline County Board of Supervisors for the building.

Football to be Allowed

For the first time in history, Caroline County high schools will be allowed to play football beginning in 1948. The county board authorized the action in response to a plea from a group of citizens. Coaches will be named when teacher appointments are made next year.

Named VA Course Teacher

The Caroline County School Board has appointed William A. Fraughnaugh to teach Veterans Administration courses in agriculture. He has already assumed his duties.

County Is Richer

Treasurer William R. Dillard of Spotsylvania County has reported that the county is nearly three times richer than it was in December four years ago.

He said the county's net worth today is $120,682.56, compared with $44,883.27 in 1943. The totals include unexpended funds on hand plus uncollected taxes. Indebtedness today stands at $42,819 compared with $82,300 four years ago.

Board to Act On Study of Shenandoah

Richmond, Va., Dec. 12 (AP).—The State Water Control Board will consider a proposal next week that a comprehensive biological survey be made of the Shenandoah River, the board's agenda disclosed today.

Spokesmen for the three largest industries on the Shenandoah have offered to finance the study, leaving it up to the board to supervise the investigation, draw conclusions and publish findings. The work would be done by Dr. Charles E. Renn, aquatic biologist, who is director of sanitation laboratories for Johns Hopkins University.

Companies to Pay

Offer to finance the study was made by E. I. duPont de Nemours & Co., operators of a cellulose acetate rayon plant at Waynesboro; Merck & Co., makers of streptomycin, biologicals, and vitamin concentrates at Elkton; and American Viscose Corp., operators of a rayon mill at Front Royal.

A board spokesman said the proposed study would require three years and possibly four and would be the first of its kind ever attempted on a Virginia river. The stream would be surveyed from a point above Waynesboro, to the West Virginia line.

The survey would seek to determine damage to aquatic life from trade wastes and sewage, and what corrective measures should be undertaken.

Other Board Activities

The board also will act on its follow-up campaign aimed at polluters who have failed to file a progress report in the past six months. Likewise to be considered will be a new rayon plant at Dublin; a proposal problem of District of Columbia sewage sludge being dumped in Virginia; a question involving pollution of the Zigler canning cooperative at Timberville; a proposed sewage extension project at Selma; and problems created in Four Mile Run by sewage from Arlington and Alexandria.

An all-day public session Thursday will take up a sewage disposal problem in Covington, an application of Reynolds Metals Co. for approval of disposal facilities on Proctors Run, a progress report on the James River pollution survey, and reports on several industrial pollution abatement programs.

Ballot on Rosemont Incorporation Offered

Martinsburg, W. Va., Dec. 12.—Mayor Paul B. Martin said today a vote on the prospective incorporation of Rosemont with Martinsburg would be held if 10 per cent of the citizens in each community petitioned for it.

Residents of suburban Rosemont have requested the incorporation, but Circuit Judge D. H. Rodgers yesterday rejected their petition after hearing objections by A. R. Small and Boyd Puffenberger, who said the merger would interfere with their poultry and hog breeding business.

Slot Machine Move Delayed In St. Marys

Leonardtown, Md., Dec. 12 (AP).—The St. Mary's County Board of Commissioners decided today to wait until Tuesday before adopting a resolution to designate and license slot machines under terms of a recent referendum.

The action to carry out the mandate of last Tuesday's vote was scheduled for today, but doubts concerning authority to issue regulations governing the operation of the machines delayed the move.

Board Attorney John H. T. Briscoe told the commissioners at their day-long session that there was nothing in the enabling bill empowering them to promulgate regulations along with licensing of the devices.

Under the measure, the commissioners have agreed on a maximum of $50 per machine.

Earlier, opponents of the proposal to legalize the machines had expressed fears they would not net the county any substantial revenue because the law provided for minimum license fees as low as $1 per machine.

State Senator Paul J. Bailey, author of the bill, and four other attorneys told the board the language of the measure was intended to be interpreted broadly. They said they felt the issuance of regulations came within the scope of the bill.

Attorney W. O. E. Sterling quoted Dr. Horace Flack, head of Maryland's Department of Legislative Reference, as holding that even assuming the commissioners had no power to regulate the devices, the enactment of such rules could do no harm and would not invalidate the licensing bill.

Bailey, who pressed for adoption of the legalizing resolution today, told the county legislators he expected between 1400 and 1700 machines to be licensed.

The board decided to postpone action to allow further consideration of the regulation problem.

Freight Rams Auto; Driver Unscathed

Hagerstown, Md., Dec. 12 (AP).—An automobile with 28-year-old Ellis Knode at the wheel was rammed by a western Maryland freight train at a crossing today, dragged a full block and demolished. The driver escaped without a scratch, police said.

Herndon Club to Meet

Harford Board To Answer Suit Of Taxpayers

Bel Air, Md., Dec. 12 (AP).—The Harford County Commissioners will reply to a taxpayers' suit against them on Monday in Circuit Court here, Broadnax Cameron, county board counsel, said today.

Eight taxpayers filed suit this week, declaring the 1948 budget invalid after the commissioners refused to change the $1.47 rate. The contested tax rate is effective January 1.

They contended the commissioners levied a higher rate than necessary by not considering all the income apportioned to the county from the State through the Sherbow State tax redistribution plan.

The $1.47 rate is 27 cents more than countians pay now.

Defendants are the three commissioners, Hugh Laird and Milton R. Walker, Democrats; W. Lee Linkous, Republican, and County Treasurer Street Bowman, Democrat.

Old Holly Tree's Sprigs to Adorn Lapels on B. & O.

Jacksonville, Md., Dec. 12 (AP).—A century-old holly tree, 75 feet tall, that Baltimore & Ohio Railroad passengers and trackmen adopted 17 years ago, is going to provide holly sprig lapel decorations for the company's engineers and ticket collectors this year.

The company says sprigs from the tree will be boxed and shipped to all terminals for hostesses, conductors and other personnel to wear December 21-27.

The tree and the acre of land surrounding it were bought by the B. & O. in 1930 and a barbed wire fence set up around the tree to keep it a permanent part of the scenery along the railroad tracks.

It is believed to be one of the largest trees in this section of the country.

Holiday Plans At Annapolis Announced

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 12 (AP).—Midshipmen at the Naval Academy will have four days to reach home before Christmas, but they will have to return by noon New Year's Day.

Rear Admiral James L. Holloway, jr., superintendent, announced today the program for the holiday season.

The Middies will hold their Christmas hop Saturday night in Dahlgren Hall, with Mrs. Lowell S. English, wife of Lieut. Col. English of the Marine Corps, receiving.

Midshipman William H. Barnes, chairman of the hop committee, is in charge of arrangements.

Next Friday the Middies will gather on the chapel steps, to be led in the singing of Christmas carols by the choir and glee club. Then Christmas dinner will be served in the ward room mess.

Milk Price Rises In Martinsville

Richmond, Va., Dec. 12 (AP).—Martinsville residents will pay 22 cents instead of 20 for each quart of grade A milk delivered, beginning Tuesday.

The State Milk Commisson authorized the increase today, and agreed to a 40-cent boost to producers. This will mean distributors will pay $6.20 a hundredweight instead of $5.80.

Retail prices on premium quality will go to 23 cents a quart and on golden guernsey to 24 cents.

In a second decision announced today, the commission approved a request of producers and distributors in the Kilmarnock-Reedsville market which will put grade A milk on a uniform retail level of 22 cents. At present prices vary from 20 to 21 cents.

Va. Medical Group Elects Dr. Iden

Berryville, Va., Dec. 12.—Dr. C. H. Iden has been elected president of the Medical Society of Northern Virginia, succeeding Dr. D. M. Kipps of Front Royal. Other new officers are Dr. Harold Miller, Woodstock, vice president, and Dr. Fred Maphis, jr., Strasburg, secretary-treasurer. The society will hold its next meeting in Luray in April.

Lane Details Farm Aid Policy To Md. Soil Conservationists

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 12 (AP).—Governor Lane told Maryland farm soil conservation specialists today that the State's agricultural policy is based on a belief that "the economic life of this Nation springs from the soil of its farm."

The Governor addressed a luncheon meeting of the State Extension Service and Maryland division of the United States Soil Conservation Service, which concluded a three-day conference at Carvel Hall.

The State budget includes funds to meet every request by Dr. T. B. Symons, dean of agriculture at the University of Maryland and extension director, for farm programs of the University and State Board of Agriculture, Lane declared.

Pest Control Projects

Appripriations have supported projects to control the coddling moth and Japanese beetle, develop new marketing methods, promote soil conservation, improve plants and concoct new remedies, he said.

College Park researchers are experimenting with "a new application of an old drug in the treatment of undulant fever in humans," the Governor said, "and I am advised that their tests so far give promise of success."

Appropriation of the last General Assembly will be used to set up a southern Maryland tobacco research farm, and a new sub-station for experimental work on Eastern Shore crops, the latter to include a broiler plant.

On the administration's fiscal policy, Lane said, increased State contributions for schools, roads and county projects represent from 17 cents to $2.27 on local tax rates.

European Trip Described

Mrs. W. Earle Gosweiler, president of the State Council of Homemakers Clubs, described her trip to Europe last summer when she attended a conference of the Associated Countrywomen of the World in Amsterdam.

In one of the day's group sessions, extension workers indorsed a proposal by Dr. R. B. Corbett of College Park to prepare a pamphlet advising farmers on conserving feed and foodstuffs.

State Conservationist Edward M. Davis, referring to the State's 175-million-dollar road program, urged his district specialists to assist in erosion control along new highways.

Calling for a vigorous conservation program, Dr. Daniel L. Seckinger, assistant health officer in the District of Columbia, said Greece, Italy and Spain "are barely able to eke out a national existence because of the masses of their people who must live on the products of soil depleted long ago.

Middies and Cadets To Exchange Visits

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 12 (AP).—Navy middies and Army cadets will see how the other fellow works and lives in a series of exchange visits planned for the academies again next year.

This will be the third year first classmen of Annapolis and West Point have spent a weekend with their opposite numbers. The exchanges are designated to acquaint future officers with each other's military upbringing.

A select group of second classmen also will participate this year.

Six weekends, from February to May, have been set aside for the visits.

Dr. McFetridge Elected

Martinsburg, W. Va., Dec. 12.—Dr. Elizabeth McFetridge, of Martinsburg and Shepherdtown, was named president of the Eastern Panhandle Medical Association at the annual meeting here.

Dr. McFetridge, wife of Dr. Halvard Wanger, is the first woman to head the society. Dr. Jack Kilmer, of Shepherdstown, was named first vice president; Dr. W. P. Warden, Charles Town, second vice president; Dr. G. O. Martin, secretary-treasurer, and Dr. Marvin H. Porterfield, censor. Next meeting of the association will be held here in March.

Winchester Creamery Cuts Price of Milk

Winchester, Va., Dec. 12 (AP).—Efforts to maintain an increase in the retail price of 4 per cent fluid milk in this area had failed today after another large distributor—the Haldeman Creamery—had cut the price back to 18 cents per quart.

The Winchester Milk Producers Association recently increased the price to dairy farmers 60 cents per 100 pounds, making the new rate $6. At the time it was understood that distributors buying from the association probably would pass the increase on to the consumers. Sanitary Dairy, however, announced it would continue the 18-cent retail price. Sanitary and Haldeman distribute most of this type of milk consumed here.

2 Named as Generals

President Truman yesterday sent to the Senate nominations of Cols. William M. Stokes, jr., Lynchburg, Va., and Elbert P. Tuttle, Atlanta, Ga., to be brigadier generals in the Reserve Corps.

School Fete Planned

The Surrattsville School Parent-Teacher Association will hold a surprise Christmas party at the school at 7:45 p. m., Tuesday.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

This Explains Why Columnists Tend to Grow Whacky

"Dear Bill: As I am planning on getting married in a few months, I wondered if you could do me a small favor. I am sure that with your contacts around town it would be a relatively simple matter for you to find us a one-bedroom apartment . . ."

"Dear sir: I realize that the inclosed write-up about our forthcoming dance is a bit long, as it runs three typewritten pages. However, we hope that you will be able to . . ."

"Dear District Liner: I have a nice new living room with lots of space in it, and would be willing to store a baby grand piano for somebody, no charge . . ."

"Dear Bill: I enjoy your column in each Sunday's Washington Post, and wish that it also appeared during the rest of the week . . ."

ADD NAMES

M. B. L. of 1009 Beechwood dr., Hagerstown, Md., sends me an interesting clipping from the Hagerstown Morning Herald.

In a column of notes about people in nearby Williamsport, the Herald reports:

"Mr. and Mrs. Albert Wine have started excavation for a new home on South Artizan st. Port Wine, who has been confined to his home for some time, is now able to be out."

Our Hagerstown correspondent slyly observes:

"Let's hope Port doesn't get bottled up in traffic some day, and subsequently become soured on the world, and age too fast. But anyhow, it's nice to know that Wine will be available for Christmas."

SKIRTING THE ISSUE

Barbara Friedman of 6 Pinehurst Circle gives us a seventh grader's views on the new look:

"I think long skirts are a symbol of selfishness. Women who wear them are using material that could have been sent to Europe, to clothe people who would consider themselves 'stylish' if they could just keep warm.

"I wonder how many American women would be willing to cut off the extra material and send it overseas where it's really needed?"

Not very many I guess. After all, it's skirting the real issue to expect the gals to cut a finished dress.

Why not eliminate the extra yardage before the skirt is completed?

GIVE-AWAYS

"Tan, female collie, 18 months old; also two white 10-week-old female puppies." (Vienna 95).

UNOPENED BY MISTAKE

I guess it's happened before, but this is the first time I've heard the story. It comes from one of our local department store Santas.

The little boy had opened the interview with a little boy's customary display of caution and reserve, and Santa tried to put him at his ease.

"Suppose you tell me," said Santa with a great show of interest, "what you'd like to have for Christmas."

"What'sa matter?" asked the boy suspiciously. "Don't you read your mail?"

SNUFF SAID

Ralph Y. DeWolfe of 216 Ethan Allen ave., Takoma Park, Md., says he was interested in Martha McDevitt's remarks about the popularity of snuff.

Since he works for the Department of Agriculture, it was a simple matter to get the exact statistics. They may prove of interest to all who use tobacco in any form.

During last year the department says that the tobacco crop was used as follows, with all figures being in millions of pounds:

Cigarettes, 932; cigars, 145; chewing, 70; smoking, 69; snuff, 37.

That "smoking" category apparently covers guys like me who borrow the stuff one pipeful at a time.

MEMO TO OUR TRAFFIC DIRECTOR

Dear Mr. Keneipp:

Kindly arrange a private driver's test for me, like the one you whipped up for Judge Raedy recently.

I am much too busy to devote two days to obtaining a license, and am therefore very happy to learn of this new service of yours. I am sure that it will prove quite popular with all of Washington's busy people.

BILL.

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK.—Lou Clayton and George Raft reminisced one night about the fabulous Wilson Mizner. One of the stories was of Mizner's Klondike days when he was on a two months' losing streak at poker. One night two gunmen told him they were planning to rob the postoffice bank and promised Mizner a share if he'd keep the postmaster busy in a poker game. Mizner agreed. The postmaster played in the stud-poker game, and Mizner lost constantly. "Finally, I got a pair of aces back to back," said Mizner. "And just then they blew the safe. And they used so much dynamite that the blast turned up my hole card.

Morey Amsterdam was a defendant in Federal Court last week regarding his authorship of the song, "Rum and Coca Cola." The plaintiff's lawyer, Louis Nizer, cross-examined Amsterdam and asked: "Don't you think the fact that the lyrics which you say you wrote happen to be identical with those which existed a year before in Trinidad, is a startling coincidence?"

"Don't you think," Nizer continued, that the fact that the music supposedly created in N. Y. happens to be identical with the music previously existing in Trinidad, is a startling coincidence? . . . "It is a coincidence, but not startling," Amsterdam repeated . . . "Well, don't you think," asked Nizer, "that such a series of unstartling coincidence is a startling coincidence?"

When Wendell Willkie's name was mentioned for the presidency of Columbia University, the late Nicholas Murray Butler's confidential comment was: "I'll stay at this job until the day I die." . . . It was Butler who negotiated with the lone hold-out who stubbornly refused to sell to Columbia University the building he owned in the section which ultimately became Radio City. "I used every device known to man," Dr. Butler reported to his colleagues, "except offer him an honorary degree." . . . Of Columbia graduate Wellington Koo, Dr. Butler said: "He's done well—and to think that young fellow isn't 60 years old yet."

The thieves who broke into the store at 1826 2d ave. and looted it of $2000 worth of wares, took the merchandise which was contributed for a neighborhood bazaar. The proceeds were to be used to set up a camp for cardiac children.

Ed Pritchard, Kentucky's New Deal prodigy, is being urged to accept the job of heading the Civil Liberties Division of the Department of Justice.

Don't Let Gift-Shopping for the Men Tie You in a Knot

Selecting gifts for a man can be easy or difficult, depending on what you choose. While there is no size problem in ties, men are very "choosy" about their neckwear. But, if you shop where he shops (Latt's, of course) there's no problem. We'll even spare you the downtown crowds, if you wish. All you need do is phone or write us, and Mr. Latt will personally make selections for you. All ties are beautifully gift-wrapped at no additional charge. Our collection ranges from $1 to $50

SOME TRANSIT RIDERS NEVER GET OFF

No, we don't mean the character, who, anchored to the best seat in the vehicle, apparently never gets off. He does get off, eventually—at the end of the line.

All day every day, all night every night, the riders we mean, travel back and forth aboard Washington street cars and buses. They don't get off—at either end of the line. They ride without sitting in a sea or hanging on to a strap. These riders are the Transit ads (car cards) that appear in Washington transi vehicles.

Because Transitad-vertisers want their messages b fore Washington's largest audience, Transitads never g off the vehicles. Individual Transitads (car cards) "g off" from time to time. Advertisers change, too. Ne products, new services offered by new firms appe But, as a group, Transitads never get off the str car or bus.

Today or tomorrow, whenever you next board a str car or bus, give the Transitads a glance. These ma thon riders' main job is to keep you informed of products and services available in Washington. D get off the transit vehicle without noticing the ri that never get off—Transitads.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Headlines Snatched From 'Joe'

By Drew Pearson

It's hard to get over the habit of years. That's why Speaker Joe Martin smiles wistfully when his own GOP members address House Minority Leader Sam Rayburn as "Mr. Speaker." Meanwhile, Martin is still "Joe" even to most newspapermen on Capitol Hill. Even the imperturbable "Joe," however, got irked last week when one of his Bay State neighbors stole the headlines from him. The Speaker had called an emergency meeting of New England Congressmen in his own office to discuss New England's critical coal and oil shortage.

Martin

Among those present was publicity-wise veteran Edith Nourse Rogers of Lowell, Mass., who during the meeting, didn't have a word to say—but in less than an hour after it was over she had introduced a bill to ban the sale of tankers to foreign governments or foreign principals. This will not solve the petroleum shortage for New England, but it took New England newspaper headlines away from Martin.

History Teacher Truman

John Dean, a 16-year-old high school student of Charleston, W. Va., who recently won an essay contest on what place organized labor holds in a democracy, called at the White House recently, accompanied by Senator Harley Kilgore and Eugeen Carter, president of the West Virginia State Federation of Labor.

And when the youngster informed Truman that he was a student at Stonewall Jackson High School in Charleston, it caused the President to drop an interesting bit of American history.

"Coming from a school with a name like that," he said, "it's rather appropriate for you to be the winner of an essay contest on democracy. Stonewall Jackson was a great man and a great leader.

"Young man, do you realize that when Stonewall Jackson was your age, 16, he walked all the way from Charleston to Washington and sat on the steps of the Secretary of War until he was given an appointment to the Military Academy at West Point?"

Young Dean said this was news to him, but he planned to tell his classmates about it.

Under the Dome

Nebraska Republicans are not enthusiastic about having Senator Kenneth Wherry, the "merry mortician," speak in their towns. They fear embarrassing questions might be asked about the end of OPA. Wherry was the most vociferous of all Senators in promising low prices when the OPA ended.

The all-important cement case now pending before the Supreme Court will decide for the first time in history whether the Federal Trade Commission has the right to prosecute antitrust cases—hitherto exercised chiefly by the Justice Department. For years the Federal Trade Commission, whose members constitute the oldest-aged group in Government, have scarcely moved on anittrust cases. For instance, FTC oldsters deliberated the cement case for 10 long years. A companion case on price fixing of steel was held up by the Trade Commission for 26 years.

Laux Exiled

One of the men who took part in the Sicilian airborne infantry operation and was lucky enough to live through it was Lieut Col. David Laux. Afterward, he directed his energies toward making sure that future Army transports carrying paratroopers could not be shot down so easily by antiaircraft fire.

When Laux finally wrote a letter direct to Secretary of War Stimson, one of the officers opposing Laux on self-sealing tanks ordered Laux to Alaska.

A day or two later, after Colonel Laux had arrived in Alaska, Gen. Barney Giles telegraphed Gen. Dale V. Gaffney at Nome, Alaska, directing him to secure from Colonel Laux all reports, papers and letters relative to self-sealing tanks and paratrooper transports. The telegram also asked that Laux authorize the Air Corps in Washington to pick up any papers in the Laux home pertaining to the protection of paratrooper planes.

Too Tough for Barney

By this time General Gaffney smelled a rat. And being a tough Irishman with a son who was in a troop-carrier outfit, he got on the telephone and proceeded to bawl out General Giles for sending Colonel Laux to Alaska.

"When I want any officers of lieutenant colonel rank up here, I'll make them myself," he said.

"You don't need to concern yourself with sending them to me."

When Giles remonstrated, Gaffney shot back:

"Don't give me any of that, Barney. What's the matter? Has Laux got something on you?"
